VERBENA'S FESTIVAL—

Members of the News staff were extended a cordial invitation to attend the Spring Festival at Verbena, staged by the Verbena Elementary School, last Wednesday night. The invitation was extended by Prof. W. J. DuBose, principal. Sorry we didn't get down, but reports from the affair were that the performance was most interesting and beautiful. The staff of a weekly newspaper—from publisher to "devil"—is usually so tired on Wednesday night from "putting the paper to bed" that invitations to attend any social function are declined. Somebody usually has to put we printers to bed on that night.

ON TO NEW YORK—

On Sunday morning, June 18, the Alabama Press Association members and friends who wish to join the tour, will leave for Washington, D. C., and from there on to New Cork City. This will be one glorious tour and anyone contemplating a real vacation this year will do well to investigate the particulars of the trip and make arrangements to be on the Alabama Press Special on the morning of June 18. Persons who have enjoyed this annual outing with the Press in the past will tell you that the programs planned by this group are most enjoyable, and well worth the price. Ye Olde Observer will be glad to explain the particulars about the tour to anyone, and make reservations with what promises to be the biggest vacation party to leave Alabama this year. The Governor has proclaimed "Alabama Day" at the World's Fair, and a grand entertainment by the Alabama State Society for the group will be the highlight of the Washington stay, with a tour of the National Capitol and other Government buildings.

STILL SELLING DRINK—

It was for a long time soft drinks for human consumption that our good friend Horsley White dished out here in Clanton, but now its the well known Gulf drink for automobiles that he's selling at the Gulfpride Service Station. We're glad to see Mr. White and his family back in Clanton after an absence of several months.

DANGEROUS DAYS—

The article "Dangerous Days," written by Dr. V. J. Gragg, and carried last week in the News was interesting. The Doctor has promised us more articles on this subject in the near future, so keep your eyes peeled for their appearance. They'll tell you lots of things about this thing known as war, and which seems to be the general subject these days.

BRIGHTER—

Much brighter are Clanton's prospects for being allotted a unit of the Alabama National Guard. Since the subject was brought up early last Fall, the Kiwanis Club and other interested individuals have been pulling for this project. Our Congressman, Representative and most of all, Adjutant General Ben Smith of Montgomery, have supported the move. Now comes the good news that Clanton will get a unit on the first authorization by the officials. Clanton will be expected to heartily support this unit if it is placed here. We could very well use a new Armory building which will probably be erected when the unit is established. John Higgins has certainly been pulling for this thing and was perhaps the first to advocate its establishment in Clanton.

WON'T BE LONG—

The work of applying the "gooey" substance to the street to be surfaced is really underway and it's walk or fly to to the house for many of the folks living on these streets, and that includes ye olde Observer. But we don't mind, when we think of the nice smooth streets, sans dust and mud, after this work is completed. By the way, have you noticed that the street on which the Mayor's house is located is being surfaced from curb to curb?

MORE CATTLE—

The Fat Cattle Exposition and Sale held at Montgomery recently was an interesting affair, we are told. Messrs. T. L. McKee, J.E. Edgar and Dr. W.L. Parrish returned with a fine registered bull each. We've been wondering why can't Chilton County raise more registered stock. Seems to us that a number of head of fine registered stock owned by farmers in the county would soon grow into a money-making industry. Of course Chilton County is not as well suited for cattle growing as some other counties in the state, but rapid growth of the cattle industry in Alabama and the good price they are bringing, leads us to believe that Chilton County could come in for its share of the profits.

PILOT-KIWANIS CLUBS TO MEET WITH FFA-FHA

JOINT MEETING WILL BE HELD TONIGHT AT VOCATIONAL BUILDING OF C.C.H.S.

METHODISTS BRING REVIVAL TO CLOSE

EIGHT ADDITIONS TO CHURCH DURING WEEK OF INSPIRING SERMONS

The revival meeting of the First Methodist Church of Clanton which began on Easter morning, came to a close on Sunday evening, April 16th. The meeting was a great spiritual blessing to the church and to the entire community. Reverent J. L. Daniel, pastor, assisted by Mr. J. P. Peacock, singer, and his son, Mr. Eugene Peacock, young people's worker, both of Montgomery conducted the services.

Reverend Daniel preached fine sermons of rare spiritual force and appeal. At several services Mr. Eugene Peacock was invited to preach, and his sermons were characterized by a keen zealousness for the Kingdom of Christ.

Mr. J. P. Peacock led the singing and a real spirit of worship prevaded the song services. Also Mr. Peacock gave most generously of his talent in singing many inspirational solos. At one service special music was given by Mr. Peacock, his two sons and brother.

The meetings for young people were well attended and the young people received a great inspiration and realized the joy and beauty to be found in a life of consecration to Christ. Mr. Eugene Peacock, an upstanding youth, with a dynamic Christian personality

Several Auto Accidents During Past Week

Several auto accidents, majority of them of minor consequences, occurred over the county during the past week.

An accident occurring near Lomax one day last week, in which one negro woman was painfully injured, was probably the worst. The car filled with Negroes left the highway, continued across a field for approximately one hundred feet, broke a telephone pole in two, continued on to the railroad, sixty feet further, and came to a stop almost on the track after ascending to the elevated track. The five negro occupants received minor injuries except the woman.

An accident occurred within the City last Saturday afternoon, causing considerable damage to a sedan and a Clanton Laundry delivery truck. The collision occurred almost directly in front of the News office. Witnesses to the accident stated the sedan collided with the delivery car when the driver attempted to steer around an other auto.

One of the two young men in the sedan received a minor cut on the

Three Chilton Boys Exhibit Calves

Three Chilton County youths exhibited calves they had raised working cooperatively with the local County Agent's office, at the Montgomery Fat Cattle Show held recently in Montgomery.

These boys sold their calves at a fair profit at the sale and show, and all three plan to enter again next year, according to C. L. Breedlove, Assistant Agent, who has charge of this phase of work. The boys entered their stock in the Junior Feeding Division. They are as follows: James A. Messer, Frank Collins, Jr., and Ned Dennis. Young Collins' calf won fourth prize in the Class One Group. This should be encouragement to other 4- HClub members to raise calves for the show and markets.

MURRAY-BELL HARDWARE MOVES TO ITS NEW HOME

The Murray-Bell Hardware Company of Maplesville has moved from its old quarters to its new home next to the Postoffice.

Mr. Jimmie Bell, owner, says that this was done for the convenience of his customers and he invites an inspection of the new store.

Clanton In Line To Get Guard Unit

A communication from Congressman Pete Jarman last week in which he stated that he had been assured by Adjutant General Ben Smith that Clanton would be "given a National Guard Unit on our first authorization," was received here as good news by those who have been interested in this subject.

Since Alabama has been designated as the location of an anti-aircraft division, chances for Clanton securing a unit have been better, and Major Smith stated that he was very much in favor of establishing one here, in the belief that Clanton would support the unit, since a great deal of interest had been manifested by local citizens in the proposal.

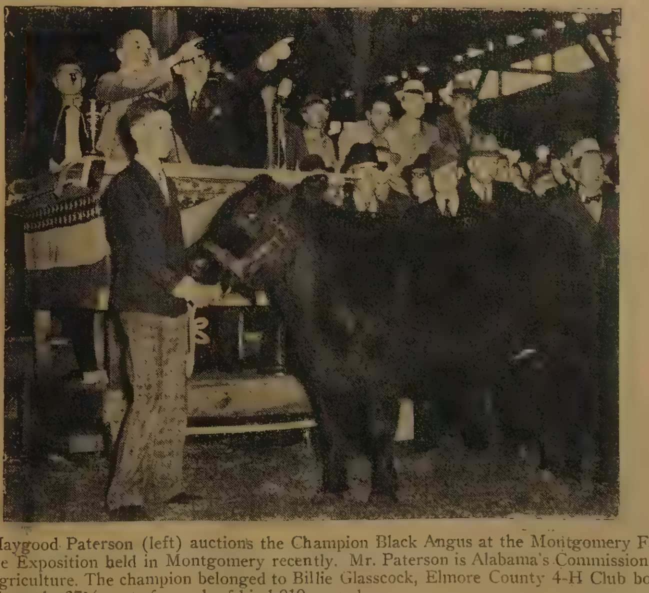
Although nothing definite has been released regarding the type of unit, date of establishment, etc., Clanton may rest assured that she is being looked upon as a favorable location for an Alabama National Guard Unit.

Negro Found Dead In Sawdust Pile

A negro fireman at a local planing mill, while shoveling sawdust into the furnace last Friday morning, uncovered a dead negro man, whose name said to be Tubbs.

Reports stated that the negro was hit over the head by another negro some time ago, and had disappeared. It is supposed he went to the sawdust pile, laid down and died. He had been in Clanton only a short while. At the time he was found he had been dead for two or three days.

COMMISSIONER OF AGRICULTURE AUCTIONS CHAMPION



Haygood Paterson (left) auctions the Champion Black Angus at the Montgomery Fat Cattle Exposition held in Montgomery recently. Mr. Paterson is Alabama's Commissioner of Agriculture. The champion belonged to Billie Glasscock, Elmore County 4-H Club boy, and brought 27½ cents for each of his 1,010 pounds.

WORK STARTED ON ORGANIZING BASEBALL TEAM

CLANTON-MAPLESVILLE ARE COMBINING FOR STRONG AGGREGATION THIS YEAR

A most interesting meeting attended by baseball players, fans and other interested persons, representing Clanton and Maplesville, met here Monday night to discuss plans for a strong baseball team this year.

At this meeting Udah Curlee, who is well known in this county for his interest in sports, was elected as manager of the team to be formed, consisting of Clanton and Maplesville players. Mr. Curlee gained recognition in years past for his ability to turn out championship basketball teams in this County, and he has also coached several baseball teams in this section.

Mr. Curlee stated that he plans to begin work immediately on lining up players and working out other details for the organization. There will be other officials in the organization, but they have not been named as yet. It is expected there will be two named from Clanton and two from Maplesville.

Mr. Curlee has promised to have an aggressive and fast team on the diamond within ten days or two weeks, and the baseball fans of this section are asked to follow this team and watch for future announcements.

Last year Clanton, Lay Dam and the Alabama Mills combined their efforts and produced one of the finest teams in the state. They barely missed winning the State semi-pro Baseball Championship, being nosed out in the final game by Tallassee. It is expected that under the expert coaching of Mr. Curlee, this year's turn-out will be equally as good.

BAPTISTS REACH HALF-WAY MARK IN CAMPAIGN

METHODISTS BRING ONE-WEEK REVIVAL TO CLOSE; IS TERMED BIG SUCCESS

Members of the First Baptist Church will, on next Sunday, reach the half-way mark in their Church Loyalty Campaign. A church program unusual in promotion and achievements will challenge the attention and loyalties of all the church people of the city and community for another five weeks period, emphasizing church attendance and spiritual growth.

Church membership lists and groups will be revised and re-assigned for more thorough visitation and work. An appeal is made to all members of this church to form the habit of regular church attendance. Some of the results of this program are seen in the unprecedented numbers of people attending the services of this church with regularity. The audiences are still increasing, and have already surpassed (according to the testimony of many member), any previous records of sustained church attendance.

If you are a member of this church an especially urgent appeal is made to you to attend church services of worship on next Sunday—the half-way

A full page advertisement elsewhere in this issue, lists many of the bargains offered during the sale. This popular dry goods store has long been noted for the fine quality of merchandise carried in stock, and during this Stock-Reducing spree, it will without a doubt pay dividends to the buying public if they visit Rockett's during the eight-day period.

SEEING A CYCLONE

The editor of The Times and the "devil" had a box-office view of the cyclone Tuesday as it ripped its way through the residence section of town.

If we could find words to describe accurately what we saw, it would be a great scoop indeed. But description is impossible.

We are sorry we saw it. Every since the big storm in Chilton County in 1932 we have been scared to death every time the wind blows in March and April. Now it is going to be worse since we saw one of the things in operation.

It is a mystery how people can survive through such terrible forces of twisting wind and flying debris.

But it is quick work. It was about two or three minutes Tuesday from the time it struck Cassie's until it lifted from the earth at Chicken Brown's.

We rushed immediately into the area at Paul Rogan's, expecting to find suffering victims everywhere. We would not have been suprised to find the most horrible conditions. In fact, we expected it.

Fortunately we came first and at once upon the immediate scene of the only person seriously hurt in the whole affair. It was the Negro, Claud Eddins, who was crushed beneath the wreck of Mr. Reid's chicken houses. We moved a whole sawmill of lumber and got him out, all within a few minutes after the wreckage piled upon him.—Montevallo Times.

STATE LINE TRADE BARRIERS

"Incalculable economic loss" is caused the nation by the interstate trade barriers, including discriminatory inspection fees and regulations, licenses and taxes, the U.S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics asserts in a report urging removal of the barriers.

Every farm product is affected by the barriers, the report states, and the farmer faces limitations on the size of his truck, conflicts in food grading and packaging laws and the regulations imposed upon dairy products.

"Today it cannot be said we have free trade between the states," said Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, in a foreword to the report. Secretary Wallace suggested a program which would again make the state lines "broad highways of commerce serving the general welfare."

In some states the farmer must obtain a business license, pay an occupational tax post an indemnity bond in the state and in every country in which he operates. Border wars during which farmers' trucks are blocked at state lines delay shipment of agricultural products, causing deterioration and often complete destruction of whole truck loads.

Albania is not much, even for Mussolini to conquer, but of course Il Duce could not sit back and let Hitler do all the grabbing.—Lee County Bulletin.

What puzzles this writer is: Why should American newspapers be making so much fuss about it.

———o-o-o———

Every time Hitler says he has all the territory he wants, you can look out. He is getting ready to absorb another small country. Wonder who is next?—Southern Democrat. If the headlines in the big dailies are reliable it is liable to be us.

Prospects of Clanton's getting a unit of the Alabama National Guard is growing brighter and brighter. Adjutant General Smith has indicated to Congressman Pete Jarman that "Clanton will get a unit (Aircraft) on our first authorization."

THE STAGGERING COST OF WAR

Before the world is plunged into another world conflict, it would be wise for the leaders to review the cost of the World War that ended only a little more than twenty years ago. Here are some figures taken from The Alabama Legionnaire:

74,000.000 men mobilized, 10,000,000 killed, 3,000,000 missing, 19,000,000 wounded, 10,000,000 disabled, 7,000,000 prisoners, 9,000,000 orphans, 5,000,000 widows, 10,000,000 men, women and children driven from their homes. A total of 64,000 men were killed daily, and this went on for 1,558 days. These figures do not include the cost in money, which was enormous.—Our Southern Home.

Add to those staggering figures $12,892,022,720.60, the total war debt owed the United States, to the staggering cost enumerated above, and the sum total is the greatest reason in the world why the United States should refuse to become entangled in another holocaust such as that brewing in Europe.

Had the U. S. demanded payments of the war debts owed it instead of permitting those nations to spend the money due this nation, in building new, bigger and better war machines, we of the United States would not be worrying about any war breaking out in Europe.

The cause: Avarice, greed, selfishness.

The effect: Misery, poverty, death.

Mark Remarks:

We can't have much hopes for the future of the race as long as women wear what they do—and call 'em hats.

* * * *

How many dairy cows Alabamians own to give milk for babies is far more important than how many miles of territory Hitler or Mussolini has taken over since Christmas.

* * * *

The perennial slot machine-roscoe-punchboard-honky-tonk flurry is now on. It will soon blow over. It always does.

* * * *

No other nation need fear Uncle Sam as long as our women continue to wear the kind of hats they do.

* * * *

As long as Alabama insists on keeping alive a political "black belt," for the purpose of dominating the "White Hill-billy Belt," we have no right to complain at the treatmen the "damyankees" are handing us.

* * * *

If you want to forget Mitler and Hussolini and that whole rotten European bunch, just order a dish of Chilton County strawberries and cream with a piece of shortcake. That will instantly put you at peace with the world and all mankind.

* * * *

"Will The Cotton South Surrender Or Fight?"—Headline in an exchange. The Cotton South has "fit" and "fit", until it has just about decided to let the chiselers take he whole dern thing and go with it.

* * * *

An exchange asks "What to do with cotton." Well, if it isn't worth anything, what sense is there in raising it?

* * * *

You can't always tell—Nance may be the very man to Garner the votes in the next presidential election.

* * * *

Germanitis, Italihosis and Jitterbugs have simply got U. S. Americans going 'round and 'round.

* * * *

Sweet music of prosperity: L.&N. strawberry and Irish potato trains going north every few minutes all day long and all through the night, while this tired newspaper man is trying to sleep.

* * * *

If the farmers of the South should decide to plant no cotton for, say three years, an then plant no cotton for three years—there'd be weeping and wailing from Wall Street, even down to New Orleans.

* * * *

While patriotic Alabamians were auctioning off fat beef cattle at the Montgomery stock yards last week, the downtown restaurants were advertising and serving "Western Steaks" to their guests. Why?

* * * *

The Dixon plow wasn't getting 'em fast enough, so they have resorted to the use of the old tried and true political axe.

* * * *

American textile manufacturers are opposing Scretary Wallace's plan of subsidizing export cotton. Of course every bale exported would decrease the visible supply here at home, which in turn would increase the price for the farmers' next crop. See the point?

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

We must realize, first of all, that hardship has a place in the well-ordered scheme of things. In the Franconia Notch in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, high on the mountain side, is the great Stone Face. Hawthorne has immortalized this face in one of his famous stories. Daniel Webster said of this face: 'Men hang out their signs indicative of their trades; shoemakers hang out a gigantic shoe; jewelers a minstrous watch; and the dentist hangs out a gold tooth; but God up in the mountains of New Hampshire has hung up a sign to show where He makes men." This great statesman meant to say that great men are not made through a process of softness and ease, but after the battle of hardships. Men, real men, are not made except by a process of fire, blood and pain.

In Andalusia, Alabama, they have a furniture plant where choice pieces of house furnishings are made. The timber out of which they make the finest articles, is not grown in the valleys and protected places but it is selected from the trees that grow high up on the mountainside, where battling with the elements, struggling with the storms fighting with the hurricane, they grow an exquisite grain and fiber that is strong and clean. Frank Harris, a distinguished English writer said: "Strong men are made by opposition like kites that go up against the wind." If we are going to make real men, life is sure to become hard and we had just as well square ourselves for a hard fight. When the winds and storms of life twist and test us, it is then time to grow a fiber and grain of life out of which the finest character is made. Produce the power to meet the storm.

One day Mr. Coolidge laid down for a nap in the executive office of the White House. It was a busy day and many visitors gathered for a conference with the President. While they sat and walked and waited impatiently, Mr. Coolidge slept on. A half hour had passed since he was expected to be awake to meet his callers, to resume his duties, but he did not stir. His secretary tip-toed in and out of his office, but hesitated to awaken him from his sleep. At length the president awakened and opening one eye, inquired with a sheepish look: "Is the country still here?" A lot of folks would be much better off if they could realize that the world would still run on if they got out of the picture for a short time. It is haste that makes waste. Sit loosely in the saddle of life

POTASH
APPLIED AT CHOPPING MADE THE DIFFERENCE

IF you did not apply enough potash at planting time or if your cotton rusts, it will cost little to apply more potash in a nitrogen-potash top-dresser. The increased yields, control of rust, reduced wilt injury, and improved quality which will result from this extra potash will return the small investment many times. Heavier bolls, more lint per seed, longer staple, stronger fibers, and easier picking also result. An increase of $15 to $25 per acre in the value of the crop due to the extra potash has been secured in practical field tests and experimental work.

Your county agent or experiment station will tell you whether you applied enough potash at planting time. See your fertilizer dealer or manufacturer about adding the equivalent of 50-100 lbs. of muriate of potash in a nitrogen-potash top-dresser. Keep your plants growing vigorously into the profits which you plan to make this year.

Write us for our free booklet, "Greater Profits from Cotton."

Prompt Help For A Listless Child

Scolding won't help a boy or girl who is listless, dull or cross from constipation. But, here's something that will!

If sluggish bowels have your child headachy, bilious, upset, give him a little Syrup of Black-Draught tonight. Like the original famed BLACK-DRAUGHT, its principal ingredient is an intestinal tonic-laxative. Helps impart tone to the bowel muscles.

Children like the taste of Syrup of Black-Draught. It is an all vegetable product. When simple directions are followed, its action is gentle, but prompt and complete. Comes in two sizes: 50c and 25c.

Thorsby Jr. High School News

The school picnic will be given next Saturday at Log Cabin Beach. Several parents and the faculty will be present to see that all the students are properly and safely supervised. All those who plan to go will meet at the school building at 9:30 Saturday morning. Bring your kodaks, lunch baskets, fishing outfit, ropes, playground balls, etc., for we hope and plan to have a most pleasant day outing. All those outside of regular students who wish to go will see Mr Johnson, who is sponsoring the outing, in order that transportation may be arranged satisfactorily.

This week brings our school year to a close. A program has been arranged for next Friday afternoon, consisting of the following features: (1) Operetta by the first five grammar grades.

(2) Graduation exercises for the sixth grade class.

(3) Presentation of ninth grade promotion certificates.

All parents and friends are cordially invited to attend. There will be no admission charged.

The P. T. A. held a special call meeting last Friday afternoon. Several matters of vital importance were discussed, one of which was a thorough overhauling of the piano. This was done last Monday, so our piano is once more in good shape.

Many thanks to Mrs. Malvin Manning for her efforts in placing some beautiful settings of shrubbery in and around the front of the new annex.

Twenty-four sixth grade students will advance up into high school and six ninth graders will be promoted to Senior One work.

In our last news items we promised to list the sixth grade class officers. Here they are:

Class president—Mildred Popwell
Class song leader—Verna Smith.
Class Prophet—Bobby McCloud.
Class Historian—Emogene Lowery.
Class Poet—Herman Higgins.
Class Giftorian—Louise Rollins.
Class Validictorian—Peggy Franklin.
Class Sponsor—Charlene Williams.

We regret the going of the Barwicks. They moved to Georgia last week. Our best wishes go with them, for they were loyal and good school supporters.

Remember the closing exercises next Friday afternoon beginning at 1:00 o'clock. Then on Saturday morning our school picnic. If the weather is inclement the picnic will be held at some later date.

SEEN and HEARD BY GAD

The Commencement exercises of the Grammar School is an item of interest —presently, mothers will be wondering how they'll entertain the children so as to keep them out of mischief. . . Using gangsters' methods, eh, T. J.? Anyhow your car (if you can call it that) looks much better all blue and white. . . . Had you ever heard of a "flower service" before? Neither had I until I heard of the impressive one Mr. Daniel conducted at his church on last Sunday. . . . and Mrs Omar Reynolds wore a most becoming white felt hat last Sunday. . . . Maybe Mrs. Polk will come back just overflowing with music and news. . . . Orchids to every member of the cast of "A Ready-Made Family"—but we especially bouquet" Aileen for acting the part of a devilish brat so well. . . . Dorothy Waite was home with a visitor last week end and Mary Armstrong blew in, too—haven't seen you in a long time, either, Mary. . . . And did I see Bobby Powers riding around last week here in town? . . . We're not getting personal, "Lump," but that couldn't have been a diamond I saw on the left hand, could it? And if it was it couldn't have been there just because it didn't fit the other hand? . . If you see Mr. John Powers with a mile-wide grin, you'll know it's because there's an addition to the family. May I present Mr. John Powers, III . . . And I guess that everyone knows that that sweet aroma abroad now is the first step toward paving our streets. . . . Mrs. George Parr and son are visiting in Tennessee. . . . Did you say that Mr. Ira Smith is in New York now? Why Mrs. Smith, I'm suprised at you—letting him go way off up there without you, yet there are home duties. . . With world-wide peace as our goal, let us strive to make these United States all the word "Democracy" implies. . . . I'll see you again next week —BY GAD.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT

We, your Resolution Committee, of the Chilton County division of the Farmers Educational and Cooperative Union of America, offer the following:

God, in His infinite wisdom, saw fit to call from our midst our beloved brother and co-worker, Brother Wm. A. Barnett. He joined the Farmers Union some thirty odd years ago, was County President for many years. He was always loyal to the cause. The distance never got too far or the way too rough to keep him from attending the meetings. In his going we have lost a faithful member. He so lived "that when the summons came to join the innumerable caravan that moves to that mysterious realm where each shall take his chamber in the silent halls of death, by an unfaltering trust he approached his grave like one that wraps the drapery of his couch about him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."

—J. A. Culp, H.H. Smitherman, Mrs. B.L. Cobb.

Be it resolved by the Chilton County division of the F.E. and C. U. of A. that a copy of the above be sent to each of our County papers and one to his family. Also a copy be put on our minutes.

Done in regular session, this 8th day of April, 1939.—B. L. Cobb, County President; N. G. Smith, County Secretary.

FOUR MATERNAL DEATHS REPORTED SO FAR IN 1939

The lives of four Chilton County mothers have been lost in childbirth already so far during 1939. According to a weekly bulletin from the Health Department only two maternal deaths were registered during 1938. The puerperal deaths reported this year were among white women below the age of thirty-one. The causes of death as stated on the death certificate were hemmorrhage in three, and eclampsia in one.

Regarding these deaths, Dr. S. D. Sturkie, County Health Officer, made the following statement: "These women were young and snatched from their loved ones by death while they were still on the threshold of life. There can be no doubt that the physicians in attendance at these cases did all that was humanly possible for them to do to save the lives of these young mothers. The husbands undoubtedly gave everything they had at that time to thwart the cold hand of death in taking their wives. Yet it has been shown by scientific studies of maternal deaths that a majority can be prevented. There are accurate reports to the effect that at least two-thirds of them are preventable.

"How can this needless loss of life then be prevented First, every mother should be placed under the care of the family physician, as soon as pregnancy is suspected, and should visit his office at monthly intervals during the early months and every two weeks during the late months of pregnancy. The physician should make an examination which should include blood pressure, urinalysis, weighing, pelvic measurements, and blood test for syphilis. Sending a specimen of urine to the doctor's office is a very poor substitute for a visit by the patient to the doctor. Second, a good public health nurse should visit the mother to help her interpret the doctor's instructions. Third, there should be good hospital facilities for all abnormal cases. Fourth, there should be free clinics where mothers of the poorer classes can go and receive good prenatal care.

"In Chilton County there are no prenatal clinics and only one public health nurse. Mothers cannot be saved unless this situation is corected by the addition of at least one nurse to the Health Department."

Fertilized with MIXED FERTILIZER
ARCADIAN NITRATE
THE AMERICAN SODA

..A Sign of GROWTH!

Nitrogen, Phosphoric Acid and Potash—each has its job to do in producing bigger yields of better quality crops at lower cost. The proper amounts and proportions of the necessary elements provide plant-food balance. Nitrogen is the important growth element in plant-food balance. ARCADIAN NITRATE OF SODA, used as a top-dressing or side-dressing, supplies quick-acting nitrogen to supplement mixed fertilizer when extra nitrogen is needed for plant-food balance.

Arcadian Nitrate of Soda on Cotton, as a supplement to mixed fertilizer well-balanced with phosphoric acid and potash, produces your yield of cotton on fewer acres at lower cost per pound. This means more land for soil-conserving crops, more chance for the soil to grow its own organic matter, less loss from erosion and more actual farm income. ARCADIAN side-dressing is needed when your cotton fertilizer contains less than 6% nitrogen.

Arcadian Nitrate of Soda on Corn used as a side-dressing when stalks are knee-high, encourages rapid growth and develops a large leaf area to enable the plant to manufacture the starches, sugars, fats, protein and fiber which build the ears and fill them to the tip with high-quality corn. Soil on which corn is grown should be supplied with plenty of phosphoric acid and potash, either in complete fertilizer at planting or by heavy fertilization of the previous crop.

Methodist Church

present a challenge to the youth of today.

One of the sweetest and most spiritual services was held on Sunday morning, April 16th, when the pastor preached a beautiful sermon on "Heaven." At the conclusion of the sermon the congregation participated in a "Flower Service," when individuals aviled themselves of the opportunity to express their esteem and love for pastor, friends and relatives.

The pastor and the members of the Baptist Church united wth the Methodists for worship at the final service of the meeting. Members of all congregations in Clanton were most faithful in their attendance at the services.

The Methodist Church received eight admissions on profession of faith and four by certificates. The Church as a whole received a great spiritual awakening, the members were made aware anew of their responsibilities and privileges in futhering the Kingdom of Christ.

The members of the Methodist Church and the people of our community are greatly blest in having the thoughts and the heart of a great leader and pastor placed so beautifully before them during this series of meetings

WELCOME BACK—

Our friend, Mr. C. E. Stapp, after an absence of several years, is returning to Clanton to make his home. He has legions of friends in Chilton County, who will welcome him back. His popularity with the farmers of our county could be attested to by the many handshakes exchanged with them on his visits back here from Selma. He served Chilton County as County Agent for several years, and his friends are numbered by his acquaintances. He was the first President of the Clanton Kiwanis Club, and will those Kiwanians be glad to have him back!

DISPLAYS INTEREST—

A well known and influential citizen of Clanton gave the News a ring the other morning and added his hearty agreement to our statement last week that we could do with more cattle raising in Chilton, and that profit could be reaped from this industry here, although pasture land is not as abundant as in other sections of the state. We heard a prominent farmer-business man of Clanton make the statement some time ago that he cleared more money from the sale of two fat calves, which required much less trouble to raise, than he would have cleared from a bale of cotton. If cotton is worthless, why grow it when something else is in greater demand.

This Observer didn't complete his observations last week, regarding the work on the City streets. Our attention was called to this by a good friend for which we are appreciative. We stated last week that the work of applying the priming substance to the strets was underway, and closed the paragraph by asking if our readers had noted the fact that the street on which the Mayor's home was located was to be surfaced from curb to curb. Now, our friend tells us that there are several streets that are being surfaced from curb to curb, and that this was made possible by the property owners paying extra for the added surfacing to the regular twenty-feet thoroughfare. For instance, the street we referred to last week required something over two hundred dollars additional for the extra surfacing, and was paid by the progressive citizens and property owners on said street. Same applies to the other streets being surfaced all the way. Sorry if our failure to observe thoroughly has caused ill feelings or embarrassment to anyone, but you know it was pretty sticky traveling around town last week, and we just failed to make the proper observation in this instance.

Bessemer Man, 35, Drowns In Coosa

George Butler, 35, of Bessemer, was drowned at 10:30 a. m. Sunday when a boat in which he and three other persons were fishing near Little Joe's Fishing Camp on the Coosa River, near Sylacauga, was reported to have overturned in midstream as occupants were shifting positions in the boat.

Butler, unable to swim, was reported to have drowned almost immediately. The other occupants were reported to have saved themselves by clingng to the boat until rescued.

Mrs. Butler, who accompanied her husband on the fishing trip, was at the nearby camp when her husband lost his life.

The body had not been recovered at at late hour Sunday.

LEO THOMPSON FLIES TO SAFFORD, ARIZ., ABELINE, TEX.

Leo Thompson, manager of the Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Co., here, who owns a plane, made a trip to Safford, Arizona and other points west last week, and reported on his return, strong winds and plenty of wide-open spaces.

Mr. Thompson left Clanton about 7:30 last Wednesday morning and flew to Abeline, Texas, where he spent the night, continuing on to Safford, Arizona Thursday.

On the return trip Mr. Thompson spent Friday night in Odessa, Texas, returning to Meredian, Miss., Saturday where he visited his brother,. He returned to Clanton Sunday.

A peculiarity about this trip was that Mr. Thompson had a puncture when he landed in Abeline, and stated that he had some difficulty in extracting several of the big thorns that are typical of the Texas plains, from the tires of his landing gear. Strong head winds going and coming made flying difficult, and at times these winds reached a velocity of sixty miles an hour, Mr. Thompson stated.

We were not supposed to tell this part, but Leo let it slip that he went Corrigan for a while when his compass stuck, throwing him off his course about thirty miles. However, there's most always landing room on the Texas plains, and this was soon straightened out.

Stapps Purchase Home Of G. C. Walker

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stapp have recently purchased and moved into the G. C. Walker home. The Stapps have returned here to make their home, from Selma, where they have resided since leaving Clanton about five years ago.

Mr. Stapp served Chilton County as County Agent for a number of years, and was a popular leader in civic enterprises, and was well liked by the farmers of the County with whom he worked. Their many friends are extending them a cordial welcome back to Clanton and Chilton County.

DeSoto State Park Opened Last Monday

BEAUTIFUL DE SOTO FALLS IN DE SOTO STATE PARK

Desoto State Park with its famous falls, minature "Grand Canyon" and newly developed campng and recreation facilities was opened to the public Monday.

Residents of Ft. Payne, Mentone and other communities in the area participated in the program marking the formal opening of the 4,649-acre public playground.

DeSoto Park is one of five recreation areas to be opened in Alabama this year by the state parks division of the Conservation Department, headed by W. G. Lunsford.

Outstanding attraction of the park, which comprises parts of DeKalb and Cherokee Counties, is beautiful DeSoto Falls, with a deep, 15-mile canyon.

But there are man-made conveniences —recently added—including 14 cabins, a dining room, picnic facilities, golf course and hiking trails.

The DeSoto River is a moderate-sized stream flowing through a narrow valley and foaming over a rocky bed between low clifs. There are foot trails winding along the river, up narrow ravines and through the woods, with constantly changing vistas of scenic beauty.

There are many kinds of timber in the erea and a profusion of flowering plants and shrubs from early Spring until late Fall.

The May's Gulf area, which is a part of the park, is called "the Colorado Grand Canyon on a reduced scale." It is a canyon cut by the river about 15 miles long, half a mile wide and 500 feet deep.

In some places there are vertical rocks 100 feet high. From Mentone southward through the main developed area there is a parkway.

COMMISSIONERS REDEEM BONDS; COUNTY FINANCES IN FINE SHAPE

(EDITORIAL)

The splendid condition of Chilton County's finances is clearly shown in the Treasurer's semi-annual report to the Commissioners Court in this issue of the News. The departmental funds show a combined balance of more than a hundred thousand dollars—each department reflecting a healthy, prosperous condition.

Tuesday of this week the County Commissioners redeemed two bonds that would not have become due until 1941, and Probate Judge J. Lee Smith stated that they would be glad to redeem more of such bonds if they could be found.

We do not believe there is another county in the State in better condition, when all things are considered, than Chilton.

RE-PAVING OF HIGHWAY IN NEAR FUTURE

BIRMINGHAM-MONTGOMERY ROAD WILL BE RE-WORKED; GOOD NEWS TO CLANTON

Work on remodeling the Birmingham-Montgomery highway has already started near Jemison, where state convicts are being used in preliminary work of widening and straightening the thoroughfare.

Joe McCoy, writing in Sunday's Montgomery Advertiser says an entirely new process of reconstruction is to be on this project.

"In repairing the Montgomery-Birmingham Highway, shoulders will be widened to 58 feet, and two feet will be added to the paved surface on each side, increasing the present width of 18 feet, to 22 feet. No attempt will be made to repair from 70 to 75 miles of concrete paving on this road, which is cracked, uneven and rapidly dsintegrating under modern heavy motor-traffic conditions

"The reasons why all thought of reconditioning the concrete was dismisss ed from construction, Mr. Sherlock, was that all known methods of repairinging concdete slab paving of that type were so costly as to be prohibitive. He pointed out it was laid at a time when concrete paving was still in the experimental stage; that engineers knew only a fractional part of what they now know about it, and that manufacturers of cement at that time had

"AS ROUGH AS THE BIRMINGHAM HIGHWAY

That popular synonym will have to be abandoned before long. The Dixon administration is determined to make one of the most-traveled roads in Alabama a first-rate highway, and not the rough, treacherous road which the Birmingham-Montgomery higway is today.

Few, if any, public roads in this state are more widely traveled than the 100-mile stretch between the Alabama capital and the Alabama metropolis. Yet there isn't a paved highway in the state that is rougher or in greater need of repair. For many months workmen have been constantly at the task of repairing the holes in the highway, but no sooner do they get one mile patched than two more need patching.

Highway Director Sherlock's experts will not have an easy task before them when they start repaving that long stretch. The greatest care should be exercised in building a highway that will stand up in the future under even heavier traffic than we now have. The highway has long been a disgrace to the state, and should be improved at once. —Montgomery Advertiser.

Mark Remarks:

We are opposed to all class legislation, and the granting of special privileges to corporations and individuals through legislative enactment.

* * * *

No greater harm can be done Alabama's public school system—than for the educational leaders to undertake to force through the Legislature an additional tax of any kind at this time.

* * * *

The ancient Egyptian monarchs killed themselves after ruling seven years. Wonder if that couldn't be modernized and streamlined along with a lot of other present-day fashions.

* * * *

A government operated under influence of organized propaganda, instead of a government of, for, and by the people, was not what was intended by the founders of the Nation.

* * * *

The Federal Reserve Bank reports the amount of idle money in U. S. banks to be $4,000,000,000. If the theory that a bank can loan $8 for each $1 idle money, the potential power of the banks of the nation is $32,000,000,000—enough financial "energy" to put every industrial wheel in America in motion.

* * * *

Politics Looked On As Science—headlne. If politics is a science what is "Jitterbug-swing?"

Governor Dixon has no doubt learned more than he knew before about the Gimmie Gimmie boys.

Seems like old times to be reading in the papers about miners' strikes just at the beginning of the coal-buying season. We may look for a strike settlement and a rise in the price of coal within a few weeks—then we'll know "happy days are here again"

* * * *

Saving Democracy—headline. Quit trying to "save democracy" and go to work doing something worthwhile and democracy will save itself.

According to Dr. Gallup's latest poll, citizens of the United States are in favor of furnishing money and war materials to France and England, but do not favor the idea of sending men to Europe to fight. That is exactly the position taken by this nation at the beginning of the great World War. If we send the money and munitions, the men will follow.

Coosa River And The New Seal

While looking at the map on Alabama's new Great Seal, so beautifully pictured in the magazine section of Sunday's Birmingham News-Age-Herald, I could not help noticing that the map was not drawn to scale. For instance the head of the Coosa, Alabama's longest river, is pictured as being somewhere near Talladega or Anniston, when it should have been shown coming down from the Oostanaula beyond Rome, Ga., through Cherokee, and by Gadsden, near the great Guntersville Dam on the Tennessee River.

The Warrior River's source is shown as being somewhere near Arab on Sand Mountain.

Could it be possible that the artist who drew the map for Alabama's new seal, was so ignorant of Alabama geography?

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Over fifty years ago some miners in a middle Western state became enraged with the management of the company and to get revenge they ignited a car load of coal and pushed it down the shaft into the mine All ablaze it struck the bottom and transmitted its flame to the coal under the earth. For more than a half a century that fire has burned, consuming twelve million tons of coal and has burned over an area of ten square miles. Now and then a road or a farm will fall in, having been made unsafe by fire. Farmers have dug up roasted potatoes. All efforts to quench the fire have been fruitless. All of this is a parable of human life. People in a moment of anger, or of yielding to some temptation, start fires deep in their soul which they can not put out. Gradually these fires eat away the power and of their lives. All the while tragedy plays everywhere.

One day the House of Lords in Great Britain made a visit to an Industrial plant to inspect the men at work. They observed that all the men at work pushed their wheelbarrows, carryng their loads before them Finally a man came along pulling his wheelbarrow behind him. One of the Lords asked him why he drew his wheel behind him? The reply of the workman was eloquent with common sense. Tppng his hat here is what he said, "Because my Lord, I am tired of seeing the blasted thing." Doubtless this philosopher knew that he was carrying a load, but he did not want it ever before him. When a man can see nothing but the load he is carrying it will finally kill him. Friends, look for something in life other than the burdens you bear.

I have seen the tear in the eyes of the whites, blacks, yellows and reds. The tear is universal. This is so truly a fact that the world is spoken of as "A vale of tears." Even the Bible says "In this world we shall have tribulation," and it is so. Then what is a tear? About the best defiinition I ever saw is this "A tear is agony in solution." Sickness, suffering, disappointment, separations, sorrows and death, all produce one language the world around. On the campus of Cornell universty there is a marble bench on which is carved these words by a graduating class "To those who shall sit here rejoicing and to those who shall sit here weeping, greeting to you. So have we done in our time." A smile and a tear—the universal language.

It was my privilege to attend the funeral of an aged minister. He had come to the close of a life of sacrifice and now his arms were folded in peace across his bosom. A calm smile of victory could be seen upon his face. Another minister of snow white hair stood in the pulpit to pay tribute to the warrior in the casket. The wind was blowing without and almost drowned out the voices of the men in the pulpit, but a deep feeling of awe filled every heart. Never shall I forget that moment when this man of God said "If our brother could speak at this moment here is what he would say, Sunset and evening star, and one clear call for me; and may there be no moaning at the bar, when I put out to sea. Then bending over his comrade of many a spiritual battle he said calling him by name, "At last my dear friend, God has wiped away all tears from your eyes and now you are at rest." There is an end of tears for all of us.

On a ranch in Texas I saw the owner of cattle as he drove a large herd into a small enclosure for the night. The cows were of a different color and had many ways of self defense. I wondered if they would quietly settle down for the night, or would they fight and gore until the break of day. Early the next morning I went out to the pen to see what had taken place during the night, and there they were upon the ground sleeping and no blood shed anywhere. This world is the enclosure into which all races and peoples have been crowded. We are of various colors and national strength. The question now is: "Will we settle down to live together in peace and harmony, or will we use our means and methods of defense and fight it out until we destroy each other?" It seems that we are preparing to fight it out and not abide with each other in peace

Health Officer Advises Mothers

Helpful hints in the care of infants and pre-school children were given Chilton County mothers this week in a weekly bulletin from the Health Department. Caution against common mistakes usually made on the advice of the relatives or friends was the keynote of Dr. Sturkie's discussion.

"Many young mothers try to follow the instructons of neighbors," he declared, "instead of consultng the family physician. As a consequence many infants are today being fed improperly and given unsound care generally. Irregular feeding of infants is probably one of the most common errors seen. The stomach of the infant has a capacity of 1 ounce at birth and 4½ ounces at 3 months of age. In disregard of this fact many mothers feed the infant whenever it cries, continually overfilling the stomach. The average infant should be on a 4 hour schedule with 6 feedings in 24 hours up until the 3rd month when 5 feedings should suffice. Pre-school children too are often allowed to eat between meals when only fruit should be allowed.

"Beginning at the fifth or sixth month infants may be fed cereal, strained vegetables, and egg yolk. Cod liver oil and orange juice should be started early and given until the child is at least two years of age. By the ninth or tenth month the breast fed infant should be weaned. If the baby is on a formula, whole milk without any added sugar can be given at this time. All cows milk and drinking water should be boiled for children under two years of age to prevent diarrhea and colitis. Milk should be boiled three minutes with constant stirring, allowed to cool and poured into a jar which has been sterilized by boilng. A serving of fresh mea given three to four times a week for children from 12 to 18 months (scraped beef or liver) and daily for older children is an important item in the diet.

1½ pint of whole milk daily.

Fruit daily including raw fruit such as oranges, grapefruit, apples.

Two fresh vegetables daily and a leafy vegetable at least 3 times a week.

A starchy food daily, such as potatoes, rice, or macaroni.

One egg daily.

A serving of fresh meat daily by the time the child is 18 months old, and before that 3 or 4 times a week.

Cereal once daily (cooked cereal for child under 4 years of age).

Bread and butter 2 or 3 times a day.

Cod liver oil daily, especially for children under 2 years of age."

The Seniors are in the spotlight now, they've worked twelve years for these few exciting weeks but maybe the diploma was a partial incentive. They were entertained at a banquet last Friday, a Dutch affair and that's one time that the Juniors were appreciated Junior-Senior proms always seem to mean new clothes even for the boys. Nell Rockett was all "dolled up" in orchid; Olive Rainer was blossomed out in a flowered dress—quite becoming too—and Mrs. Bonnie Hand looked simply fetching in white. Mary Ellen Higgins, stole the show with a novelty tap dance—it's always worth the price to see her dance. Added note: Auburn "delegates were present. along with several other outof-towners—Information please: We have been wondering who the very collegiate looking newcomer is P. They enjoyed a camping trip —in case you haven't guessed ....and blue makes Sarah Edgar's eyes even a brighter blue ... "Teena" Wyatt (and I hope I have the name right) added to Clanton's Friday night social calandar when she entertained at a party—evening dresses and all the trimmings.... Catherine Foss hopped over to Georgia for a few days last week....there's one thing bright about a rainy day now—the umbrellas, and to think that only a few years ago it would have been simply "awful" for anyone to carry a flaming red one.—I'll see you again next week.

Jail Empty First Time In 5 Years

When we stopped for a moment's visit with our good friend, Sheriff Allen Stewart, last Friday we found him looking mighty lonesome and inquired as to the trouble.

"See those wide open doors," said Mr. Stewart, pointing to the open doors of the county jail, "there's not a single prisoner in there. The doors are unlocked and wide open for the first time in five years."

State transfer agents had just transferred all prisoners convicted during the criminal week of Circuit Court to Kilby, leaving no prisoners on hand. —Prattville Progress.

LOCAL STUDENT ACCEPTED INTO VANDY MEDICAL SCHOOL

Announcement has just been made by Dr. W. S. Leathers, Dean of the Vanderbilt School of Medicine, that Joe Hall Johnson, Clanton, is one of the limited number of students accepted into the Medical School for the session beginning next September.

There were a total of 850 applications for entrance into the Medical School last year. Only fifty-two students are accepted into the freshman class each year, and annually the majority of this group receive their pre-medical work at Vanderbilt.

The $1,000,000 addition to the Vanderbilt Medical School has been in use for almost a year and adds greatly to the clinical facilities of the Medical School and Hospital, especially in the departments of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Pediatrocs, Preventive Medicine and Public Health, and Radiology. The X-ray facilities have been greatly enlarged and improved and there are increased accomodations for teachings.

A recent inspection of the Vanderbilt Medical School and Hospital by the American Medical Association resulted in placing Vanderbilt in the group of twelve schools which received the highest rank.

Trucking Activities In Baldwin County

Track crews of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad have been busily engaged for the past several days in adding new sidetrack and switches, at an estimated cost of over $25,000 at Foley, Summerdale, Robertsdale and Loxley for handling the increased amount of farm produce to be shipped this season from Baldwin County.

Between 7,000 and 8,000 cars of truck crops are expected to be shipped from points along the branch line and plans have been made by railroad officials to add additional switching and special train crews for the rush perishable season.

In addition, extensions and new shipping platforms are being built at all of the loading points.

The South Baldwin section has taken a leading role in the annual shipment of early potatoes, corn, cucumbers and other crops, and the 18 miles of railroad between Loxley and Foley, as a result, has become one of the best revenue producing lines in the South. Of the total carlot shipments expected to be loaded this season, approximately 5,500 cars will be filled with potatoes for consignment to northern and eastern markets.

Used car sales in the same period totaled 41,482 units, a gain of 4,856 over the sales one month ago, making an aggregate new and used car total of 63,225 for the period, the announcement said.

WOMAN, DEAD FOR 5 MINUTES, CALLS IT BEAUTIFUL SLEEP

Toppled Over While Talking to Children; Revived by Physician.

NEW YORK.—"It was like a beautiful sleep. I felt nothing, knew nothing. I was amazed when they told me I had been 'dead' for five minutes."

That was the reaction of Mrs. Bella Futterman, a Bronx housewife, whose heart stopped beating for five minutes until it was coaxed back into action with injections of the powerful adrenalin, artificial respiration and inhalators.

To Dr. Maurice Roy Goodwin and his nurse went full credit for the medical miracle which restored an apparently dead woman to life.

Talking to Children.

Mrs. Futterman was talking to her children in her apartment when she toppled off the sofa, unconscious from an asthmatic attack.

Four minutes after he was summoned Dr. Goodwin arrived and, finding no trace of heart action or breathing, pronounced her dead. Not waiting to remove his overcoat, he started artificial respiration.

Adrenalin was injected into Mrs. Futterman's heart by Mathilda Pinsker, a nurse living in the building. A police emergency squad was summoned, but before its arrival Mrs. Futterman breathed faintly.

Given Oxygen.

To aid her feeble fight for life, inhalators were used and she was given oxygen for several hours. Her breathing became normal only after three tanks of oxygen were used.

Mrs. Futterman said:

"The doctor is wonderful. I told him I had an attack and then fainted. It was not until last night they told me I had been dead.

"God was wonderful to me. I was allowed to come back to take care of my husband and children. I pleaded with them to take care of themselves, and especially my baby, Sammie, when I thought I was going to die. But now I can do it."

She has suffered several previous attacks, but none so serious, and she cannot entirely recover in this climate. She must go to some dry climate, preferably Arizona, before she can regain her health.

Flying Bullet Acts as Its Own Photographer

CHICAGO.—Two Armour Tech research workers are taking pictures of a bullet in flight in what they believe is a record exposure time—one-millionth of a second.

Dr. F. W. Godwin and A. O. Walker place a gun aimed at a piece of glass so that the flying bullet will pass between two poles of a spark gap. Gases from the firing and bullet trail the missile and set off the spark gap.

The discharge of 38,000 volts in the partial vacuum behind the bullet provides the illumination for the picture. The camera shutter is open and the film exposed for the spark flash lasting only one-millionth of a second.

Godwin and Walker said their method was believed the first application of a bullet photographing itself with no outside or independent mechanical equipment causing the tripping of a shutter to discharge a spark for illumination.

FROM MRS. TOWNS

"Mammoth Springs, Ark.
"April 21, 1939.

"Editor, Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama.

"Dear Sir:

"Please find enclosed money order, for which send me the Chilton County News. I miss the Alabama and Chilton County papers so much. The ones I see here are The Commercial Appeal, Memphis paper; Arkansas Gazette, a Little Rock paper, and St. Louis Daily Globe. All these papers are full of news, and yet no news that I care to read.

"Mammoth Spring is a summer resort, however, right now we are having some mighty cool weather for things to be in full bloom in Alabama, as I left them. Up here the trees are just now beginning to turn green a bit.

"The town gets its name from Mammoth Spring, which is the largest spring in the world. It has an outlet of six hundred thousands gallons of water per minute, and the temperature of the water remains fifty-eight degrees F. the year round.

"It is only two mies to Thayer, Mo. We have to cross the Mississippi-Arkansas State line twice to get to the Arkansas Depot, here in Mammoth Spring.

"The Ozarks are quite a bit larger than our Shades and Red Mountains. Ths is a very mountainious country.

Spring River flows back of the hotel, which is a very beautiful stream. It is so clear you can see the big white fish swimming about in it, and in fact, all the streams. I haven't been fishing, but think I shall try it from my room which is on second floor. The big white fish are much more delicious than our muddy water fish.

"The oldest home in Arkansas is on the Hotel property. They open it every summer for tourists to visit It has been here since the Civil War. There is also a Government Fish Hatchery here in Mammoth Spring, and the largest fish hatchery in the world is not far from here at a place called Lone Oak. Most of the houses here are of stone. There is so much rock on the hills until it looks like snow at a distance.

"We Alabamians have never thought of Arkansas as being a civilized State, however, I have found out that it is a rich state, both in mineral wealth resorts, fish hatcheries, as well as other natural resources.

"My address is:

"Mrs. W. P. Towns,
care of Hotel Culp,
Mammoth Spring, Ark.

"Yours very truly,

BEEF CATTLE PRICES

(By Tom McCord)

No better student of market trends livestock lives than James E. Poole Chicago. His reports and articles a widely used throughout the Unite States. In as much as every cattl man in Alabama wants to know ho long the present favorable cattle pric will hold I will quote two paragrap from the Poole article in the curre issue of the Hereford Journal. In spi of the competition indicated by the se ond paragraph practically guarante that cattle prices will hold the strength until grass cattle begin to r Poole says:

"Shortfed steers, now selling in t $9.50 to $$11.50 price bracket, may in vulnerable position; at least th yield on any price raid. Processors a evidently determined to prevent repe tion of the runaway market of 19 that culminated in nation-wide a disastrous beef strike. As it is, a spre of $10 to $11.50 per cwt is taking large portion of the "corned" ste and yearlings, beef cost on the rail voring prompt distribution althou beef is getting keen competiton fr other and cheaper foods, especially f and poultry. Long Island duck gro ers recently flooded urban mark with their product as far West as C cago, selling it 40 to 60 per cent than beef and putting sufficient ene behind the campaign to adversely fect the sale of all animal foods. P is cheap, no precedent existing a 13.75 top on cattle and 7.25 on h with the top on lambs at 10.25. Un these circumstances maintanence of cattle prices is a trade surprise."

Second paragraph: "The entire N American continent is being ransac for beef regardless of quality. Ka City is getting "swamp angels" f Louisana; Indanapolis and St. Lo 'three year-old yearlings' from Ark sas and Tennessee; Eastern mar the bovine riff raff of the Apalac terrain. Even the material to structing "hot dogs" and hambu steak" is scarce.

Southern Women Eager to Tell!

"One is bound to be gratified by the enthusiasm of Southern women for CARDUI!" says one of the Touring Reporters now conducting a Query in Southern cities.

"Of the 1297 CARDUI users we have seen so far," she said, "1206—or 93 out of every 100—said it definitely benefitted them!"

CARDUI'S remarkable success in helping weak, rundown women who suffer from headache, depression, nervousness, and other symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition, is explained by the way it promotes appetite and digestion, and so builds physical resistance. Try CARDUI!

ROAD

not developed the process of thoroughly pulverizing their product that now makes concrete paving so durable. Some other States that paved with concrete then, he added, are having or have had, the same experience with this type of early work, with which Alabama is now having to deal on the Montgomery-Birmingham route.

"Alabama's Highway Department will apply the same system in repairing this road, he said, that has been successfully employed by other States in handling the same problem, which he described as follows:

Power-shovel machines will be used. Shovels will be detached. In their place a huge steel bal lwill be suspended at the end of the cable. The steel ball will be raised and, suddenly released, will fall on the concrete, cracking it up like an enormous hammer. Pockets under the slabs at points where the orignal base has settled or receded from other causes will, in this way be revealed and filled.

"When the cracking - up process is completed shoulders will be reconstructed to standard width; sand will be spread over the broken concrete until interstices between fragments are filled. On top of this a smooth, modern clay-gravel base will then be spread and on that base will go the new and wider bituminous paving.

"The work is to be done with convict labor, Mr. Sherlock said, and the process of transformation wll go forward by gradual stages until completed.

This & That: Popular meeting places in midtown are Grand Central information booth, the Astor lobby and in front of the Paramount building . . . Downtown, in front of the Stock Exchange, Trinity church, No. 1 Wall street, and the George Washington statue . . . Uptown, Grant's tomb, various entrances to Central park and streets along Riverside drive . . . Ilsa Vaile defines pedestrians as persons usually found in front of automobiles . . . A magazine article stated that there was an Enoch Light who is a member of Father Divine's cult . . . Which caused the band leader at the Taft no end of worry . . . Despite the fact that the two Enoch Lights were differentiated in a broadcast over a national hookup . . . Doris Rhodes took vocal lessons from a teacher who knew how to teach singing . . . But it was otherwise with his advertising . . . His window sign read: "You are never too old to start a career in music. Enroll now. Special pains given to beginners."

Continuing: Peter Van Steeden says the English spell humor, h-u-m-o-u-r because, having less of it, they make more of it . . . Bums are not allowed to enter California, reports Ben Bernie, unless they have movie contracts . . . and Alice Frost says that when Hollywood couple marry nowadays the first thing they have is a little divorce . . . New knowledge: Front bumpers were offered on a number of automobiles as early as 1906 as "optional equipment" . . . and in 1907 the automotive industry used 70,000,000 square feet of laminated safety glass . . . Kay Kyser received this ad from a laundry last week: "Why kill your wife? Let us do the dirty work for you" . . . Pitchmen fear the Forty-second Street association more than they do the police . . . Swimming Motion Found Way to Fight Snowslide

WINNIPEG, MAN.—If you find yourself engulfed in a snowslide just swim for all you are worth.

That is the advice of R. B. Miller of Jasper, Alta. He said it's the only chance in the world you have to survive.

"If you swim—just as if you were in water—you may keep yourself near the surface of the snow, which rolls over you in waves, all the time forcing you under. By swimming you may end up near the top when the slide stops."

IN MEMORY OF OBIE SMITH

It was last October, the 10th day,
When Jesus called dear daddy away.
From his home he had to die,
He couldn't tell us all good-bye.
But I often feel that it came to his mind
Of the many ones he was leaving behind.
Although dear Jesus knows the best,
And I've great hopes that he's at rest.
We loved him more than tongue can tell,
We said good-bye, but not farewell.
And I hope some day to be,
With him over the silent sea.
So let us pray and do our best,
And God will take us home to rest,
Where we will dwell forever more,
—A daughter, Jewell Headley.

THE HAZARDS OF FIRE ON FARM LANDS TOLD

Not many farmers have fertilizer to burn, but that's just what they do when they burn crop and other vegetative residue in cleaning up about the farm in the spring, according to Mr. James H. Wood, Camp Supt., of the Soil Conservation Service in the CCC Camp near Clanton, Alabama.

Cotton and corn stalks actually contain part of the fertilizer applied to those crops last year and they will return it to the soil if the stalks are plowed under rather than being burned, Mr. Wood says.

Even grass and other vegetative material adds plant food to the soil and all vegetative residue adds organic residue adds organic matter which makes the soil easier to work and enables it to absorb more moisture.

Erosion is much easier to control on soil with a high organic content, because a part of the water soaks into the soil instead of running off and carrying with it particles of topsoil, he explained.

Burning woods, hedgerows, fence rows, and other areas which are not cultivated leaves the soil bare and exposed to surface washing. This practice destroys wildlife food and cover and in woodland it destroys tree seed and young trees.

FLAG AT HALF-MAST

For the second time in its history the flag at Camp S.C.S. 7, Clanton, Alabama, was flying at half-mast, honoring a deceased member of C.C.C. Co. 3481.

When revielle sounded Thursday, April 12, 1939, and the boys were preparing for physical exercise it was discovered that member William J. Lewis had passed away wihile asleep.

Mr. Lewis had only recently enrolled in the C.C.C. and had been with us less than two weeks. During that time he had become very popular with everyone connected with the service. His foreman pronounced him "a good boy."

The parents and other loved ones of this young man have the sympathy of the Using Service Staff. We regret the passing of this young man very much.

FIRST CHUKAR EGGS

Fourteen eggs from Chukar partridges were gathered April 6 at the State game farm in Autauga County and placed for incubation. These were the first eggs laid by the 11 pairs of Chukars with which the department is experimenting this year to learn if the Asiatic birds will grow in Alabama. If the Chukars prove amenable to artifical propagation, it is planned to distribute them in several of the mountainous North Alabama counties. This game bird is a native of Asia and has been known to live in high altitudes among rocks where food is scarce.

Mr. Carson Eiland, Mr. Sam Bentley and Mr. John Dickey spent the week end in Clanton to attend the Junior-Senior dance Frday night.

ACTION!

We Pledged . . . The Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee five weeks ago gave David E. Dunn, former ABC Board Administrator, full authority to direct the self-regulation program of the brewing industry in this State.

Why? Because law violations in a small minority of retail outlets threatened public respect for a scientific industry paying more than $5,000,000 each year in taxes and wages to Alabama and Alabamians.

In keeping with the United Brewers Industrial Foundation's national self-discipline program, Mr. Dunn accepted his new responsibility with a promise of ACTION. To the challenge of the few retail outlets flagrantly violating the law, Mr. Dunn answered: "Such places must clean up or close up!"

Performance . . . With Alabama's Alcoholic Beverage Control Board at work on the same front, Mr. Dunn was able to carry the program of the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributing Committee direct to this headquarters of official action.

Acting on case reports from Mr. Dunn, the ABC Board revoked the licenses of three retail beer outlets, indefinitely suspended one retail liquor license, and cited three outlets for hearing on April 28.

On cases initiated by its own agents, the ABC Board revoked five licenses, suspended eleven, and cited six licensees to appear at the April 28 hearing.

To The People Of Alabama!

"Through the fine cooperation of Chairman E. Roy Albright and Dr. J. H. McCormick of the ABC Board, our work is keeping pace with our original hopes," says Mr. Dunn, on behalf of the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee.

And to the owners of those few retail beer outlets where objectionable conditions are permitted to surround the sale of beer, Mr. Dunn speaks plainly:

"The results should leave no one in doubt that we mean business!"

On this record of performance, and on a pledge of continued action in the public interest, the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee is going right ahead!

"I'LL BE IN THERE SOON" SAYS LAME-LEGGED HAYES

By HOWARD ROBERTS

(In the Chicago Daily News)

Sweetwater, Texas, April 6—Jackie Hayes, the slim Alabamian who has guarded second base for the White Sox for several seasons, is the kind of fellow whose worth isn't truly appreciated until he's gone.

At first you don't pay much attention to him. Then you begin to realize perhaps he's a fair player. A bit later you come to the conclusion he's a pretty darned good infielder. And finally, when injury takes him from the lineup and you see others in his place you come to the realization he's a truly great second baseman.

All this is said with respect to Eric McNair, who is the Sox second baseman at least until Hayes' right knee, from which a chipped bone was removed last winter, has mended which probably won't be until June at the earliest. McNair is a fine ballplayer and has been little short of sensational all spring, particularly at bat. But he is essentially a shortstop, rather than a second baseman and, excellent as his play has been, he isn't a Hayes defensively.

Great at Pivoting

"Hayes unquestionably is the finest double play pivotman in baseball," declared Manager Jimmie Dykes in a discussion the other day, and Coaches Billy Webb and "Muddy" Ruel nodded agreement

"He's more than that," amended Webb. "He can get a throw away faster than any second baseman in the game, either on a double play or on a ground ball What's more, he can come up with that tough play and throw that will mean the ball game I can recall lots of games he's saved for the Sox with a great stop and throw to retire the last batter with the tying run coming in from third."

Hayes is confident he'll be back in action sooner than expected. For the last week he has been working out around second base, even trying a few pivots. He still limps noticeably and favors the lame leg but he's far more active than when he reported to training camp. The grounders Webb bats down to him are for the most part directed almost straight toward him so he hasn't had to scamper around and put too much strain on the leg. He'll work into those plays gradually.

Leg Is Weak

"The leg's a little weak, that's all," says Jack. "It doesn't hurt but when I put sudden pressure on it, starting or stopping quickly, it sort of feels like it's going to collapse. That's just weakness which will wear off. I can feel the knee getting stronger every day. I'll be ready to get in there before long."

And when he is ready, Boss Dykes is going to be confronted with a serious problem if McNair continues to hit in the manner he set for himself this spring.

SIDEDRESSING COTTON

During the five-year period, 1934 to 1938, inclusive, the Chilean Nitrate Educational Bureau, in cooperation with the Alabama Association of Future Farmers of America, conducted 322 cotton fertilizer demonstrations throughout the State. The 1934, 1935 and 1936 demonstrations were two acres in size while the 19.7 and 19.8 demonstrations were one-acre plots. The cotton was fertilized before planting with approximately 400 pounds per acre of a Standard low-nitrogen mixed fertilizer, such as 3-85 or 4-8-4, with a sidedressing of 200 pounds per acre of Chilean Nitrate after chopping and before squaring.

It is interesting to note that although acre yields fell off slightly in 1938, the increase due to the sidedressing was about normal. In fact the difference between the highest and lowest returns for the sidedressing for the five-year period was only 35 pounds of seed cotton. This increase in yield is in line with Experiment Station results and approximately what farmers may expect from the side-dressing practice.

Find Custer Order, Cause of Massacre

Paper Discovered in Butt Of Old Army Pistol.

CHICA, CALIF.—A written order of Gen. George Custer to one of his officers in January, 1876, and which is believed to have a direct result on the historic "Custer's Last Stand" four months later has been found here in the butt of an old army pistol.

The discovery was made by Charles Billick, 15 years old, who, through idle curiosity removed the walnut strips from the sides of a rusty old cap and ball pistol—one of many in his father's collection.

From the corner of the metal frame fell a folded bit of paper, yellowed with age. A magnifying glass brought out the message, written in pencil, which read:

"January 28, 1876.

"General Crook: Hold regiment two days before attack Sioux encampment.—General Custer."

The order is believed to be the one which resulted in the attack by General Crook on February 7, 1876, on a Sioux encampment along the Missouri river. It was this attack, some historians believe, that spurred the Sioux tribesmen to the foray of June 25, 1876, which resulted in the massacre of Custer and troops of the Seventh cavalry.

The writing on the note has been established as that of Custer, by comparison with other existing specimens of his writings.

Further examination of the pistol has revealed the fact that it belonged to a Capt. C. A. Newton, whose name is written in pencil on the under side of one of the walnut slabs. An effort is now being made through the war department at Washington to ascertain to what unit Newton was attached.

George Billick, whose son found the Custer note, remembers that he purchased the pistol 12 years ago from a second-hand dealer in Alturas, Calif. The weapon was made by E. Remington & Sons, and patented September 14, 1858.

The son of the second-hand man from whom Billick purchased the pistol is acquainted with the son of the man from whom his father purchased it and an effort will be made to track it back.

Children's Eyes Change Color as They Grow Older

Usually the eyes of white children do not become fully colored until several months after birth. The iris, the colored diaphragm of the eye, appears a slate-blue at birth because of the dark pigment at the back of the eye which shows through, according to the Better Vision institute. White, yellow or reddish brown pigment is deposited in the iris, which, against the dark pigment behind, gives rise gradually to gray, hazel or brown eyes. In blue-eyed persons very little pigment is deposited in the iris, while in albinos there is very little dark pigment at the back of the iris, the blood vessels imparting a pink coloration.

Cotton Council Seeks New Wrap For Bales

Memphis, Tenn.—The National Cotton Council set out today to do something about the use of jute instead of cotton as a wrapping for cotton bales.

A five-man committee was set up to study marketing cotton on a net-weight basis. The theory back of this is that the present practice of paying for gross weight encourages use of the cheaper but heavier jute, adding about 24 pounds in wrapping and ties.

Oscar Johnston, council president, said government statistics estimate 200,000 pounds of cotton will be used annually as wrapping if it replaces jute.

Named to the committee were: E. O. Jewell, of New Orleans, chairman; Cole Ward, of Memphis; C. A. Day, of Waco, Texas; T. N. Duret, of Columbia, S. C., and C. D. Patterson of Decatur, Ala.

STATE CROP SITUATION IS REPORTED GOODWORK RUSHED

Excellent stands of cotton were reported from early seedings in South Alabama this week as farmers neared completion of plantings of major crops. The state department of agriculture reports that the prospects for winter wheat, potatoes, fruits and pastures are "better than average" and while some sections have inadequate moisture at present, the open weather has given an opportunity to get field work done.

The movement of fertilizer to farms in South Alabama to be used prior to planting was drawing to a close, but the peak of shipments to North Alabama was expected this week.

That farmers of the state were fertilizing more liberally than in 1938 was indicated by the sale of tax tags which were reported by the state department of agriculture to be us eight per cent on April 21 as compared with the same date a year ago. The movement was substantially under that of the record of 1937, however. A heavy advance sale of side dressing materials indicated that farmers expects to make additional applications of fertilizer later Nitrogen to stimulate growth of the plant and potash to control rust, prevent disease and make picking easer will be applied by many farmers n he form of a nitrogen-potash top-dresser..

Experimental evidence indicates that the top dressing application for cotton should be made not later than 35 days after planting or soon after cotton is chopped. If it is delayed until squares form as is the custom in some instances most profitable results are not obtained because the plant does not get the benefit of all the plant food applied.

IF it's "natchel" it's right, Uncle Natchel believes, and that's a pretty safe way to judge anything.

Chilean Nitrate of Soda, the ideal side-dresser, is the only natural nitrate. Nothing takes its place as a side-dressing for cotton and corn. It supplies a natural nourishing lift, just when your crops need it most to grow and produce as they should.

Be sure you use Natural Chilean Soda. It costs no more. You can get it anywhere.

We Observe

By BONNIE HAND

UP AND DOWN MAIN STREET—

We are told that in New York and such large cities the traffic laws designate that an auto must keep moving at a lively pace on the busy thoroughfares. This of course has as its purpose the prevention of traffic jams, delays for motorists, and even to prevent accidents. We have always advocated careful and cautious driving but in the meantime there is no need for snail-like performances by autos on a city's streets. Clanton's traffic is becoming heavier day by day, in fact, it is very noticeable Saturdays have always brought crowds to Clanton, and on this day the traffic in the streets is heavier at times than the City of Birmingham, comparatively. We have noted on the streets of Clanton, large trucks parked for several minutes on the main drag, taking up half the pavement, obstructing the view of other motorists, presenting accident hazards—their drivers either unloading or loading the truck, and even at times completely vanished, their large vehicles preventing the motorist who is unfortunate enough to be parked at the curb where the truck is standing driverless, from going on his way until the driver makes up his mind to leave. But getting back to the snail-like movements of the cars with drivers at the wheel; we have had the following experience, and I am sure you have, too, if you drive in Clanton: Round the corner at the Clanton Cash Store, head down main street toward the highway one block. A string of cars ahead. The light (after staying on caution about as long as it does on go or stop—this particular light has been known to do that) says go. And then comes the test of a man's patience. At the signal go, the car at the head of the line gets off after a delay of several seconds. The following car does likewise, and about the time the third car is in the mood to proceed, the light changes to the old dependable caution. You're still in a pretty good humor as you relax and shove the stick to neutral. At last! there's the signal stop, and you rest on. Now ease the stick into low gear as the overworked caution comes up, and just as you're in the act of dropping your car back into neutral to rest your weary leg—go. But not you; you rest on. The car next in line, its motor having idled during the pause, is shoved into low gear by the driver, who after coming to earth from a day-dream, during which half the go time has elapsed, gives her the gun too fast, and his motor chokes to death. You rest awhile longer. Well, here's old faithful caution again. Our day-dreamer is wide-awake now and rarin to go. After racing his motor during the caution period he's finally off down the steet. The driver in the following car is almost in, the humor you're gradually working into and he gets by, partly on the caution. The next guy is parked, and after honking the horn several seconds the following motorist backs up a bit, eases around and reaches the light while it is on stop, lingers during the lengthy stop and caution interval and gets off at the first sign of go, probably mumbling to himself. Well, the parked auto's driver has finally returned, climbs under the wheel, and pulls off just as the car directly behind is in the act of pulling around him. By the time he gets back into line, there's our friend caution This goes on and on and at last you reach the light, and we won't mention how you feel or what you might be saying, but you've probably forgotten where you were going and that takes some time to remember after that light gets off caution and you are on your way—your leg tired from working the clutch and if it's a steering wheel shift your fingers almost blistered.

Now, one might say an incident like the above happens only once in a while and that we've exaggerated, but this person probably drives very little in Clanton. We believe that an officer stationed on this street at least on Saturdays, whose sole purpose is to direct traffic, would be a big help, and at the same time educate some of our drivers to the proper method of driving on the streets. And about our friend, "caution"—well, he could stand shortening a little, or even eliminating as in the case of the light near the Courthouse.

AND PLENTY OF IT—

Mayor Jones tells us that we'll have water from the new system after Monday of next week. Clanton has reason to be proud of this new waterworks system, and to the Mayor, we doff our hat. He was nstrumental n no small degree in Clanton securing this set-up which plays second to none when it comes to a waterworks system for a city the size of Clanton, and even larger cities.

County Ready With Share Of Paving

Several Chilton County officials and City officials were invited by interested Autauga County parties to join a delegation motoring to Montgomery to the office of C. J. Sherlock, Highway Commissioner, Monday of this week, in an efort to encourage Autauga County officials to bear their part of the paving of the old Birmingham-Montgomery highway for some distance, from where it intersects the paved road to Montgomery.

Chilton officials have voiced their willingness to bear this County's share of the expense, however, there is only a small portion of this road traversing on Chilton County soil. Autauga's share would be a good bit larger than Chilton's, but some discussion has been prevalent regarding this proposed paving for the past several months. Commissioner Sherlock promised the delegation a report stating the cost, etc., for the project in the near future.

The Clanton-Maplesville Baseball team won the opening game of the season last Sunday afternoon on the Maplesville diamond, from the Alabama Mills team by a margin of one run, the score being 10-9.

Both teams seemed evenly matched, but lack of training srowed up on both sides, with errors making their appearance at regular intervals, and battes going down swinging.

The game was tied 9-9 in the last inning, when the Clanton-Maplesville boys chalked up the winning run in the last half, bringing the game to a close.

The local boys are scheduled to meet the Pelham team next Sunday afternoon at 3:30. A cordial invitation is being extended the fans of this section to attend this game

STRAWBERRY CROP THIS YEAR ONE OF BIGGEST

EXTRA QUALITY OF BERRIES AND GOOD PRICES NET GROWERS NEAT SUM

The strawberry crop in Chilton County has been a success in almost every sense of the word this year, according to Roy M. Roper, president of the Clanton Berry Growers Association, who stated this week that his association had shipped over 20,000 crates of the luscious fruit to the markets.

Shipping is expected to continue through the remainder of this week, and on into next week if this section is favored with rain during the next few days. The quality of the berries this season has been excellent, Mr. Roper stated. The price has been steady, and there is an increase in the number of growers this year over previous years The appoximate number of twenty thousand crates sold so far this year exceeds the entire amount sold last year by over 6,000 crates.

Mr. Roper stated that this year the growers are assured what price they will receive for their berries by buyers instead of being consigned to the northern markets, as has sometimes been the custom in the past. Checks are being received by the Association daily and the price has been ranging from $2.25 to $2.50 per crate for the berries.

Mr. Roper expressed his opinion that the growers of strawberries in Chilton County will receive more money this season than ever before in the history of the business. "There is room for more growers of stawberries in our county," he stated. "And in my opinion strawberry growers are receiving more money for their work than they would have received from the production of any other product on their farms," he concluded.

Elected Editor Of Howard Weekly

Miss Harriet Esco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs H. B. Esco of Clanton, was signally honored last Friday when she was elected editor of the Howard Crimson, student weekly, of Howard College.

It was a heated race, decided Friday in a run-off election, when Miss Esco defeated Verna Mae Mitchell of Birmingham. This is a very important student office and Harriett's abiilty already displayed in the field of Journalism, well qualifies her for that position. She will be a Senior next year.

She was recently elected secretary of the Dormitory Council at Mamie Mell Smith Hall.

Miss Mary Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Armstrong, was elected Vice President of the Dormitory Council. This Council takes an active part in student government for women at Howard.

Clanton is justly proud of this recognition that has come to both these young ladies.

Tax Exemption Ruling Is Issued Recently

Montgomery, Ala.—A person certified by a draft board as liable for military service, but discharged on account of physical disability is not entitled to license tax exemptions accorded World War veterans who actually served, Atty Gen. T. S. Lawson has ruled.

Lawson, in an opinion directed to Probate Judge J. Lee Smith, of Chilton County, pointed out provisions of the 1935 act exempting veterans from certain license payments were extended to "bona fide permanent residents of the state of Alabama who served as officers or enlisted men in the United States Army, Navy or Marine Corps during the World War between April 6, 1916, and Nov. 11, 1918."

A discharge from draft, the opnion continued, which does not show that a man was inducted into the armed forces of the United States, does not entitle him to exemptions.

CONSTRUCTION OF NEW SCHOOL BLDG. DELAYED

BOARD DECIDES TO POSTPONE WORK TO AWAIT OUTCOME OF PENDING LEGISLATION

Superintendent of Education Rascoe Maddox informs us that it has seemed best to delay the starting of construction of the new County High School building. Bills are now before Congress providing Federal assistance in the construction of school buildings. This assistance would be in the form of a grant and would make possible the construction of the building under contract and would insure a much better building in a shorter time, than under the plan first considered.

Since the building is for the future as well as the present, the delay seems justified. The desire of the Board of Education is not to give the county and Clanton just another high school building but to give them a building that will be distinctive and a credit to this progressive city and county.

It is hoped that the people will understand that the Board has carefully considered the matter and is convinced that a short delay will in the long run save us time and money and give us a high school building of which we can be justly proud.

NEW WATER SYSTEM READY FOR USE

CITY WILL BEGIN USING WATER FROM NEW SUPPLY NEXT MONDAY

Climaxing several months of work, will be the official opening the new waterworks system set up for the City of Clanton, next Monday morning, according to Mayor C. Fenn Jones, who announced this week that he will take great pleasure in officially bringing into use the new waterworks system when he starts the flow of water from Yellowleaf Creek into the new reservoir next Monday morning.

The public in general is invited to be on hand at the new reservoir and witness the throwing of the switch which will start the flow of water from the creek into the filtering plant and tanks.

The entire new system, built by financial aid of the Federal Government and the sale of City bonds, is an accomplishment Clanton, may well be proud. New and modern in every respect, it ranks second to none for a city the size of Clanton.

Last Fall the City was faced with a shortage of water that but for the cooperation of the citizens of the City, in preserving as far as possible the meager supply coming from the wells, would have become appalling. The long dry periods had caused the shortage, and the the increasing number of consumers in years past, also contributed to the predicament the City found itself in.

An emergency pipe line was extended to nearby Blacksnake Creek, about a mile from the City wells, and enough water was secured to meet the emergency. Finding it impossible to secure an ample supply by driling more wells, City officials finaly decided to go to

Whooping Cough Reported In County

Chilton County is experiencing its usual seasonal outbreak of whooping cough according to a bulletin from the County Health Department. For several weeks rumors of scattered cases over the County have come to the attention of the Health Officer and Public Health nurse. Many of these have been confirmed by investigation and Clanton, Jemison and Verbena are now known to have quite a number of cases.

Dr. S. D. Sturkie, County Health Officer, warns that the disease is especially dangerous to children under 5 years of age and urges that parents take precaution to prevent exposure of young children to known cases of whooping cough. It is safer, he states, on the appearance of a case in the home to send the young baby to the home of a friend or relative where there are no children than to risk infection.

"The disease," he continued, "is characterized by onset with cold, tight dry cough and slight fever within 10-14 days following exposure. The cough becomes gradually worse 'occurring in spells and the rapid drawing in of the breath produces the familiar whoop. Mucus is often finally coughed up or there may be vomiting. The disease is contagious during the earlier stages resembling a "cold" and for 3-4 weeks following the development of the whoop. All children with suspicious coughs should be placed under the care of the family physician. A vaccine has been developed which is being recommended by many physicians as a means of preventing the disease, but reports indicate that protection develops slowly and not until three months after administration of the vaccine.

Mr. Ira Smith is back from New York and do you know, he doesn't even talk like a Northerner and no Yankee ties. . . . Henry Tucker (Hank to you) is in Tuscaloosa. Oh, no, nothing like that; he's only visiting a few days with his folks. . . . Dewey Branch is in Montgomery now holding down a brand new job at the capitol. . . . And I didn't know until the early part of the week that Willie Maude Kelley was married last week—but of course, it's not "Kelley" now. . . . The dance Friday night was in full swing and lots of fun 'til someone acted as a kill-joy and let out an emphatic "bed time!" at twelve. . . . and isn't it about time we're having another beauty contest? . . . Melvin was in town last week end: how he remembers how much of what to put in sodas is beyond me. . . . The "C Club" had the annual picnic at Gulledge's last Friday night and some of them even took in the dance, too—what a life! . . . Have you seen Edith's pink coat—not exactly a swagger either. . . . Now be a sport, Crayton, put fog lights on THAT car so we'll know ya' . . . Milton Dief and Dan Waite are working so near home that they aren't strangers any more since they are here nearly every week end. . . Mrs Powers and little "Bill" are home now and he looks just like papa Powers—anyhow, I bet he will some day. . . . THINGS THAT PEEVE: a patch of gravel stuck on the bottoms of shoes by that nice black stuff on the streets—bht maybe it'll be worth it. The radio next door that is left on until the "wee hours of the morn." People who insist on saving a few steps by making a path across the lawn. ALABAMA SEALS
Old and New

The following article was handed the News by Mrs. Billy Barger of Clanton, with the request that it be published:

Emblems are relics of the ancient mysteries and their use has been restored to heraldry, coats of arms, seals, and fraternal societies. Their earliest use is found in the ancient Egyptian and Persian rites and ceremonies.

The use of seals is emblematic of organized authority as well as for the purpose of authenticating official records and acts. Alabama since its establishment in 1817 as a Territory has had two great seals.

President Monroe appointed Dr. Wm. Wyatt Bibb of Georgia to the governorship of the Territory. He was met at St. Stephens by the principal men of the territory to organize the government. One of his first needs was an official seal. Gov. Bibb acting under the auhority of Congress, suggested the adoption as a seal, a circle in which was drawn a map of Alabama showing her great waterways. Gov. Bibb was impressed by the wonderful system of waterways; he and the pioneers felt the greatest asset and most oustanding natural feature the Territory possessed was its rivers. At that time the rivers were the chief dependence for transportation. Hydro-electric water power was not dreamed of by the founders, but they chose a peculiarly natural emblem that still holds good today in Alabama.

The first seal is in no sense meaningless.

The territory became a state December 14, 1819, and this emblem was adopted by the legislature as the state seal. The first representatives believed it was significant and good enough for them. For fifty years this seal was attached to Alabama's public documents and official papers. But the days of this beloved old seal were numbered. During the dark years of reconstruction, Alabama and her sister states were under the stern rule of the carpetbaggers. Knowing little of our customs and caring less they attempted a complete reorganization of our government and our traditions and glorious history were treated with contempt. One of the most lamentable steps taken was the designing and adoption of a new seal.

This seal shows an eagle standing on a shield. Aside from the fact that his standing on the shield is a violation of all rules of heraldry, the eagle is not representative of our state.

Without the knowledge or consent of the people of Alabama a bill was introduced in the Senate, December 14, 1868, by R. M. Barr, a republican senator from Monroe County, a major in the Union Army from Ohio, for the adoption of a new seal. The bill was referred to a special committee, Mr. Barr being chairman. Two of his associates were J. L. Pennington of Lee County, who like Mr. Barr was a carpetbagger from North Carolina and J. P. Stowe of Montgomery, originally from Meriden, Conn. The committee reported on December 23 and the bill was unanimously passed. One can plainly see that the designer and committee members were desirous of stamping the seal of the United States upon a recently seceded state. It is believed that Charles A. Miller, secretary of state (1869-1870), was the designer. Mr. Miller was a major in the Second Main Calvary in the War Between the States.

This is to inform and impress upon our people the fact that the present seal was designdd and adopted by aliens, ex-Federal soldiers from Ohio, Connecticut, North Carolina and Maine, by carpetbaggers, scalawags, renegades and negroes in the Legislature of 1868, and that it is not representative of our State.

The first Seal was designed by Alabama's Territorial and first State governor, William Wyatt Bibb; was adopted by the fathers and founders of our great commonwealth. It is representative of our State and is a peculiarly natural emblem that holds good today in Alabama.

Therefore, we, the United Daughters of the Confederacy, want the "First Seal." Tho it is "As out of date as a yoke of steers pulling o covered wagon through a primeval Alabama pine forest."

Veteran of 2 Wars Lives 17 Years on Houseboat

WINTHROP, MASS. — Joseph Fraser, veteran of the Spanish and World wars, for 17 years has "lived alone and liked it" on a trim houseboat tight against the shore that separates this town from Boston.

Love of the sea, says Fraser, prompted him to establish a bait business here. Everything is compact and ship-shape in his 30 by 10 bachelor quarters, which include a bedroom, living room, kitchen, porch and workroom. At high tide, the "home" is completely at sea.

Bullet in His Pipe Scores a Bullseye

THOMSON, ILL.—Because a .22-caliber cartridge had become mixed with tobacco, Noah Switzer is looking for a new pipe.

His old and favorite hod was wrecked when the cartridge was set off by the heat of burning tobacco in the bowl.

Part of the pipe was blown into an adjoining room. Only the stem remained clenched between Switzer's teeth.

Once Despised Fish Now a Boon

Smelt Outlives Prejudice; Spring Run Becomes Popular Event.

ESCANABA, MICH.—The silvery smelt, once despised by commercial fishermen because it was feared this prolific fish would eventually cause the extinction of other species in Lake Michigan waters, is now beginning to be viewed as "manna sent down from heaven."

The smelt is comparatively a newcomer in the Great Lakes. Back in 1912, a large supply of smelt eggs were brought from the federal hatchery at Green Lake in Maine and were planted in Crystal lake, Benzie county, in the hopes of providing food for land-locked salmon, previously planted there. The planting experiment was undertaken because it had been noted that salmon and smelt thrived in great numbers in the inland lakes along the Atlantic coast.

The salmon soon disappeared, however, and the smelt were forgotten until in 1912, Newt Ely, Benzie county farmer, went to Cold creek, outlet of Crystal lake, and dipped for a pail of water to feed his live stock. Imagine his surprise when he brought up a couple dozen small but strange fish, which was later identified by the scientists as osmerus mordax, or the smelt.

Ely's discovery was made during the spawning period when smelt run by the millions from the lake upstream to the gravel beds for spawning. Neighbors heard about the phenomenon, and bringing pails, washtubs, baskets, bedsprings and other paraphernalia they scooped up many fish.

Concentrate at Escanaba.

The smelt have migrated to various sections of Lake Michigan, and are now heavily concentrated during the spring spawning period at Escanaba, where, within a 15-mile radius, there are more than a dozen streams emptying into Lake Michigan. The silvery fish has also been discovered in Lake Huron and Lake Superior.

The spawning runs occur around Escanaba during the first three weeks of April. The runs occur at night because the smelt shun the light. Each night, thousands of men, women and children go to the streams and catch the fish in dipnets. It is also the occasion for much merry-making, and on April 13 to 15 the fifth annual Escanaba Smelt Jamboree will be held at Escanaba, progressive resort community of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Besides the thousands of amateur fishermen who use everything from potato shovels to bird cages to catch them, the smelt provide a neat source of revenue for commercial fishermen. This extra revenue is much appreciated for in recent years whitefish and other species have dwindled.

When first discovered in Lake Michigan waters, the smelt were looked upon as a curse by the commercial fishermen. This was because the smelt caused considerable annoyance when it became tangled in the nets they had set out for whitefish, lake trout and herring. They also viewed with alarm the rapid multiplying of the silvery fish, and expressed fears that the smelt would eat the other young fish or else cause their starvation by robbing them of their food supply.

However, scientists after considerable study have arrived at the conclusion that the smelt subsists mainly on the mysis, of which there is an abundance in Great Lakes waters. They also find that instead the lake trout and herring are finding food values in the young smelt.

Command Good Price.

Although ranging only from six to ten inches, the smelt has good tasting qualities and has found an increasing market. During the winter, when they are caught in commercial fishermen's nets or by hook and line, the silvery fish commands a good price. The price drops suddenly, however, during the spawning runs, when they are harvested by the tons. Last spring, more than 1,200 tons were shipped from the Escanaba region.

The only comparable natural phenomenon is the spawning run of the Pacific salmon. So strong is the reproductive instinct of the smelt that they are not dismayed by the hundreds of fishermen, who wade among them swinging lanterns and flashlights and splashing dipnets. Many fishermen also stand on shore and dip for the fish.

There is no limit to the number of smelt that may be taken. The only restriction is that the dipnet must not be more than 18 inches in diameter.

Coal Prices Forced Up By Hidden Tax Burden

CHICAGO.—Retail coal prices are approximately 14 per cent higher because of hidden taxes, a national women's organization combating "consumer-penalizing taxes" has declared.

A National Consumers Tax commission survey states that the price increase is due to 37 local, state and national taxes against mining company, railroad and seller and handed along by each to the ultimate consumer.

Things Not to Do

Never leave the house for the day without a mental census of windows and doors being locked and all gas and electricity shut off.

Never pack away leather articles in a trunk or chest that is to be closed for a great length of time. They are apt to become mildewed.

Never wash mirrors with a very wet cloth. If the water gets in back of the mirror by flowing under the frame it will ruin the glass. Use a well-wrung chamois for the purpose.

How to Win a Maiden

In the Cumberland mountains, according to tradition, a youth, to win the maiden of his desire must follow the unusual procedure of counting her steps up to nine, take some dirt-earth from the track made by her left shoe-heel at her ninth step, carry this earth in his pocket for nine days—and she is his.

COTTON COMMERCE

1938 Figures Show Ranking of Markets for Staple

New Uses Sought to Increase Domestic Consumption

Department of Commerce statistics for the 1938 calendar year, now available, show that shipments of American cotton were made to 41 different countries, with Japan, United Kingdom, and France the largest foreign buyers in the order named.

The total exports to all countries in 1938 were 4,316,000 bales, which compared with 6,221,000 bales, the yearly average for the previous five years and an average of 7,641,000 bales for the five-year period 1927-1932.

Government agencies and leaders in the trade are working toward policies which, it is hoped, will bring about a reversal of this trend. In the meantime, the relative importance of American industry, as the chief consumer of American cotton, has been increasing.

In view of the unfavorable export situation, efforts are being redoubled to increase domestic consumption, which in 1938, amounted to 5,783,465 bales. Chief among these are the promotions behind National Cotton Week, May 22 to May 27, and the extensive research work being done to develop new uses for the staple.

In the latter connection, encouraging progress is reported, according to a review in the current issue of The Arcadian Grower, farm magazine published by the distributors of Arcadian nitrate of soda.

The Grower further points out that among the recent developments, which today are increasing the domestic consumption of cotton on a scale large enough to have significance, are cotton for road construction . . . for wrapping cotton bales . . . for lining irrigation ditches and canals . . . for packing fruit and vegetable products . . . for bagging commercial fertilizers, nitrate of soda, raw sugar, and other heavy commodities not heretofore packed in cotton.

The chart below pictures the cotton exported in 1938 to principal countries, excepting that figure for the United States represents estimated consumption of domestic cotton for the same period.

Near-Sighted Marksmen Usually Good at Targets

Short-sighted riflemen usually are more successful shots than those who are far-sighted, observes the Better Vision institute. This is because of the difficulty of the far-sighted person to focus correctly on the front sight, leading to inaccuracy in aiming.

While they can see their target clearly, farsighted marksmen sometimes make errors in sighting of at least a tenth of an inch, because of the inability of their eyes to focus exactly on the front and rear sights. At a hundred yards away, this would mean an error of 10 inches; at 200 yards, one of 20 inches. On the other hand, the shortsighted person can line up his sights accurately and can, through practice, train them on the exact center of his target, although the outlines themselves are not sharply defined.

As an aid to the sportsman, eyesight specialists have developed lenses to focus the eyes a little in front of the front sight. These add to the rifleman's efficiency and enjoyment as well as prolonging his years of effective shooting.

'Lowest Form of Thief' Is Given Jail Sentence

CHICAGO.—When Jerome Astamsky, 17 years old, was arraigned in Boys' court, Judge Joseph B. Hermes told him, "you are guilty of the lowest form of thievery." Astamsky was seized in the Church of the Sacred Heart, 1901 South Peoria street. He had taken $1.57 from the poor box and a microscope from the parochial school next door. Hermes sentenced him to two years in the bridewell.

Determining Birds' Nature

We can usually determine a bird's nature and the kind of food it eats by its beak, states a writer in London Tit-Bits Magazine. Warblers and other insect-eating birds have soft slender beaks, for the food they collect is not likely to injure or hurt them; the finches that feed upon harder food have more powerful mandibles for breaking open the seed pods. Crows have beaks that can be used as hammers for breaking bones, or for digging in the ground for hidden supplies, for tearing tough flesh and many similar tasks; the waders have long sensitive beaks for probing in soft mud and sand for creatures they cannot see, while the crossbill has a pair of powerful mandibles that might be likened to nut-crackers.

VULCAN, GOD OF THE FORGE

Mythologists seem to be mixed up as to the nationality of Vulcan, but John C. Henley, who prefers the Roman idea, says he was the best adverisement Birmingham ever had and will continue to advertise Birmingham better than anything else.

The spectacle to be put on in Vulcan Park May 9-17, celebrating the dedication of Birmingham's iron man, is the only thing of the kind ever undertaken by Birmingham that had no commercial aspect and will draw thousands of people from other sections of Alabama and from other states sometime during the May 9-17 period set aside for him. The spectacle has a spiritual value that nothing else in Birmingham has ever done approached or could approach.

Thus Mr. Henley summed up the meaning to Birmingham of Vulcan and the event marking his delayed dedication and permanent location in a home prepared for him, in a speech at the Civitan luncheon in the Tutwiler Hotel Friday. He was speaking in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsiring the dedication spectacle.

Mr. Henley traced the history of Vulcan, the mythical figure, and the iron Vulcan which symbolized Birmingham's vast mineral resources at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904. Vulcan, he said, was the son of Jupiter and Juno, got mixed up in some kind of scandal and was kicked out of heaven. He is described as falling from "dawn to dewey eve," was injured in the fall and thereafter was deformed, and married Venus.

When the Commercial Club, in 1903 was considering what kind of display to send to the St. Louis Exposition, Vulcan was suggested as symbolic of Birmngham's chief products, iron, steel and coal; the idea was approved; Moretti engaged to make a plaster cast and the iron casting made in a Birmingham foundry. Vulcan, at his birth. F. M. Jackson, Sr., president of the Birmingham Commercial Club at the time, explained, was 56 feet high and weighed 56 tons.

Vulcan, Mr. Henley said, is the largest iron casting ever made and the largest statue in the United States, except the Statue of Liberty, and with his 120-foot pedestal, is higher than Niagara Falls, taller than the Woodward Buildng and from his site on Red Mountain, he is taller than the Washington Monument.

When Vulcan was brought back from St. Louis he was dumped out on Red Mountain and later moved on to the State Fair grounds. Three years ago Tom Joy and the later Mercer Barnett initiated the movement that resulted in transferring Vulcan to a permanent home on top of Red Mountain, the Chamber of Commerce. finishing the job with the aid of the WPA, and now capping the program with a spectacle of 1,200 persons in the cast, the like of which never was seen here or hereabouts before.—Birmingham News-Age-Herald.

Cloak Was Titian

That dress maketh the man was noted long ago. Titian, the famed Italian painter of the Sixteenth century, walked home in his working clothes unnoted, but returning immediately to the street again, in his court costume of purple velvet, every person he met bowed and did him homage. Disgusted, Titian, back in his studio, threw the cloak on the floor, exclaiming, "Thou, then, art Titian; so much for drapery!"

Threadlike Eel

One of the world's queerest and probably rarest fish is the threadlike eel obtained in the open sea off Cuba. The little eel, gray in color, and almost transparent, is about the size of wrapping twine at its head, but it tapers off to the size of the finest thread at its tail. Both the Cuban and New Guinea eels have a strange, undefined organ back of the head.

Four Laws Are Violated In One Driving Lesson

CLEVELAND.—Thomas Arnone, 21, meant well when he offered to teach Phyllis Dottore, 15, to drive, but now he wishes he hadn't.

With Arnone and another man inside his coupe and William Geraci, 19, offering suggestions from the running board, the young girl started.

Rounding a corner she sideswiped a parked automobile, throwing Geraci against it, injuring his hip. Police charged Arnone with:

Permitting four to ride in (and on) a coupe.

Permitting an unlicensed minor to drive.

Allowing a man to ride on the running board.

Using license plates listed for another car—his father's.

Intruder Gets Surprise, Apologizes and Departs

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. — Mrs. Florence Iacbacci was awakened by the noise of an elderly man climbing through her first floor bedroom window.

"What do you want?" she quavered.

Though startled, the intruder didn't forget his manners. Politely tipping his hat, he said:

"I beg your pardon. I seem to have got in the wrong bedroom."

He retreated through the front door.

First Wireless Distress Call

The first wireless distress call at sea was sent from the East Goodwin lightship in the English channel on January 23, 1899. The old C.Q.D. signal, used by its operator, was heard by an amateur experimenter in Kent. Through the police, relates Collier's Weekly, the message was telegraphed to the Dover lifeboat station and its members rescued the crew of the R. J. Matthews, which had run aground on the Goodwin sands.

(John Temple Graves II, In The Birmingham Age-Herald).

"Why, man, he doth bestride the narrow world
Like a Colossus . . ."

Or like a 20-ton load on a modern automobile truck. What is the mortal limit to these monstrosities of the American highway, these trucks and trailers that grow higher and higher, wider and wider, longer and longer, heavier and heavier? For the poor little private citizen threading his way through such present day Pachydermata with his infinitesimal passenger car, there is no longer "the open road." There is only the road whose surface is blocked with a commerce that makes passenger travel progressively more dangerous, difficult and unhappy.

And all the while there are the railroads, equipped at vast expense to take care of such commerce, able to handle more of it at greater speed and better net economy, suffering from want of it and impeding a whole nation's progress with their pain. It doesn't make sense. No matter whose the fault, it doesn't make sense.

Tennessee, mindful of more taxes to be obtained from the trucks, has increased its maximum truck load allowed to 24,000 pounds. Alabama, not to be outdone, is considering a law raising her own limit from its present 20,000 pounds to a colossal 40,000. Only a little more of this and there'll be no room for the American citizen and his wife and child on the American highway. Only a little more and people might begin to put up their passenger automobiles all over the country as they do already in New York City, giving up as hopeless the effort to travel side by side with the commercial roadhog.

Joker Escapes Police Bullets in Mock Holdup

HOT SPRINGS.—Capt. Jerry Watkins of the Hot Springs police disclosed how near a practical joke approached grim tragedy. Two citizens, a well-known physician and a courthouse official whose names were withheld, decided to stage a mock holdup, complete with cowboy hat for the bandit and frightened victims.

They selected a well-known roadside restaurant and filling station a short distance from the city limits and proceeded to the spot. The courthouse official donned the sombrero in the most approved "desperado" style and, at the point of a gun proceeded to "stick up" the doctor and his party.

The proprietor of the establishment spied the group from a window and called Hot Springs police.

They came, quietly in a squad car filled with firearms which included a sub-machine gun, a sawed-off shotgun and several revolvers.

As the police car neared the scene, they slowed and doused the lights, moved up unseen and covered the pseudo-bandit who was gleefully relieving his pseudo-victims of their valuables.

Captain Watkins said that had the mock desperado made the slightest move to turn as they ordered him to drop his gun, he would have been riddled with lead.

Officers said nothing more severe than a reprimand resulted.

Each His Own Stereoscope, According to Professor

The ability to see stereoscopic pictures without a stereoscope is, if not common, at least fairly easy to acquire. I have been able to view such pictures with naked eyesight for many years past. If one places a pair of stereoscopic pictures at the normal distance from the eyes for comfortable vision and then directs one's gaze just over the top of the pictures at some more distant object, two images of each of the pictures will immediately appear.

By a little practice, the right hand image of the left picture and the left hand image of the right picture can be brought into coincidence, the coincidence occurring rather suddenly in the end, and, as it were, engaging in that position. This sudden coalescence is, I presume, due to the eyes refocusing at normal distance each on its own picture. When this has occurred the equilibrium is fairly stable.

I have sometimes thought that it might be possible to teach this little accomplishment to an audience, and then to exhibit stereoscopic pictures in this way on the screen.—Professor T. S. Patterson in "Nature."

Preserving the Polish

The United States bureau of the mint issues the useful information that coins can be kept from tarnishing by wrapping them in cellophane. In case you have no cellophane handy, however, there is an old country remedy which will probably serve well enough in an emergency. Open your purse, take the coins out, slowly and forcibly release them from the grip of your itching palm, and spend them. This method is highly recommended, as it also prevents the formation of cobwebs and the multiplication of moths around the coins in the interior of the purse.

Even in 161 B. C. Jurors Rolled Dice

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Dr. Arthur P. McKinlay, professor of Latin, points out that human nature has changed little, at least in some respects, since the days of the Romans. He cites an article in a recent magazine in which the author depicts jurymen of the present age as being much more interested in playing poker than in performing their court duties.

Dr. McKinlay related what went on in Rome more than 2,000 years ago. In 161 B. C. the senatorial jurymen were said to have played at dice. Occasionally they would send a messenger to find out how things were going on in the Forum.

Puerto Rico's Building Boom

Puerto Rico's building boom is important to the lumber industry in Alabama because it has resulted in substantially increased sales of Southern pine to the Caribbean island, according to a statement by the Puerto Rican Trade Council.

"The island's purchases of Southern pine exceeded 33,000,000 board feet during the first eight months of the current fiscal year, a gain of 14 per cent compared with the same period a year ago," the Council stated. "Although the buildng boom has subsided somewhat in the last two years, building continues relatively heavy, and practically all of Puerto Rico's lumber supply is purchased from continental nited States, with Southern pine accunting for nearly three-quarters of the total

"Extensive slum clearance programs, financed by the Federal government, are expected to stimulate purchases of Southern pine and other mainland lumber still further during the coming year. Last year, Puerto Rico spent $1,520,000 for pine and other lumber purchased from the States."

The island also is buying large quantities of cotton textiles from the South, the Council said.

ALABAMA'S PROBLEM NO. 1

By Ella H. Riddick, in Birmingham Post

The plight of the agricultural worker is the most serious problem that faces the state of Alabama today. There are thousands of families living in the rural counties whose income is so low that there is never sufficient money for proper food, clothing or medical attention.

Rural poverty is not spectacular. Year after year it passes unnoticed and unheralded with nothing done to correct this blight on our civilization. If this poverty can be alleviated, the prosperity of our merchants and manufacturers is assured. If most rural families had $100 each Fall to spend for clothes and luxuries, the small town merchant would prosper, the manufacturer would need no sympathy, industrial workers would be employed. When you put purchasing power in the hands of the people who need it so desperately, it improves the economic condition of our entire population.

The solution of this problem is not easy. avoid hitting a cow could also stop in time No one knows the complete answer but the direction of the answer can be pointed out; a start can be made.

The county is our political subdivision. For convenience we may use it as the unit in our planning. In the rural counties information concerning the people and resources is meager. A survey of the people should be made. determining who is making a living and is therefore eliminated from our problem; a medical survey of our problem population should be made to determine what families are unable to prosper because of disease and low mentality; a soil survey should be made to determine what families are living on land that is incapable of producing sufficient crops to support a family. When this information is collected and tabulated. there should be an authority in each county that would correlate the various services that our counties provide.

Families that cannot make a living should be a challenge to our county institutional services.

Let the Health Unit make the people well; let the Farm Security Administration put them on farms capable of producing a living; let the Extension Service and the public school system teach the farmers how to farm successfully.

We have the necessar y machinery to solve our problem. Let's use it intelligently!

Mark Remarks:

Now that the big military appropriations have been made by our own Congress and England's Parliament, the world can breathe a sigh of relief. The big news will now tell us that Hitler isn't near the bogey man we recently were led to believe he was.

* * * *

When a farmer hears an airplane zooming over his fields these days, he needn't be surprised if he finds that it is a government "surveyor" checking his acreage allotment.

* * * *

There is an abundance of every necessity and most of the luxuries for every human being in the whole world. Only crass greed and selfishness prevents everyone who is deserving from enjoying this abundance

* * * *

Gosh! This is terrible news. A daily headline (bold type) says: "Heat reduces Men's Height; Long Summers In U.S. Make Americans Shorter, Survey Shows."

* * * *

Asking for peace with a dagger in your uplifted strong right hand isn't the proper approach to peace.

Start any foolish fad and all the fools will fall for it.

FOURTH ESTATE FLASHES:

We can't have much hopes for the future of the race as long as women wear what they do—and call 'em hats.—Clanton News.

What about the males who wear no hats at all? They always looked curious to us.—Alexander City Outlook.

We saw that Congress turned down a proposal for the government to buy $1,000,000 worth of reindeer from the Eskimos. We can't understand it, unless that is just too many reindeer for Uncle Sam's Santa Clauses.—Greene County Democrat.

Methods of modern warfare are always changing. Mostly for the worse. It used to be the custom for the great leaders to actually lead their soldiers into battle, like a whiteplummed Henry of Navarre. Then it changed to their keeping well in the background. Now it seems there is another change. The dictators and prime ministers do the fighting by making speeches against others with the soldier in the background. This is quite a hopeful change. Keep it up.—Haleyville Advertiser-Journal.

Montgomery's "Western" Beef

Here are a couple of items of editorial persiflage that have a special interest in the "Cow Town of the South." Says the Chilton County News at Clanton: "While patriotic Alabamians were auctioning off fat beef cattle at the Montgomery stock yards last week, the downtown restaurants were advertising and serving Western Steaks' to their guests. Why?'

To which the Fort Payne Journal replies: "Who knows? It might have been Western Alabama Steaks. You gotta watch restaurants. Most of us guys don't know the difference."

These writers have not been keeping up with what is happening in Montgomery. Don't they know that Montgomery is importing western cattle every year by the hundreds? Don't they know that Alabama is bringing in western bulls at the rate of 500 per year? Don't they know that upon Montgomery county's pastures there are today grazing some specimens of western beef equal to anything that ever passed through the gates at Kansas City or Chicago? Don't they know that when a Montgomery restaurant advertises western beef it may readily be western beef by inheritance of western qualities from one of these fine western animals or its sons and daughters grazing on Montgomery's lush pastures?—Under the Capitol Dome, Montgomery Journal.

Load On The Middle Classes

These two paragraphs, taken from the speech delivered this week by William Allen White before a meeting of American editors in Washington, are worthy of being remembered:

"The unemployment problem in this nation remains unsolved and every day it is unsolved it is a menace to the stability of our institutions.

"We are developing a class-conscious proletriat. It was bad enough in the days of the big bull market of the 20's to maintain the idle rich. But if, in addition, we of the middle classes have to maintain the idle poor and then the idle rich, sooner or later our resources will be gone."—Tuscaloosa News.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

An old Hindu legend says that at one time all men were gods. They sinned and lost their divine nature. Old Brahma, the god of all gods decided that the god nature should be taken from mankind and hid where it could never be found. One counselor advised that the god nature of man be buried on the top of the tallest mountain. Another advised trat it be sunk into the depths of the sea. To these appeals Brahma replied: "Never. If you bury it there man will climb to any height or dive to any depth to find it." After much discussion Brahma himself said, "We will bury this god nature deep into every man's own heart and he will never think to find it there." We are not passing judgement on the truth of this legend but this we do know: "Every man has God nature within himself if he will only find it, and he can bring it out if he will cultivate it with his most diligent care." The place where you are to find God is in the depths of your own heart. There is a God element within our bosoms if we find it.

Doubtless you have heard the old story of the argument that arose between the sun and the north wind relative to which one had the greatest powers. To settle this heated argument each one decided to try out his power on a man who was wearing an overcoat. The north wind let loose his strength and tried to blow the coat from the back of the man. The harder the wind blew and the louder it roared the closer the man pulled his coat about his shivering body. The north wind exhausted its strength and then turned the contest over to the sun. Old Sol then releared his rays upon the back of the man and soon he unbuttoned his coat. In another moment off it came. The sun quietly continued to shine and the man then stripped off his other coat. In this story I am saying just this: It is not the loudest noise that carries the greatest power. A quiet, silent influence can do more to move man than any power known to us. It is not the blustering, noisy people who count. Silently shine like the sun and you will be able to move men and women toward the highest.

One night I had a dream that disturbed me much. I was driving my car down the highway. The straight road ahead was level, smooth and safe, but in my dream I saw on both sides of the road deep ditches. The thing that disturbed me was that all along the road I saw so many travelers in the ditches on either side of the road. I saw how imperative it was that I remain in the middle of the straight road, or else I, too, would be in the ditch. Jesus said long ago that if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall inti the ditch. Ah, my friends, when the road of life is straight and safe, wy is it that so many spend the most of their time in the ditches on either sid? Learn to ibey the old darkey song, "Keep in the middle of the road," and travel will be safe.

My old teacher of college days told his class that "We learn from history." Since leaving college and after much observation I have decided that my teacher was wrong. We should learn from history, but, we be too foolish for that. Today we see men doing the same things thaey tatd ht same things that they did in the past. They drink to their death, they fight to their destruction, they walk the primrore path to ruin, just as they did a hundred years ago. If we were wise and would learn from history, we would turn our backs on those that history records as being harmful. If we were to learn from history we would give up our wars and drive our dictators away.

Bishop Watkins of the Methodist Church is an authority for the statement: "You can not set fire to a vacuum." If a room is empty a fire cannot be kindled in that empty space. If the room is filled witd gas, a spark of fire will cause an explosion. In other words you have got to have something before you can produce something. If a man has no brains, if he is an idot, he cannot be set on fire. If a man is filled up with bad thinking and low ideals, when he is touched with the fire he explodes. Never before has there been a time when the mind and heart of men should be filled with the ideals and the spirit of Jesus Crist as now. Unless we can fill men with the mind of the Master, our outlook is not good.

Bad Breath May Show You Need This Help!

Bad breath is sometimes due to bad teeth and often due to sluggish bowels.

It offends. And to neglect it may invite a host of constipation's other discomforts: headaches, biliousness, loss of appetite and energy. Don't let constipation slow you down. IF it's "nátchel" it's right, Uncle Natchel believes, and that's a pretty safe way to judge anything.

Chilean Nitrate of Soda, the ideal side-dresser, is the only natural nitrate. Nothing takes its place as a side-dressing for cotton and corn. It supplies a natural nourishing lift, just when your crops need it most to grow and produce as they should.

Be sure you use Natural Chilean Soda. It costs no more. You can get it anywhere.

Old West Recalled By Cattle Herder

30,000 Head Often Driven On Chisholm Trail.

SPEARFISH, S. D. — Indians, road agents, swollen streams and heat were among the "wild west" dangers that harassed early day cattle drivers as they moved thousands of Texas longhorns over the famous Chisholm trail into the vast pasturage of the north country.

So recalls Charles Graham, 81-year-old Spearfish pioneer, who spent 16 years in that spectacular drama of populating the bounding prairies of the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming, Kansas and Nebraska with cattle.

Graham's first trip over the historic Chisholm trail was in 1872 when but a lad of 13. From then until 1888 he gained his livelihood by following the old Indian road which led from Texas, through Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska and branched off throughout the great Northwest.

"Traveling in those days was plenty rough." the old timer related. "Indians and road agents were always giving us trouble and I must have been in 20 or more fights. Occasionally I'd get nicked by a bullet but I never got hurt seriously."

The Indians always wanted pay for the use of their trail, Graham said. The cattlemen saw no reason why they should be paying the natives and didn't. Therefore, an occasional raid from the Indians could be expected.

"It usually took three and a half months to move a herd of around 3,000 longhorns from Texas to Wyoming," he said. "Sometimes groups of different drivers would band together and move around 30,000 head on one trip."

The rivers always gave the cattlemen trouble, Graham asserted. The dangerous streams were the Red River of the South, the Canadian, the Cimarron, the Arkansas, the Smoky Hill, the Republican and the Platte.

Graham was the son of a Texas ranger. When he quit the cattle business in 1888, he opened a saloon in Beulah, Wyo., and later moved his business to Spearfish. With the advent of prohibition, he retired.

Collector Tells of 200 Pistols 'Used by Booth'

TUSCALOOSA, ARK.—More than 200 pistols with which Abraham Lincoln was killed are in existence, if the stories of their owners are to be believed.

That is the statement of Prof. Frank J. Foster, of the University of Alabama faculty, who for 12 years has been collecting old firearms and reading about them.

"Often the possessors of the Lincoln pistols get confused in their chronology and exhibit as the fatal weapon one which was not even made until years after the assassination of the Civil War President," Foster said.

Foster is wary of most of the tales about old firearms and their reputed former owners. He said the story often associated with a gun—sometimes untrue—and the sentiment attached to it, frequently increases its value in the opinion of the owner.

Foster's collection includes about 40 early American and European pistols, ranging from vest pocket models to .60-caliber "horse pistols."

His special interest in old Colt revolvers has netted him several at least 100 years old. His collection includes "pepper boxes," with six-in-one barrels; French "pinfires" and old flintlocks.

Paralyzed Boy Saved by 'Lung' Made by Parents

LONDON.—A father and mother have saved the life of their son after doctors had all but abandoned hope.

For nine days and nights they took turns operating a special apparatus which enabled the boy, who was stricken with infantile paralysis, to breathe.

Gordon Bennett, 9 years old, contracted the disease last August. Recently the paralysis spread to his lungs. A swinging apparatus, which, operated by levers, expanded and contracted the lungs, was constructed and the boy's parents volunteered to work the machine.

Day and night they worked. At last their efforts were rewarded. Gordon's lungs became strong enough to allow him to be removed from the machine. He is well on the road to recovery now.

Girl Asserts Melodies Are Born in Her Sleep

KEARNEY, NEB. — Geraldine Miriam La Sanke, Kearney high school graduate, composes melodies in her sleep and wakes up to write them down.

She used this formula to develop a new type of greeting card. Puzzling over what sort of greeting to send John Schulze, Chicago musician and his family, she dreamed that she composed a melody for the violin.

Miss La Sanke awoke, completed the composition and sent it to the Schulzes. She has written more than 50 selections.

Yellowleaf Creek, to a point where it flows about four miles north of the City. This creek is big enough to supply plenty of water, and after the pipe line was laid to the creek and the pumping station erected, work immediately got underway on two huge storage tanks, one for the raw water and one for the treated water. A new filterng plant was erected, all of which has recently been completed.

COTTON WEEK TO SET RECORD AS SALES EVENT

NATIONAL COTTON WEEK HAS BEEN PROCLAIMED BY PRESIDENT WEEK OF MAY 22

Devoted to the story and sale of the agricultural product which gives employment to more Americans than any other crop, Natonal Cotton Week has been proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt for the week beginning May 22.

The nationwide observance is the product of unanimous cooperation on the part of those who grow, handle and process cotton and cotton goods.

National Cotton Week is sponsored by the National Cotton Council of America and the Cotton Textile Institute, together representing virtually every phase of the cotton industry. Cooperation is further added this year by the Institute of Distribution, representing 109 chain store companies; and the National Cotton Consumption Council, representing several thousand cotton consuming establishments.

In the eight years since its inception, National Cotton Week has demonstrated its value, yet in none of these years has its significance been so great or its opportunities so outstanding as those of the current season.

Never before has cotton offered such smartness of style or quality of merchandise as that which it will present to the people of America from May 22 to May 29

Besides the festive spirit of the week's program, National Cotton Week will constitute the greatest cotton sales event of the year, with more than 75,000 of America's retail merchants participating.

More than 400 miles of store windows will display cotton fabrics and cotton products, with customers expected to spend more than $3,000,000 for cotton materials during the week.

The nation's dependence upon cotton is clearly illustrated by the fact that almost 20 per cent of America's population is dependent upon its production More than 11,000,000 Americans, comprising 2 1-2 millon families, live upon cotton farms anl are dependent upon consumpton of American cotton for their livelihood. They live in 19 of the 48 states, ranging throughout the entire Corn Belt

An additional 14 million are engaged in stransporting, marketing, processing and distributing cotton and its products.

Mrs. Beatrice Pratt and daughter, Kathryn, visited Mrs. Pratt's parents near Verbena, last week end.

PILOT CLUB INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

MISS RUTH SESSIONS REPLACES MRS. OLIVE FIQUETTE AS PRESIDENT FOR YEAR

At the regular meeting of the Clanton Pilot Club of Clanton held last night, new officers for the coming year were installed as follows:

President—Miss Ruth Sessions replacing Mrs. Olive Fiquette; Vice President—Miss Nolan Meroney replacing Mrs. Bo Searcy; 2nd vice presiden—Mrs. Virginia Rummell replacing Mrs. Sophia Jones; Secretary—Miss Ruth Esco replacing Mrs. Willie Maude Kelly Norris; Treasurer—Mrs. Delilah Kelly Grant remaining; Reporter—Mrs. Bo Searcy replacing Mrs. Gertie Fiquette Towns.

Directors to serve until May 1, 1941, are as follows: Mrs. Zora Guy Smith, Miss Nolan Meroney, Miss Myra Johnson, Mrs. Olive Fiquette, Mrs. Mamie C. Smith, Miss Ruth Sessions, Miss Ethel Mae Jones.

The Pilot Club, composed of leading social, civic and business women of Clanton, has rendered a splendid service to this county during the past years since its organization in 1931.

Following is the speech given by Mrs. Fiquette Wednesday night before relinquishing the gavel as President, to Miss Sessions:

"Before being replaced as Captain of the Good Ship, Pilot, I would like to express my appreciation to each Pilot for the cooperation given during the past year.

"Since our basic principles are those of friendship and service, it was in this spirit that I performed the duty of my office and it was with love for my club that I gave untiringly of my efforts, for so long as we love we consider it a privilege to serve.

"The opportunities for the development of friendship within the club means a broadening of our field for service in social, business and civic life. Each Pilot by the practices of high ethical standards in her business and professional life may be distinguished from other women as a leader and guide ,which is the true meaning of Pilot.

"However, the most serviceable of all assets of a Pilot is reputation. Brains alone, however brilliant cannot win it. The most indespensable requisite is character.

"Our colors are green and gold. Green is a symbol of life and vigor. The life and vigor of our club depends upon the strength, character and cooperation of each individual to accomplish any objective which the club may hope to accomplish. The gold is a symbol of sincerity of purpose. Shakespeare said 'The gift without the giver is bare.' Without sincerity of purpose in the efforts expended for our club we cannot hope to accomplish the goals which we set for ourselves and cannot be ethical in our attitude toward our friends, and toward our club.

"The poem 'Building the Bridge For Him,' by W. A. Dromgoole well expresses a goal toward which we should strive.

"We who are facing problems today in our social, business and civic life and helping to solve these problems should be the builder who prepares the way for those who will enter business and professional life in Clanton in the future.

"It is with greatest sincerity that I urge each Pilot to re-pledge themselves as a leader and guide, through friendship and service, keeping in mind always a true course ever."

13 Alabama Counties May Get Sum Of $50,243 Each

Representative Colmer, of Mississippi, has introduced a bill in Congress which, if passed, will require the government to pay annually to each of 13 Alabama Counties (including Chilton) three per cent of the actual purchase price of land acquired in that county under the reforestation and Bankhead-Jones farm tenancy acts.

Explaining the measure, he inserted in the congressional record a statement disclosing the government has bought 16,740,911 acres in 31 States and Puerto Rico in the reforestation program, paying $62,445,714 for them. He did not include lands purchased under the tenancy act.

In Alabama, Colmer said, the government has acquired 458,051 acres at a cost of $1,674,772 for reforestation.

"Unquestionably," he asserted, "this act on the part of the government is going to rebound to the benefit of the country as a whole.

"Under the provisions of the present legislation by which the government acquired these lands the counties are to receive 25 per cent of the gross receipts from timber and other assets sold by the forest service from the lands. The difficulty about this is that in most instances the gross income from such sales is negligible, due to the fact that the lands were largely denuded of all timber at the time of their acquisition by the government. This provision under statute would be ample remuneration to the counties in 25 years from now after the timber has developed, but the immediate difficulty is that there is no provision made for the interim period before this timber reaches a merchantable status."

Alabama counties which would benefit by Colmer's bill are Clarke, Monroe, Covington, Escambia, Calhoun, Clay, Dallas, Talladega, Cherokee, Cleburne, DeKalb, Bibb, Chilton, Perry, Winston and Lawrence.

POSTMASTER HOSEA DOWNS PASSED AWAY

LIFELONG RESIDENT OF THIS COUNTY DIED IN MONTGOMERY HOSPITAL EARLY TUES.

The ctizenship of Clanton and Chilton County was saddened last Tuesday when it was learned that Postmaster Hosea F. Downs had passed away early Tuesday morning in a Montgomery hospital. Although in ill health for some time, his death came as an unexpected shock to the people here. He was fifty-one years of age.

Mr. Downs was a lifelong resident of this County. He attended medical college in Nashville, Tenn., and later in Mobile, Alabama. Although he possessed a Doctor's degree he practiced the profession for only a short while. He entered the hardware business with his father and later was engaged in the hardware wholesale business in Clanton.

Outbreak Of Food Poisoning In Clanton

At least eight persons were stricken with acute attacks of food poisoning over the week end, after eating cocoanut pie in a well known Clanton eating establishment, according to the weekly bulletin from the County Health Department.

The contaminated pie was baked by a bakery in Birmingham and newspaper reports from Brmngham indicate that seventeen or more persons were affected after eating the pie. Officials of the local Health Department have investigated the outbreak in Clanton and report that specimens of pies from the same bakery received on Monday, May 8, are being sent to the laboratory for bacteriological examination.

Most attacks of food poisoning, commented Dr. S.D. Sturkie, County Health Officer, are usually caused by a definite germ or organism being introduced into the food or by a human or animal carrier. A number of outbreaks have been traced to the contamination of food with rat feces.

The necessity for throwing every possible safeguard around the cooking and sale of food is well illustrated by outbreaks of food poisoning, the Health Officer said.

OUR MOST IMPORTANT ROAD

Chris Sherlock, Jr., the new highway chief, again scores a ten-strike with this part of the state in declaring that the Tuscaloosa-Montgomery Highway is "the most important unconstructed link in Alabama."

Mr. Sherlock goes on to say that the highway department is still trying to work out agreements with the various counties so that they will all cooperate in the movement. All of the highway in Montgomery County is paved, and the 23 miles through Autauga is under agreement. Progress has been made in Tuscaloosa County and to some exent in Bibb. Little progress has been seen for the 17 miles of highway through Chilton, but Mr. Sherlock hopes for an agreement before long.

This has always been the chief thorn in the side of the Tuscaloosa-Montgomery Highway advocates, inasmuch as the road skirts through the southwestern part of Chilton County, and thus misses Clanton, the principal town. It is natural that those in authority in Chilton are looking first to roads that will serve most of the people in the county. As we have said before, the system and not the people are wrong. But we cannot keep from believing that a satisfactory arrangement will finally be worked out. This highway is too important to prevent such an arrangement.

As Mr. Sherlock points out, the Tuscaloosa-Montgomery Highway was long a dream of the late W. Simpson Keller, first state road director. Mr. Keller wanted it called the "University Highway," and he always stressed the importance of this road which connected the state capital with the state's chief seat of learning.

The highway would cover in 98 miles a gap that the motorist now covers in 140, 150, or 160 miles, depending on his route. But it wouldn't stop there in usefulness. It would not merely provide a route between two important cities. It would serve a large territory in between these two, and it would give a new and direct route to the state capial for several counties in the western and northwestern part of Alabama. It would be almost as useful to such counties as Pickens, Fayette, Lamar and Marion as to us. and we are not so sure but that, with the completion of the Muscle Shoals-to-Mobile Highway as far as Tuscaloosa, it would be found useful by residents of Lauderdale, Colbert and Franklin. In the same fashion, it would give the people of Bullock, Pike, Barbour and Russell a decent direct highway connection, for the first time, with their state university.

Its importance can hardly be exaggerated, and it is difficult to see why it was not constructed long ago. From what is now coming out of Mobile, however, we will not need to wait long for action.—Tuscaloosa News.

"WATCH THE FARMS GO BY"

Here is another reason why Montgomerys best interest lies in development and improvement of the Coosa-Alabama river, especially with regard to flood control and prevention of soil erosion. The Mobile Daily Times states the case under the caption "Liquidating Farms" as follows:

"Says the Alabama Journal: 'Seeing the muddy Alabama river flow lazily past Montgomery this week, it is easy to appreciate the riverside remark, 'Watch the farms go by.'

"And down here in Mobile harbor and bay the government keeps dredges busy digging these same farms up and pouring them back onto the shore. It would be much cheaper to keep the farms in place than to gather them up again down here."—Alabama Journal.

STILL FIGHTING DISCRIMINATIONS

Addressing the Association of Commerce on Freight Rates, in New Orleans last Thursday, former Governor Bibb Graves predicted that the South would present a picture of inviting vigor to industry "when we shave off the discriminating freight rates by which the East has continued some of the exploiting advantages it enjoyed during reconstruction years."

"Our industry is now bucking a 16 to 40 per cent handicap in freight rates," he said in an interview on his arrival in New Orleans.

He summarized the freight rate situation as follows:

"North of the Ohio-Norfolk line, an arbitrary division, and east of the Mississippi River the freght rates, especially on manufactured goods, are 16 to 40 per cent hgher than they are south of that line.

"The Southern States, included within the southeastern territory, therefore, must buck this advantage if they wish to sell manufactured products in the East, the section of the country which contains most of the population of the United States and three-fourths of its buying power.

"Unless southern production has access to this enormous consuming market it cannot get to first base, not unless it meets the differentials by taking it out of the wage envelope. It has been doing this—and on this has been built the industry that the South now has.

"This is unjust to the men and women of the South and it is economically unjust to the entire United States to restrict the purchasing power of any part of the nation.

"When the freight discriminations are removed you will see industry come into the South so fast it will make the statisticians dizzy."

GROWING SPIRIT OF WAR

"Wars have never been fought for humanitarian purposes," asserts Prof. R. Murray Christian, instructor in history at the University of Alabama, at a luncheon given by Mortar Board, senior honorary society for women, last week.

Prof. Christian urged women to use their influence in fostering a spirit of peace. The theme of his speech was the growing spirit of war.

"War never has settled any social or humanitarian problems," he said. Settlement of these problems through war is the excuse that selfish groups offer to cover their purposes in fostering conflict, Prof. Christian added.

Not condoning the actions of dictatorship nations, but insisting upon the necessity of settlement through intelligent and peaceful means, the speaker assured the group that the response to the stimulus of brass bands and uniforms furthered the spirit of war.

"Women should realize that the world has never been made a better place because of war," said the history professor. He urged that they lead a movement for peace and tolerance rather than fall into martial spirit.

IN THE LOOKING GLASS

Most of the cotton belt at one time or another has looked about for some convenient goat on which to hang the blame for cotton's deplorable condition. Bitterly has blame been piled on the Civil War and the war in China, high tariffs and high taxes, the boll weevil and the dictators, Washington and the weather.

Yet during National Cotton Week it may be well for the cotton belt to look into a place it has neglected—it's household mirror. There it will find a very unusual figure, one who is both partially responsible for the present condition of cotton, and the only one who has the power to bring about cotton's recovery.

The story of what others have done to cotton is tragic; but the story of what the cotton belt has done to it, and of what it has not done for it, is both tragic and inexcusable. Those to whom cotton means most have not bothered to be loyal in its use.

National Cotton Week offers the opportunity of the year for active and effective support of the agricultural product on which twenty-five million Americans depend for all or part of their income. In sponsoring it the National Cotton Council and other agencies have not asked for sacrifices or inconveniences in behalf of a public cause. Rather have they asked the people of the cotton belt to invest their money in modern merchandise offering full returns in style, smartness and serviceability. They ask the logical maintenance of an American market for one of America's greatest crops —a crop whose products give to every purchaser a little more than his money's worth.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Many years ago an Austrian army was ordered to lay seige to a small interior city. A citizen was captured on the outskirts of the city and he informed his captors that they would never take the city. With caution they advanced but found peace and quietude everywhere. They marched right up to the Courtsquare and the white-haired Burgomaster came out to meet them. "Where are your soldiers,' 'demanded the General. "Why, sir, we have none," replied the Burgomaster. "But we have come to take the town." "No one will stop you sir," was the kind answer. "Is there none to fight," asked the leader, and then the old man's face lit up with a smile and he replied, "No, there is no one here to fight. We have chosen God for our leader, and He has taught us another way." The captain could not fire on innocent women and smiling children and he retired from the town and made report that the town had offered resistance that he could not master. That little city had chosen God and He was an invincible Leader.

One is apt to think that all artists paint pictures and play difficult compositions, or writes a compelling novel. Not so. The groceryman down on the corner prospers because he is an artist. He knows how to arrange his stock so as to attract the trade. That woman is an artist who knows how to plant flowers so as to produce harmony. Her flower garden shows a sense of design that pleases the eye and excites the emotions, and the passer-by will turn aside to see. An artist does not merely fill a vase with flowers—she arranges the flowers so as to make them attractive. You can be an artist where you are and with what you are doing.

Once upon a time a king was going hunting and he called in his weather man to inform him of the weather. The seer assured the king that the weather would be fine and his hunt a success. The huntsmen passed an old farmer on the road and the king asked: 'My friend, what about the weather today." The old man doffed his cap and bowed low. "I humbly beg your majesty's pardon, but in this country there will be rain by eventide." The king went on his way and before noon he was drenched. Cold, wet and angry the king returned to his palace and discharged his weather prophet. The old farmer was requested to come to the king and of him the question was asked: "How did you know it would rain?" The old man replied: "By my donkey, Sire. When his ears stand up I know that it wll be fair, but when his ears droop down I know we shall have rain." The farmer and his donkey were made the royal weather prophets. That king set a precedent that has been followed by rulers and those in political authority.

There is one evil effect going out from the Radio. All we have to do in order to be entertained by skilled musicians is to just tune in and listen. For that reason parents are not requiring their children to study music and there is but little singing going on in the homes. A Hamburg physician has expressed an alarming outlook for us because of this lack of musical interest. This good doctor says that many of the ills of the body can be cured by lusty singing before breakfast. We know this much from observation: that happiness and real joy in life are vitalized by the singing habit. Singing not only helps the body, but it helps the soul. We should regret the going of that day when music and singing were left off.

More Than Three Million Dollars for Protection of Policyholders!

Every dollar of which is invested in gilt-edge, income-producing assets. It is the belief and conviction at Brown-Service that an insurance company "belongs to the policyholder." We, therefore, make, periodically, to the public exact statements setting forth the assets and liabilities of the company, including the AMOUNT of legal reserves held for the protection of the policyholders. We feel the policyholders should rightfully know and understand the financial condition of the company. We have no secrets to conceal from the public. For the protection and security of the policyholders, we believe all companies should do this. ● To the best of our knowledge, Brown-Service is the ONLY Alabama company dealing largely in funeral insurance which prints, publishes, circulates and advertises, periodically, its financial condition as to assets and liabilities, including the AMOUNT of legal reserves held for the protection of its policyholders!

Policyholders of Brown-Service Should Request a Financial Statement From Their Agent or the Home Office!

Brown-Service has more than 600 full-time employes and operating ONLY in Alabama, it is truly "An Alabama Company for Alabamians." ● Brown-Service pays more than ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS per year in licenses and taxes for the support of government. ● Brown-Service is the only company of its kind having on deposit with the state treasurer one hundred thousand dollars for the protection of policyholders.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT CHILTON COUNTY

Baker county was organized about 1870; since the name has been changed to Chilton county. Chilton county is the geographical center of the state and the center of population of the State is in Chilton county. Population in 1930 was 24,579, has three main lines of railroads running through the county. It has a United States paved highway running north and south and a first class State paved road running east. The county is principally agricultural, all kinds of truck can be grown in this county. Many carloads of strawberries, watermelons, and peaches are shipped out of this county each year. Some of the largest peaches ever grown in the South were grown in Chilton county. It has plenty of power for all kinds of industry. Alabama Power Company has two large electric plants in this county. Clanton is the largest city in the county, over 3,000 population with a small corporation, over 3,500 people live in less than a mile of the Court House. Clanton is situated on the Dixie B-line cement highway running north and south and the L. & N. Railroad, is forty miles from Montgomery and sixty miles from Birmingham, and the State surfaced road running east and west passes through Clanton. Farmers can get into Montgomery, Birmingham, Selma or Anniston with a truck load of any kind of farm produce they raise in a little over one hour.

The county is bounded on the east by Coosa River where the water has been backed up by the dams of the Alabama Power Company, making a pond forty miles long, from a mile to three miles wide some places as deep as one hundred feet and the hills along the banks makes fine location for summer resorts. Over fifty new bungalows and camp houses have been built along its banks in the last few years. No trouble to catch as many fish out of the River during the spring and summer as anyone wants. Many have been caught out of this pond that weigh as high as twenty-five pounds. It is a fine place for boating, hundreds already have boats in this pond. The high hills, cool springs and bathing advantages makes the banks of this river in Chilton county one of the most attractive resorts in the South. This county has built good roads to all the main points along the river and will be glad to furnish new roads where people buy property and build houses, as it is the intention of the County Commissioners to make the river banks in Chilton one of the most attractive resorts in the South.

This county has twenty-four mail routes and several others coming into this county from other counties. Some fifty school bus routes which traverse about twelve hundred miles practically every day and besides this twelve hundred miles the county has several more hundred miles of public roads that automobiles can travel any day in the year without putting on chains.

This county has four banks doing a good business. One at Thorsby, Maplesville, and two at Clanton, making four in all. This county is one of the healthiest counties in the State and is one among the counties having the lowest death rate in the State. Taking this county as a whole, it is one of the most prosperous agricultural counties in Alabama. The farmers are said to be in better condition in this county than any other county in the State. Road officials say that Chilton county has the best county road system of any county in the State.

LONDON.—An instrument which tells the time in all parts of the world has been invented by G. Fisher, 91 years old, of London.

He calls his invention "The World's Chronoscope." It consists of a white revolving disc of cardboard with the figures of a clock around the edge. By turning a pointer to Greenwich time, one is enabled through a series of cross-indexings to tell the time almost instantaneously in 570 states and countries.

Women Answer From 12 States

To date, Touring Reporters have visited the principal cities of 12 Southern states; have asked 1297 users their famous question: "Did CARDUI help you?"
Of those 1297 users, 1206 said they were definitely benefitted by CARDUI. That's 93 out of every 100. What a record!
CARDUI is a good stimulator for lagging appetites, a real aid to digestion and assimilation. That's why its proper use enables so many women and girls to build up physical resistance, and thus helps them avoid the periodic pain of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition.

Cat Discards Judgment Over Appetite for Fish

KERNVILLE, CALIF.—Mrs. Etta McDonald would like to know if the dominating intellectual quality of cats is intelligence or just perseverance.

Her pet cat, in search of its preferred diet of fish, delved its head too far into the fragmentary contents of a can of salmon and remained with its head inside until released the next morning in a virtual state of collapse. Sufficiently recovered, however, to begin life anew, it at once repeated the performance.

Woman Has Four Surnames But Married Only Once

HARRISBURG, ILL. — Although she has been married only once, Mrs. Marjorie Vincent, wife of Rev. John Paul Vincent, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Harrisburg, has legally had four different surnames in her lifetime.

Born Marjorie Brown, the daughter of a mining engineer, her parents died when she was a baby. Grandparents, adopting the orphaned child, gave her their name, Brookings. At the death of the grandparents, Marjorie Brookings was legally adopted by her maternal aunt, whose applied surname made her over into Marjorie Johnson. Thus it remained until she met and married the minister, John Paul Vincent.

Swain Brave Fellow, But He Goes to Jail

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—A young swain's fearlessness landed him in police court.

He was walking along a street with a girl friend when he decided to prove to her what a brave fellow he was.

"I'm not afraid of anybody. Just to show you," he said, "I'll knock down the first man that comes along."'

He did.

DAD AND DAUGHTER UNITED BY RADIO

Girl, Lost 23 Years, Talks to Her Father.

HAMMOND, IND.—For the first time in 23 years, a father and a daughter are talking to each other with the aid of radio amateurs in Hammond, Ind., and Los Angeles.

It was only recently that Walter Baden of Hammond found the daughter who was taken from him by his wife at the time of their divorce nearly a quarter of a century ago.

She is Mrs. Olive Carolyn Klar of Los Angeles, widowed mother of a four-year-old child. But neither she nor Baden had enough money to go to the other.

V. L. Harnack of Hammond, operator of amateur radio station W9-LMO, and Ashby Stratton of Los Angeles, station W6TMX, arranged for two-way conversation.

When the first talk was arranged, Baden approached the mike in Harnack's home tremblingly. He heard the faint words:

"Hello, daddy, can't you hear me? This is Olive."

All the things Baden had planned to say fled from his mind. Tearfully, he cried:

"Olive."

"It's—it's nice weather out here," Olive said.

Then suddenly she burst out:

"Oh, daddy, why can't we see each other? I'm so poor I had to borrow six cents for an airmail stamp to mail you a letter."

"We'll see each other soon," Baden promised her. "I'll find the money some way. We'll talk again soon. I'm sure."

And he wasn't mistaken, for Harnack and Stratton have arranged for other conversations between the father and his long-lost daughter until the time when they can be reunited—in person.

Indians Declare Cobra Always Verifies Its Kill

BEDAGAMA, CEYLON.—A cobra attended the inquest here of a man it had bitten, at least that is what natives believe.

While walking home one evening the man accidentally trod on the snake, which bit him. He ran the rest of the way home, about a quarter of a mile, and there collapsed and died.

During the inquest, which was held in the house the following evening, a cobra was noticed crawling about outside. Villagers caught it and showed it to the coroner, saying that it was the same one that had killed the man.

They explained that an injured cobra will often not be content with biting the person who injures it, but will follow him about afterward. If he escapes the first time, it will lie in wait and attack him again.

Chivalrous Cops Perform Ticklish Job for a Lady

EVANSTON, ILL.—Mrs. Helen Zaiser rang and rang the front door bell of her home. No luck. She had just returned from driving her maid home. Her husband, William, was dozing in an arm chair.

Getting chilly and annoyed, Mrs. Zaiser summoned Policemen George Hildebrecht and Walter Egebrecht. They forced open a living room window. But it was too far above the ground for them to enter.

Then Mrs. Zaiser had an inspiration. The policemen went to the garage, got a fishing pole, reached through the window and tickled Mr. Zaiser in the ribs. Mr. Zaiser awoke. Mrs. Zaiser got in.

Hunter Out Too Late, Is Treed by Three Bears

ELGIN, N. B.—Mike Layden has given up hunting—at least after sundown.

Returning from a belated deer-hunting expedition, Layden came face to face with three bears. Forgetting his guns and other equipment Mike took to a tall tree, where the bears held him prisoner for nearly six hours.

He was rescued when the hired man from his farm came looking for him and the noise he made tramping through the brush frightened the bears.

Skeleton at Car Wheel Jolts Three Pranksters

CAPETOWN.—Three young men in a North Natal town who had amused themselves by playing pranks on parked cars got a shock the other day when they opened a door of a car.

At the wheel was seated a skeleton dressed in a white shirt and felt hat.

One of the youths collapsed, one stood petrified and the third gave a terrified shriek.

ARKANSAS' DREAMS OF DIAMONDS FADE WHEN MINE PETERS

Ghost Town Now Where Once A Second Kimberley Was Expected.

CLARKSVILLE, ARK.—Chill winter winds sweep across a lofty, 700-acre plateau at Kimberley, in the Arkansas Ozarks, and rattle the flimsy timbers of a scattered group of weathered shacks—empty now, their framework like the clean picked bones of some long extinct monster thrown up from the maw of the dead volcanic crater which forms this plateau.

But those rickety buildings once formed the nucleus of what was to be a humming metropolis, built on the very top of a diamond mine which was to rival the African Kimberley fields for productivity.

Like Western Gold Towns.

But, like other ghost towns of the gold and silver regions of the West, the Ozarks' Kimberley died. An industry which was to have brought millions of dollars annually into Arkansas has yielded a bare $100,000 in 30 years of sporadic operations.

Diamond mines are rare. A bulletin of the United States geological survey once described the Arkansas field as the only diamond mines on the North American continent.

The bulletin also explained the most generally accepted theory of the formation of the valuable stones of crystalized carbon. The Arkansas field—the field proper—comprises an area of only about 60 acres.

This area, the bulletin said, is the mouth of a volcanic funnel or outlet through which flaming lava once poured under terrific pressure from the depths of the earth. With it the river of lava brought masses of peridiotite soil. Mingled in this fine, sterile earth were glittering bits of carbon forced into crystalization by the intense pressure existing miles below the earth's crust.

Gems Equal to Kimberley's.

When "Diamond John" Huddleston, Murphreesboro farmer, found the first two Arkansas diamonds, and they were of the highest quality—equal to those of the renowned Kimberley mines of South Africa—a rush to the 60 acre plot was made and when it was over the entire plot was cut up into small claims—the largest of these held by five separate corporations.

For a time operations went ahead on a primitive scale and several thousand dollars worth of diamonds were taken from the field. (The largest of these was a stone of 40.23 carats. Another of 20.25 carats was picked up and a third huge diamond of 17.86 carats was found.)

Then, for some reason—some sources say it was pressure from interests that wanted to prevent the Arkansas field from competing with Africa's Kimberley to force the price down—the mining operations slackened and died.

But, whatever the reason, the Arkansas diamond mines soon were forgotten by most.

Sporadic attempts have been made in the past 10 years to reopen the mines, but for some reason the efforts always fail.

And the dreams of an Ozark diamond empire fade again into the dreary aura which surrounds the ghost town of Kimberley.

Hobby Crocheter Irked; Loses on Year's Work

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—B. J. Haddan, a miller whose hobby is crocheting and quilting, is discouraged these days.

"It isn't right," he complained, "when you spend an entire year crocheting a bedspread and then see another fellow win a national championship with a spread not half so good."

Haddan said he learned his hobby the hard way from his mother.

"Whenever I made mistakes I got a spanking," he said.

He and his wife have teamwork when they quilt. She is right-handed and he's a southpaw, so they start in the middle and work to the sides.

Dog Wanders Home After Being Away for Two Years

CHICAGO.—Rex is just a dog, a wire-haired fox terrier, but he remembered what the old homestead looked like after two and a half years. The dog, owned by R. L. Snape and family, had been missing since July, 1936.

Recently, Mary Snape was walking near the family home and came upon a bedraggled mutt. She yelled "Rex," and the pup jumped up to lick her hand. Taken home, he remembered every member of the Snape family and ran straight to his bed in the basement.

Nobody knows where Rex was during the last couple of years.

White Tomato Developed By California Physician

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—It's El Tomato Blanco now—which means in Old Mexico the white tomato.

The colorless addition to the tomato family, the state department of agriculture disclosed, was so christened by Mexican workers employed by Dr. Jonas Clark, farmer and physician of Gilroy, who developed the product after eight years of experimentation.

Doctor Clark described the tomato as "absolutely white, about the same size as an ordinary tomato, but much sweeter."

Boy Aged Seven Really Sees World Topsy-Turvy

DECATUR, ALA.—The world is really upside down to Jimmie Peebles, seven-year-old Hillsboro (Ala.) school boy.

When Jimmie reads a book, a newspaper or magazine, he holds it the wrong way. When automobiles pass along the street, they seem to have their wheels in the air. He thinks persons would look natural if they walked on their hands.

At least, that's the way Jimmie explained his predicament to an eye specialist in Decatur, where he was brought for treatment.

The optometrist examined Jimmie's eyes and found vision normal. He said the lad is bright for a boy of his age. To test Jimmie, the doctor had him read a comic page. Jimmie read very well for a second grade pupil, but he held the paper upside down.

Jimmie's school teacher discovered his condition when she noticed him holding his reader upside down. It was easier to read that way, he said.

Then she tried the blackboard, and Jimmie read much more readily when it was inverted.

Florence Nightingale Pledge

The wording of the Florence Nightingale pledge follows: "I solemnly pledge myself before God and in the presence of this assembly, to pass my life in purity, and to practice my profession faithfully. I will abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous, and will not take or knowingly administer any harmful drugs. I will do all in my power to elevate the standard of my profession, and I will hold in confidence all personal matters committed to my keeping, and all family affairs coming to my knowledge in the practice of my calling. With loyalty will I endeavor to aid the physician in his work and devote myself to the welfare of those committed to my care."

Maple Springs

Our Sunday School attendance was rather small last Sunday, due to the fact that it was raining at that hour.

Prayer meeting will be held again next Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock. We urge that everyone come.

Next Sunday is our regular preaching day. Everyone is urged to come out and hear our pastor.

There was an all-day singing at this place last Sunday. In spite of the bad weather there was a large crowd and plenty of dinner which was enjoyed by all.

Directors for the day were as follows: Mr. Louis Kilpatrick, Clem Kilpatrick, Jimmie Ingram, Clarence Billingsley, Mrs. Johnnie Trice, Miss Ziana Litaker, all of Prattville; Mr. Jessie Jones, Pro. L. T. Grant of Clanton; Mr. Carlos Owens, Fonzie Coe, Clem Billingsley, Hiram Littlejohn, Leonard Culp and Woodrow Deason.

Pianists were Mrs. Earl Lowery, Miss Ziana Litaker, Mrs. Clarence Billingsley and Prof. L. T. Grant.

The Liberty Hill Quartette of Clanton and the Gospel Tabernacle Quartet of Prattville rendered several selections which were greatly enjoyed by all.

We invite each and everyone back to our singing society every fourth Sunday afternoon.

A Stereotype

A stereotype (Greek stereos, "solid, firm," and typos, "impression, mold") is a plate or cast made by taking an impression from plaster or wood pulp (which has received the impression from the type), and reproducing it in metal—perhaps a cylindrical plate for a press. From this stereotyped plate, thousands of copies may be printed.

We sometimes speak of phrases, ideas, manners, or actions as stereotyped, when they are molded according to some fixed plan, or are presented over and over again in an unvarying style. Stereotyped ideas stay in ruts.—Christian Science Monitor.

Arizona's Petrified Fores.

America's most famous petrified forest is in Arizona. The fossil trees there are species of pine, now extinct, which grew in the Age of Reptiles, or about 200,000,000 years ago. After falling, they were washed down a watercourse and lodged on a sand bank, where they eventually became buried under sand and clay. Later the sand and clay was washed away, leaving the bare trunks exposed. At one place a stone log 110 feet long forms a natural bridge across a deep gully which has been washed out under it.

Cancer Can Be Controlled

Education and the three accepted methods of treating cancer—surgery, radium, x-rays—give society the power to save thousands of persons who would otherwise be destroyed by this malignant disease. It is estimated by the American Society for the Control of Cancer that there are in the United States today, 150,000 persons with early cancer, cancer early enough to be cured entirely if it is diagnosed and treated promptly.

The techniques of treating cancer have been developed to a high degree of efficiency, but they must be applied to the disease when it is still a local condition. Most cases of late cancer are beyond cure. In other words the three curing weapons in the war on this disease depend for their success on education bringing patients to physicians and clinics in time for early diagnosis and treatment. Education clears the way for cures by radium, x-rays, and surgery as the Women's Field Army Against Cancer is now conducting a nationwide campaign of education under the slogan "Early Cancer Is Curable. Fight it With Knowledge." Congress, recognizing the importance of education, has set aside April as Cancer Control Month. This is the only disease against which Congress has taken such action. Progress in reducing cancer mortality depends at the present time on the support the public gives to such movements as the Women's Wield Army Against Cancer.

PILOT CLUB INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

—o—

MISS RUTH SESSIONS REPLACES MRS. OLIVE FIQUETTE AS PRESIDENT FOR YEAR

—o—

At the regular meeting of the Clanton Pilot Club of Clanton held last night, new officers for the coming year were installed as follows:

President—Miss Ruth Sessions replacing Mrs. Olive Fiquette; Vice President—Miss Nolan Meroney replacing Mrs. Bo Searcy; 2nd vice presiden—Mrs. Virginia Rummell replacing Mrs. Sophia Jones; Secretary—Miss Ruth Esco replacing Mrs. Willie Maude Kelly Norris; Treasurer—Mrs. Delilah Kelly Grant remaining; Reporter—Mrs. Bo Searcy replacing Mrs. Gertie Fiquette Towns.

Directors to serve until May 1, 1941, are as follows: Mrs. Zora Guy Smith, Miss Nolan Meroney, Miss Myra Johnson, Mrs. Olive Fiquette, Mrs. Mamie C. Smith, Miss Ruth Sessions, Miss Ethel Mae Jones.

The Pilot Club, composed of leading social, civic and business women of Clanton, has rendered a splendid service to this county during the past years since its organization in 1931.

Following is the speech given by Mrs. Fiquette Wednesday night before relinquishing the gavel as President, to Miss Sessions:

"Before being replaced as Captain of the Good Ship, Pilot, I would like to express my appreciation to each Pilot for the cooperation given during the past year.

"Since our basic principles are those of friendship and service, it was in this spirit that I performed the duty of my office and it was with love for my club that I gave untiringly of my efforts, for so long as we love we consider it a privilege to serve.

"The opportunities for the development of friendship within the club means a broadening of our field for service in social, business and civic life. Each Pilot by the practices of high ethical standards in her business and professional life may be distinguished from other women as a leader and guide ,which is the true meaning of Pilot.

"However, the most serviceable of all assets of a Pilot is reputation. Brains alone, however brilliant cannot win it. The most indespensable requisite is character.

"Our colors are green and gold. Green is a symbol of life and vigor. The life and vigor of our club depends upon the strength, character and cooperation of each individual to accomplish any objective which the club may hope to accomplish. The gold is a symbol of sincerity of purpose. Shakespeare said 'The gift without the giver is bare.' Without sincerity of purpose in the efforts expended for our club we cannot hope to accomplish the goals which we set for ourselves and cannot be ethical in our attitude toward our friends, and toward our club.

"The poem 'Building the Bridge For Him,' by W. A. Dromgoole well expresses a goal toward which we should strive.

"We who are facing problems today in our social, business and civic life and helping to solve these problems should be the builder who prepares the way for those who will enter business and professional life in Clanton in the future.

"It is with greatest sincerity that I urge each Pilot to re-pledge themselves as a leader and guide, through friendship and service, keeping in mind always a true course ever."

POSTMASTER HOSEA DOWNS PASSED AWAY

—o—

LIFELONG RESIDENT OF THIS COUNTY DIED IN MONTGOMERY HOSPITAL EARLY TUES.

—o—

The ctizenship of Clanton and Chilton County was saddened last Tuesday when it was learned that Postmaster Hosea R. Downs had passed away early Tuesday morning in a Montgomery hospital. Although in ill health for some time, his death came as an unexpected shock to the people here. He was fifty-one years of age.

Mr. Downs was a lifelong resident of this County. He attended medical college in Nashville, Tenn., and later in Mobile, Alabama. Although he possessed a Doctor's degree he practiced the profession for only a short while. He entered the hardware business with his father and later was engaged in the hardware wholesale business in Clanton.

Appointed as postmaster over four years ago, Mr. Downs served until his illness and death. He was a Mason of high standing and was active in all civic activities, and leaves behind legions of friends who mourn his passing.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ethel Mullins Downs; parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Downs, Sr.; one brother, Joe Ben Downs, Jr., of Lakeland, Fla.; one sister, Mrs. Ruby Pickens of Denver, Colorado.

Funeral services were conducted from the home today at 11:00 A.M. (Thursday), with the Rev. S. J. Ezell, assisted by the Rev. J. L. Daniel, in charge. Interment was in the Clanton cemetery with J. Mell Martin & Sons in charge.

13 Alabama Counties May Get Sum Of $50,243 Each

—o—

Representative Colmer, of Mississippi, has introduced a bill in Congress which, if passed, will require the government to pay annually to each of 13 Alabama Counties (including Chilton) three per cent of the actual purchase price of land acquired in that county under the reforestation and Bankhead-Jones farm tenancy acts.

Explaining the measure, he inserted in the congressional record a statement disclosing the government has bought 16,740,911 acres in 31 States and Puerto Rico in the reforestation program, paying $62,445,714 for them. He did not include lands purchased under the tenancy act.

In Alabama, Colmer said, the government has acquired 458,051 acres at a cost of $1,674,772 for reforestation.

"Unquestionably," he asserted, "this act on the part of the government is going to rebound to the benefit of the country as a whole.

"Under the provisions of the present legislation by which the government acquired these lands the counties are to receive 25 per cent of the gross receipts from timber and other assets sold by the forest service from the lands. The difficulty about this is that in most instances the gross income from such sales is negligible, due to the fact that the lands were largely denuded of all timber at the time of their acquisition by the government. This provision under statute would be ample remuneration to the counties in 25 years from now after the timber has developed, but the immediate difficulty is that there is no provision made for the interim period before this timber reaches a merchantable status."

Alabama counties which would benefit by Colmer's bill are Clarke, Monroe, Covington, Escambia, Calhoun, Clay, Dallas, Talladega, Cherokee, Cleburne, DeKalb, Bibb, Chilton, Perry, Winston and Lawrence.

Outbreak Of Food Poisoning In Clanton

—o—

At least eight persons were stricken with acute attacks of food poisoning over the week end, after eating cocoanut pie in a well known Clanton eating establishment, according to the weekly bulletin from the County Health Department.

The contaminated pie was baked by a bakery in Birmingham and newspaper reports from Brmngham indicate that seventeen or more persons were affected after eating the pie. Officials of the local Health Department have investigated the outbreak in Clanton and report that specimens of pies from the same bakery received on Monday, May 8, are being sent to the laboratory for bacteriological examination.

Most attacks of food poisoning, commented Dr. S.D. Sturkie, County Health Officer, are usually caused by a definite germ or organism being introduced into the food or by a human or animal carrier. A number of outbreaks have been traced to the contamination of food with rat feces.

The necessity for throwing every possible safeguard around the cooking and sale of food is well illustrated by outbreaks of food poisoning, the Health Officer said.

OUR MOST IMPORTANT ROAD

Chris Sherlock, Jr., the new highway chief, again scores a ten-strike with this part of the state in declaring that the Tuscaloosa-Montgomery Highway is "the most important unconstructed link in Alabama."

Mr. Sherlock goes on to say that the highway department is still trying to work out agreements with the various counties so that they will all cooperate in the movement. All of the highway in Montgomery County is paved, and the 23 miles through Autauga is under agreement. Progress has been made in Tuscaloosa County and to some exent in Bibb. Little progress has been seen for the 17 miles of highway through Chilton, but Mr. Sherlock hopes for an agreement before long.

This has always been the chief thorn in the side of the Tuscaloosa-Montgomery Highway advocates, inasmuch as the road skirts through the southwestern part of Chilton County, and thus misses Clanton, the principal town. It is natural that those in authority in Chilton are looking first to roads that will serve most of the people in the county. As we have said before, the system and not the people are wrong. But we cannot keep from believing that a satisfactory arrangement will finally be worked out. This highway is too important to prevent such an arrangement.

As Mr. Sherlock points out, the Tuscaloosa-Montgomery Highway was long a dream of the late W. Simpson Keller, first state road director. Mr. Keller wanted it called the "University Highway," and he always stressed the importance of this road which connected the state capital with the state's chief seat of learning.

The highway would cover in 98 miles a gap that the motorist now covers in 140, 150, or 160 miles, depending on his route. But it wouldn't stop there in usefulness. It would not merely provide a route between two important cities. It would serve a large territory in between these two, and it would give a new and direct route to the state capial for several counties in the western and northwestern part of Alabama. It would be almost as useful to such counties as Pickens, Fayette, Lamar and Marion as to us, and we are not so sure but that, with the completion of the Muscle Shoals-to-Mobile Highway as far as Tuscaloosa, it would be found useful by residents of Lauderdale, Colbert and Franklin. In the same fashion, it would give the people of Bullock, Pike, Barbour and Russell a decent direct highway connection, for the first time, with their state university.

Its importance can hardly be exaggerated, and it is difficult to see why it was not constructed long ago. From what is now coming out of Mobile, however, we will not need to wait long for action.—Tuscaloosa News.

"WATCH THE FARMS GO BY"

Here is another reason why Montgomerys best interest lies in development and improvement of the Coosa-Alabama river, especially with regard to flood control and prevention of soil erosion. The Mobile Daily Times states the case under the caption "Liquidating Farms" as follows:

"Says the Alabama Journal: 'Seeing the muddy Alabama river flow lazily past Montgomery this week, it is easy to appreciate the riverside remark, 'Watch the farms go by.'

"And down here in Mobile harbor and bay the government keeps dredges busy digging these same farms up and pouring them back onto the shore. It would be much cheaper to keep the farms in place than to gather them up again down here."—Alabama Journal.

STILL FIGHTING DISCRIMINATIONS

Addressing the Association of Commerce on Freight Rates, in New Orleans last Thursday, former Governor Bibb Graves predicted that the South would present a picture of inviting vigor to industry "when we shave off the discriminating freight rates by which the East has continued some of the exploiting advantages it enjoyed during reconstruction years."

"Our industry is now bucking a 16 to 40 per cent handicap in freight rates," he said in an interview on his arrival in New Orleans.

He summarized the freight rate situation as follows:

"North of the Ohio-Norfolk line, an arbitrary division, and east of the Mississippi River the freght rates, especially on manufactured goods, are 16 to 40 per cent hgher than they are south of that line.

"The Southern States, included within the southeastern territory, therefore, must buck this advantage if they wish to sell manufactured products in the East, the section of the country which contains most of the population of the United States and three-fourths of its buying power.

"Unless southern production has access to this enormous consuming market it can not get to first base, not unless it meets the differentials by taking it out of the wage envelope. It has been doing this—and on this has been built the industry that the South now has.

"This is unjust to the men and women of the South and it is economically unjust to the entire United States to restrict the purchasing power of any part of the nation.

"When the freight discriminations are removed you will see industry come into the South so fast it will make the statisticians dizzy."

GROWING SPIRIT OF WAR

"Wars have never been fought for humanitarian purposes," asserts Prof. R. Murray Christian, instructor in history at the University of Alabama, at a luncheon given by Mortar Board, senior honorary society for women, last week.

Prof. Christian urged women to use their influence in fostering a spirit of peace. The theme of his speech was the growing spirit of war.

"War never has settled any social or humanitarian problems," he said. Settlement of these problems through war is the excuse that selfish groups offer to cover their purposes in fostering conflict, Prof. Christian added.

Not condoning the actions of dictatorship nations, but insisting upon the necessity of settlement through intelligent and peaceful means, the speaker assured the group that the response to the stimulus of brass bands and uniforms furthered the spirit of war.

"Women should realize that the world has never been made a better place because of war," said the history professor. He urged that they lead a movement for peace and tolerance rather than fall into martial spirit.

IN THE LOOKING GLASS

Most of the cotton belt at one time or another has looked about for some convenient goat on which to hang the blame for cotton's deplorable condition. Bitterly has blame been piled on the Civil War and the war in China, high tariffs and high taxes, the boll weevil and the dictators, Washington and the weather.

Yet during National Cotton Week it may be well for the cotton belt to look into a place it has neglected—it's household mirror. There it will find a very unusual figure, one who is both partially responsible for the present condition of cotton, and the only one who has the power to bring about cotton's recovery.

The story of what others have done to cotton is tragic; but the story of what the cotton belt has done to it, and of what it has not done for it, is both tragic and inexcusable. Those to whom cotton means most have not bothered to be loyal in its use.

National Cotton Week offers the opportunity of the year for active and effective support of the agricultural product on which twenty-five million Americans depend for all or part of their income. In sponsoring it the National Cotton Council and other agencies have not asked for sacrifices or inconveniences in behalf of a public cause. Rather have they asked the people of the cotton belt to invest their money in modern merchandise offering full returns in style, smartness and serviceability. They ask the logical maintenance of an American market for one of America's greatest crops—a crop whose products give to every purchaser a little more than his money's worth.

Catalina Island's Unique Quail Hunters' Delight

SACRAMENTO, CALIF. — The dream of every nimrod—a bag limit of the tastiest birds of the Pacific coast within an hour.

And that dream comes true every day for scores of hunters romping the hills of Santa Catalina island, opening to quail hunting this season for the first time in 30 years.

Such glowing reports pour in daily to state fish and game division here.

An investigation revealed that the Santa Catalina quail is a species entirely peculiar to the island and is found nowhere else in the world.

The bird is 7 per cent larger than the mainland variety and more heavily scaled on the lower breast, with broader streaks on the flanks and lower tail coverts, according to reports.

Walks Should Be Aimless, Peripatetic Expert Says

A walk should never have an objective. If you have it firmly fixed in your mind, at the outset of your walk, that you are on your way to Cousin Ella's or that you are going to get a pound of raisins, the awareness of this objective will gnaw constantly at your subconscience, like a maggot in a walnut. It will tinge your sensibilities and irritate your psyche. Do not, therefore, have an objective. Just go for a walk.

The taking of a walk must never be a premeditated ritual. It must not be an event that is planned in advance, like a bridge party or an application for a bank loan, but must be as spontaneous as a sudden smile.

One of these days, while you are quietly sitting reading—or doing the housework or tidying the cellar or whatever—the notion will suddenly and unaccountably flit across your consciousness that it would be pleasant to take a walk. You must act upon this notion instantly. Do not attempt to think up reasons or pretexts or objectives for the walk. Just open the door and go out.

A Stereotype

A stereotype (Greek stereos, "solid, firm," and typos, "impression, mold") is a plate or cast made by taking an impression from plaster or wood pulp (which has received the impression from the type), and reproducing it in metal—perhaps a cylindrical plate for a press. From this stereotyped plate, thousands of copies may be printed.

We sometimes speak of phrases, ideas, manners, or actions as stereotyped, when they are molded according to some fixed plan, or are presented over and over again in an unvarying style. Stereotyped ideas stay in ruts.—Christian Science Monitor.

Arizona's Petrified Fores.

America's most famous petrified forest is in Arizona. The fossil trees there are species of pine, now extinct, which grew in the Age of Reptiles, or about 200,000,000 years ago. After falling, they were washed down a watercourse and lodged on a sand bank, where they eventually became buried under sand and clay. Later the sand and clay was washed away, leaving the bare trunks exposed. At one place a stone log 110 feet long forms a natural bridge across a deep gully which has been washed out under it.

Cancer Can Be Controlled

Education and the three accepted methods of treating cancer—surgery, radium, x-rays—give society the power to save thousands of persons who would otherwise be destroyed by this malignant disease. It is estimated by the American Society for the Control of Cancer that there are in the United States today, 150,000 persons with early cancer, cancer early enough to be cured entirely if it is diagnosed and treated promptly.

The techniques of treating cancer have been developed to a high degree of efficiency, but they must be applied to the disease when it is still a local condition. Most cases of late cancer are beyond cure. In other words the three curing weapons in the war on this disease depend for their success on education bringing patients to physicians and clinics in time for early diagnosis and treatment. Education clears the way for cures by radium, x-rays, and surgery as the Women's Field Army Against Cancer is now conducting a nationwide campaign of education under the slogan "Early Cancer Is Curable. Fight it With Knowledge." Congress, recognizing the importance of education, has set aside April as Cancer Control Month. This is the only disease against which Congress has taken such action. Progress in reducing cancer mortality depends at the present time on the support the public gives to such movements as the Women's Wield Army Against Cancer.

CLANTON KIWANIS CLUB

"We Build"

A STATEMENT FROM THE CLUB PRESIDENT;

TO THE CITIZENS OF CHILTON COUNTY:

Since the Clanton Kiwanis Club was established in March nineteen twenty-eight—over eleven years ago—it has striven constantly for the betterment of Chilton County as a whole. We have tried to live up to the Kiwanis motto: "We Build."

Looking back over the years we can proudly point to many improvements in Clanton and the County for which the Kiwanis Club was directly or indirectly responsible, and it is most gratifying to every member to know that the Club is stronger today than at any time since its establishment.

But as we review the accomplishments of the Kiwanis Club, so do we look forward into the future at what can be done by this organization of business and professional men, and suffice to say, we find the field broader today than ever before. There are many things our town and county needs—much work that can be done to help create a higher standard of living in our community. We have set out a number of objectives for 1939, and with the cooperation of our citizenship we hope to be able to point to achievements at the close of the year that will be a source of pride to all of us.

In this section of the Chilton County News and Union Banner may be found information of interest about the work of the Kiwanis Club, and advertisements from progressive business men and establishments over the county. These advertisements speak a progressive language, and their appearance in this section is evidence of their faith in the future of our County. Read these advertisements, for each contains a message of interest.

Money raised from the publication of this section will be used wisely by the Club in carrying on the work that lies ahead of us. May I, as president, extend the sincere appreciation of the Club to all who have cooperated in any way.

Yours for a Bigger and Better Chilton County,

J. C. PAGE, President.

KIWANIS CALLS FOR HIGHEST IDEALS AND PRACTIC

Former Active Kiwanian Selects One Of Outstanding Objectives Of Kiwanis As Subject For Interesting Article

"To Give Primacy To The Human And Spiritual Rather Than Material Values Of Life"

(By W. M. [Mack] Wyatt)

I wonder what the average citizen of Clanton and Chilton county thinks about Kiwanis—if you have observed or experienced anything which impressed you that it is a worthwhile community factor.

Kiwanis has been with you and a very active agency in your community for more than ten years now. I got in it when it first started in Clanton and stayed in it as long as I was there. I would be in it yet if I were where it is. One of the many good things about Kiwanis is the fact that if you are once a Kiwanian, you are always a Kiwanian, even after cessation of active club membership.

Kiwanis members themselves have learned that its principles implant in them and radiate to others a correct, forceful and effective formula for carrying on a life of usefulness to one's community, and of friendly understanding and genuine neighborliness to one's fellow-men.

It is easy to see what the veteran Kiwanis member thinks about the values of life. It is, moreover, easy to see how the new club member reacts and "takes" to Kiwanis ideals and practices. But the one thing that keeps Kiwanis from being perfect is that we can not know the pulse of our public in regard to what we seek to do in our club's objectives and programs of service.

W M. WYATT

What, then, do you think of Kiwanis?

Maybe you have seen it only materially. Certainly you have seen the outward performances of the members as individuals and as a group. There are no secrets to it. You have seen them at work for various things in the community. You have seen them at meetings, at banquets, on outings. You have heard them make speeches, sing songs, tell jokes, and have a good time.

Have you taken the interest to look inside of those men and see the spirit that moves them in their work and in their lives? Have you felt the pulse of human sentiment that throbs in them? Have you rubbed elbows with them and felt the warmth of their open hearts that gives them and you a closer friendliness and a better chance to reason and understand all things between you?

When you rub up against a Kiwanis member, I would not have you expect to find him sprouting wings or anything like that. I would like for you, though, to consider the following statement of principle, which is one of the mud-sills under the Kiwanis structure:

"To give primacy to the human and spiritual, rather than the material values of life."

Would you think folks in these days have time to devote to such idealistic purposes as giving primacy to the human and spiritual, rather than the material values of life?

Or, do you think the business man seeks only to extract the pound of flesh out of which he may squeeze and distill the cold profits of dollars and cents?

Kiwanis believes in the Biblical doctrine of recognizing human and spiritual values first. It insists upon it. It practices it. And, furthermore, it has proven the ultimate and final cor- plied through Kiwanis and injected in- rectness of the principle as it is ap- to the life-stream of average people and average business men, such as you find in Clanton and Chilton county.

Now, if you have not seen some indication of the effect of such practices, such principles, then to my mind you have missed the most precious of the many jewels that constitute the treasure chest of Kiwanis.

The Kiwanis spirit of a better mutual understanding has worked well among the business men of Clanton and Chilton county. It has made business men community-conscious. It has made them seek to find—and they have found—the same human interest and spiritual values in their customers that they found in their competitors through association in Kiwanis. Kiwanis has made friends out of business men in Clanton who otherwise would never have been to each other anything but cold, ruthless competitors seeking only the dollar. Not all business men in Chilton county are in Kiwanis, it is true, but they all keep a close watch on their competitors. When one observes a competitor succeed with an idea, he loses no time in adopting that idea, or preferably a little better one, if he can find it.

In this way a few business men in Kiwanis in Clanton several years ago made the Kiwanis ideal of primacy of human and spiritual values a part of their stock in trade, and proved its success. Others in a more or less degree have taken up the practices, until the ideal has gained a wide recognition in the conduct of business men throughout the county. Have you ever noticed any signs of it?

What wise banker does not know there is the greatest asset in the human and spiritual value of an individual? Your banker talks much about collateral and material values. He may not tell you so, but of he knows you do not have good character, he will demand that you get some endorsers to go with your collateral. That is just what Kiwanis means when it says we seek to give primacy—to put first—the human and spiritual, rather than the material values of life.

Ask your preacher what he thinks about the spiritual objectives of Kiwanis. From its very beginning in Clanton Kiwanis has had among its most powerful and zealous supporters the pastors of the churches. Such men staying in Kiwanis and supporting it fully and faithfully has been absolute proof that the thing is founded upon and operated by rules that mean something in the lives of men.

I have seen the spirit of Kiwanis work for better approaches to the problems of schools and education. Schools are fertile fields for jealousy, misunderstanding, selfishness, and many things that work the disintegration of the golden rule. People who are the least bit disposed to overlook the rights and trample upon the feelings of a neighbor, sometimes have been known to use the schools, the school board, the teachers, and the pupils as their means of approach. I have seen efforts of this kind go up against the spirit of Kiwanis, and every time the Kiwanis principle was victor, if not to the chagrin of the aggressor, yet to the eternal strengthening of the body of the school.

We have had some doctors who could not be shaken from their faith in the Kiwanis spirit. Who is more justified than the doctor to lay claim to exemplification of that prnicipie which recognizes human and spiritual values, rather than the material things of life? Few doctors are rich in the world's goods. The richest of them count their treasures in items of service done for humanity. One of the ancient philosophers has said that all one can hold in his cold dead hands as he enters the other world is that which he has given away. I know many doctors who will have more to carry to St. Peter than they can hold in both hands.

Kiwanis has given generously to Clanton and Chilton county in terms of human and spiritual values. And in turn, we have seen a broad reciprocity on the part of people generally.

Your newspapers have been better community servants in the past ten years through interpretation and practice of the Kiwanis spirit. They have been better newspapers because they have enjoyed the field of a better community.

Kiwanis does not dabble in politics. If it did, it would not have lived and prospered in Chilton county for ten years. But I can conceive of no finer thing than for the principle of primary recognition of human and spiritual values to become the dominating influence in the conduct of our public business, just as I believe it should be with individuals.

Better understanding among people, a full and free balance of correct human and spiritual relations one toward another, makes better citizens in every phase of life. This is what Kiwanis has sought to do and to help do in Clanton and Chilton county. It is not a commercial club, though in many circumstances, there being no organized commercial club in Clanton, Kiwanis has had to assume a quasi-commercial role in order to get some things done.

But material things eare not the measure of Kiwanis. To see its fullest accomplishments, one must look into the hearts of people. The seeds of harmony and right spiritual conduct one toward another, as they have been dropped regularly one by one into the hearts of men in the club, have been as pebbles dropped into a mill pond. The resultant waves of good have spread in ripple after ripple until the effects have touched the borders of the county and have extended even beyond.

Kiwanis will never bring everybody around to the practice of its principles of spirituality and humanness, even as the churches will never get everybody to accept the plan of salvation. But its objectives, its aims are good and right, and its usefulness will endure as long as men live together.

Kiwanis does not claim to be the discoverer or inventor of the principle of primacy of the human and spiritual, rather than the material values of life. But it does pride itself upon devising a practical plan whereby that principle is made a ruling force in the lives of thousands of influential men who, otherwise, perhaps, would never have applied it in their lives.

Sciences, arts, mechanics, all would be of no service without agencies to cause men to learn how to use them. Likewise spiritual processes and human values, the art of knowing one's fellowman and understanding him in daily contacts of business and society would be a lost treasure to the world were it not for such agencies as Kiwanis to teach us how well and how easily we may use them.

Such teaching has literally made thousands of communities. We would not claim it is all that has contributed to the making of Clanton, but it must be admitted that it has done a good part of the job in the last decade.

Our doctrine may be expressed very appropriately in paraphrase of a passage of the Bible, which, when Kiwanisized, would read something like this:

Seek first the perfection of human relations and spiritual ideals in life and all the necessary attendant material values will be added.

County Agent Writes of Progress Made By Organization During Last Quarter Century

Chilton county is located in the geographic center of Alabama. Four-fifths of the 24,000 people who live in Chilton county earn their living on the farm. Practically all of the other one-fifth would perish without the farm income. Clanton, the county site and the home of the Clanton Kiwanis Club, is the cross roads of two main highways of the State; U. S. 31 and Alabama 22. This gives the farmers a good outlet by truck for the products of the farm. The main line of the L. & N. Railroad extends through the central part of the county with five stations. The M. & O. Railroad crosses the west side of the county with three stations. The Southern Railroad crosses the west side of the county with four stations. There are two express agencies operating in the county — Southern Railway Express and American Railway Express companies. This gives good transportation facilities by rail for the products of the farm. There are very few people in Chilton county who live more than seven miles from a railroad station.

One thousand and forty-seven farmers own the farm they operate. There are 2,240 tenants. The farming population is predominately white with only 152 negro families on farms.

As this article is being prepared extension workers and others who are specially interested in the type of education the Extension Service is engaged in, are celebrating the 25th anniversary of the Smith-Lever Act, the congressional enactment which made federal funds available for extension work throughout the United States.

It has been more than 25 years since Chilton county first had a county agent. Mr. W. H. Conway was employed in Chilton county in 1908 as county agent. He worked in the county for a period of approximately 10 years. For some reason he retired to a farm in the northern part of the county

Mr. Conway told me that corn was being shipped to Chilton county by the carloads and sold to farmers to

J. W. FANT
Chairman Agriculture Committee

feed mules to produce cotton in Chilton county when he started working as county agent. In addition to importing corn he stated that meat was being sold to farmers in large quantities. After working with the farmers in encouraging them to produce more feed and food for home use, and improving their land by terracing and crop rotation, he stated that the farmers were actually shipping corn and hogs out of the county in large quantities when he retired.

Evidence of Mr. Conway's work as County Agent is easily seen in the county today. This county was the first one in Alabama and among the first in the whole United States to terrace farm lands. Many of the older farmers very often speak of the work done by Mr. Conway.

It was during Mr. Conway's time as County Agent that the boll weevil threatened cotton, the only cash crop Chilton county had. He helped the farmers adjust their farming operations and get going on other crops and livestock. Today the farmers are producing approximately 50% more cotton per acre under boll weevil conditions than they did prior to the time when bool weevils came to Chilton county.

From the time Mr. Conway was county agent until 1927 Chilton county did not have extension work. In 1927 Mr. C. E. Stapp was employed as County Agent and worked for a period of approximately six years. During the time Mr. Stapp was county agent he placed emphasis on soil conservation and did lots of work in terracing farm lands. He also emphasized better fertilizer for cotton and corn, the planting of winter legumes, and livestock production.

The Extension Service has for many years emphasized the importance of better varieties of crops and better fertilizers. As a result crop yields have been tremendously increased. The planting of winter cover crops has been emphasized since 1918, but Chilton county farmers planted very few winter cover crops until after 1927 when they planted a few hundred pounds. This has increased until 1938 they planted 244,000 pounds of winter cover crops.

While Mr. Stapp was county agent he helped the farmers get a good many pure-bred Jersey cattle, and from time to time since then more pure-bred cattle have been brought to the county. At present there are about 15 pure-bred Jersey bulls scattered about over the county that are being used to breed to common cows and increase further the productivity of the home dairy cows.

Dairying has grown to the extent that approximately 500 farmers are selling some form of dairy products. Last year about 15 pure-bred Jersey bulls were sold to people outside of Chilton county. In 1938 three of the most highly bred Jersey bulls in the South were placed in Chilton county to be used as foundation stock. During the last four years Mr. R. M. Foshee, Clanton, Ala., Route 4, has developed one of the best herds of Guernsey cows to be found in Alabama, and is selling breeding stock to people in all parts of the State.

Up until a few years ago there were very few beef cattle grown in Chilton county. During the last few years there has been a tremendous demand for pure-bred beef type bulls in Chilton county, and at the present time there are more than 40 farmers who own pure-bred beef type bulls that they are breeding to common cows and selling beef calves. This has added considerably towards the total income of Chilton county.

In 1938 the county agent was instrumental in getting placed in Chilton county a good Jack, one of the best and largest Jacks in Alabama, to be bred to the work mare, and it is hoped that Chilton county will soon be producing a lot of good mules and thereby save the farmers a lot of money for purchase of workstock.

In 1926 the county agent was instrumental in placing a number of pure-bred Duroc Jersey hogs in Chilton county, and from this small start there are several hundred pure-bred hogs scattered over Chilton county at the present time. In 1938 a litter of pigs farrowed by one of the original sows brought to the county in 1926 was grown out and shown at the ton-litter show in Montgomery, and was one of the best litter of pigs ever shown in Alabama. This litter weighed 3,410 pounds at six months and 12 days old.

Practically every farmer produces some poultry for home use. There are about 500 farmers who produce poultry and poultry products for the market. The county agent has been instrumental in establishing an accredited hatchery in Clanton where the farmers may secure quality chicks, and as a result a good many farmers have developed a fairly good flock of chickens. By way of example: One farmer with less than 800 hens produced a total income of approximately $2,600.00, and a net income of over $1,300.00 in 1937. Many farmers sell poultry to the cooperative poultry cars each year. The county agent has been instrumental in holding these poultry sales and for the past four years the savings to the farmers through cooperative poultry sales has amounted to more than the county appropriation for county agent work.

For a good many years a few farmers in Chilton county have been producing strawberries and peaches for the commercial market. In 1939 approximately 250 farmers havested about 457 acres of strawberries, and are just completing one of the most successful seasons they have had in many years. Approximately 100 farmers have about 250 acres of peach orchard, and indications are now that they will harvest a good crop in 1939. Seven hundred and forty farmers planted 3,000 acres of watermelons in 1938 for market, and indications are that this will increase in 1939. A good many farmers grow other vegetables and truck crops for the market.

For a good many years after the boll weevil struck Chilton county the farmers produced a short stapled cotton that would mature early and produce in spite of the boll weevil. This continued until 1933 when approximately 65% of all the cotton produced in Chilton county had a staple of less than 7-8 inches. This was very undesirable. In 1934 a campaign for better stapled cotton was started. The farmers began to grow Dixie Triumph, D. P. L.-11, Stoneville No. 5, and a few other good varieties. In 1938 a very small percentage of the cotton produred in Chilton county had a staple less than 7-8 inch in length. Practically 50% of the cotton produced in Chilton county in 1938 stapled an inch or better.

All this adds up to considerable progress among the farm people during the last few years. The farmers have made tremendous progress in the production of crops and livestock. There needs to be some plan of successful marketing of farm products worked out. The Extension Service has had no small part in helping the farmers produce more efficiently. The county agent is helping a group of leading farmers in working out a plan for the marketing of farm products in Chilton county. It is hoped that by the Spring of 1940 a marketing agency will be set up that will handle all types of truck and fruit crops in the same manner that the Clanton Berry Growers Association is handling strawberries for its members.

The Clanton Kiwanis Club has been active in its support of the Extension Service and farm programs ever since its organization.—J. W. Fant.

IMM. PAST PRESIDENT HICKS WRITES ABOUT EDUCATION

TODAY'S CHALLENGE TO EDUCATION

By PATTERSON HICKS
Principal, Chilton County High School

One of the most interesting things in the history of education, especially in the United States, is the conflict between classified education and practical or vocational education. Society has always demanded that her institutions furnish leadership for the people. If these organized institutions failed to furnish leaders, then other leadership appeared, and usually these organizations were changed to meet the needs of society, or were abolished altogether.

An idea, long common in the minds of many people regarding education, is that a thing must be very old or very difficult, or both, in order to have cultural values. The struggle to have practical knowledge taught in school is indeed a long one. Every time an effort has been made to put something of practical everyday use into the course of study of the school, the objcetion has been raised that the cultural standards of the school were being lowered and the main purpose of education was being miscarried.

In this good year of 1939 when the tax payer is eager to know what is being done with the money spent by the schools, we find Mr. John Q. Public asking a number of questions about what is the purpose of a public school system. The tax payer wants something for his money that can be measured in dollars and cents, or at least can be seen in a more desirable form of living. The challenge today's society is giving the schools reads something like this: "Teach our boys and girls to do better those desirable things they are going to do anyway." Education for the future must justify itself by the results it produces in society. We are ready to admit that many things happening in human soceity today are undesirable, and the schools must assume their share of the responsibility for replacing the undesirable by what is more desirable

In an article so short as this detailed discussion cannot be had as to how this can be done, suffice it to say that the schools of today must be an actual living situation, where the young citizen meets the problems of life and finds a satisfactory solution for them. In the schools of today he learns to live, and not merely learn something that he will need years after he leaves schools.

CLANTON PILOT CLUB---WE SALUTE YOU!

"True Course Ever"

Now that you have just set your course for another year of sailing under the guiding hand of your new President, we salute you, Calnton Pilots!

For a number of years now, you have sailed on a true course, and just as we assure each and every one of you on the night when Kiwanians and Pilots meet for a round table discussion of the problems ahead, we assure you at this time our sincere appreciation of your cooperation in the past, and look ahead into the future with the knowledge that combined, the efforts of our two organizations will accomplish much towards bringing about that for which we both stand—the advancement of our community, its welfare and its progress—the prosperity and happiness of its people.

Erosion Control And Forest Fire Prevention Advocated By Kiwanis

One of the grave problems facing the South, Alabama, and even Chilton county today is erosion control.

Erosion has, and is, taking its toll of the fertile soil of our lands. Within the past few years agriculture leaders have been striving to check this grave menace to the farm lands of the South by educating the farmers and people as a whole to the proper control of erosion.

One of the first steps in controlling erosion is the preservation of our forests. It is a well known fact that trees check erosion. It is also a fact that fire is taking its toll of the forests in the South—Alabama, and Chilton county.

The first of each of the past few years the Clanton Kiwanis Club has furnished attractive calendars that urge the prevention of forest fires. One particular calendar compares our trees with the youth of today—they grow up together, and each has its place in the world.

Another calendar issued by the Club makes the truthful statement that “Saplings Save The Soil,” and that Reforestation and prevention of forest fires is vitally important in conserving the top soil.

Active in the prevention of forest fires is the 4-H Clubs of the country. The Chilton county 4-H Clubs under the leadership of C. L. Breedlove, present assistant county agent in charge of 4-H Club work, is active in this respect. Mr. Breedlove is also a member of the Agriculture Committee of the club.

Signs Placed By Kiwanis Club Along Roads Get Comments

One of the undertakings of the Clanton Kiwanis Club which has received wide commendation is the placing of signs, attractive and noticeable, along the public roads of Chilton county. These signs urge the prevention of forest fires. Many newcomers to this county, and tourists passing through the county have commented favorably on this worthwhile step on the part of the Club.

The Kiwanis Club does not take all the credit for these signs, other than originating the idea and sponsoring the move. The cost of the signs are borne by the merchants of the county, whose firm name appears in the wording. The Club as a whole believes that this is one of its most outstanding undertakings, and one that is going far in impressing upon the public the importance of preserving our forests.

Chilton County Is Land Of Opportunity

Truly Chilton county is a veritabl land of opportunity. Few rural counties, or for that matter few countie at all, in Alabama can boast greate opportunities than are to be found here in Chilton, in the very heart o Central Alabama. Vocationally speaking, Chilton county is principally agricultural, but it has hidden fortune in industrial advantages. And ther is no estimating what the future ma bring to light in the form of minerals waterway transportational develop ment, industrial growth, general pro gress and prosperity.

The one truly outstanding featur that makes Chilton county a leade today is that nearly every man an woman in the county is “master o his fate and captain of his soul.” N great landholders can make peons o our people. A large percentage of i citizenship own their homes and ar free agents in earning and spendin their incomes. This accounts to great extent for the fact that Chilto county's history has been a story continuous progress even in years adversity.

Those hardy pioneers from the Vi ginias and Carolinas, whose creaki oxcarts rumbled their tedious wa along the aisles of the magnifici forests of Central Alabama, litt thought of the vast resources throu which they wandered. No Upp Creek Chieftain, even in his wilde dreams, could visualize the passage his race to be supplanted by a mo thrifty people whose children wou live to enjoy the vast wealth lyi dormant in the fertile soils of th favored region. The fertile san loam soils of Central Alabama produ abundantly, and diversified farming fast coming into its own here, repla ing King Cotton as monarch and a solute.

During the past few years, tru farming has become a recogniz source of income in Chilton coun The production and sale of strawb ries has meant much to the farme of this area, and is looked forwa to in the springtime by businessm as a stimulant that helps greatly overcoming the lean summer mont Fruit growing and marketing, t brings a considerable amount of rea cash into the county each year. S of butterfat is a source of income, is poultry raising and livestock p duction.

New industries are needed in Chilt county to balance agriculture, a there are many advantages in the f or of industries who might seek lo tion in this section. Climatic con tions are conducive to good heal Labor and raw materials are to found in abundance. Outstanding advantages of industry is the fact t Central Alabama is the center of dro-electric power production in South.

Chilton county has been fortun ever in having officials who rec nized the importance of progress, have contributed much to the devel ment of the county and its people. area can progress except in proport to the conception of its leader. T are the ones upon whose shoulde must first fall the burden of rec nizing the opportunities available then win the cooperation of the of the people in bringing about realization of their dreams.

Kiwanians Carry Farmers To Auburn Each Year

It has been the custom of the Clanton Kiwanis Club for several years to carry a group of farmers of this county to Auburn in the Spring or Summer, to visit the experiment station to see what is going on and view the results of efforts being made to meet the problems of the farmer in a scientific way.

Late last Summer the Club furnished transportation for over three hundred farmers and members of their families to the Experiment Station. As the Club has as one of its major objectives agriculture cooperation, in which they are endeavoring to assist as far as possible members of the county's leading occupation, this trip given the farmers, has as its sole purpose to bring about improved crops, the growing of which will bring increased profits to our farmers.

Busses are usually used to transport these visiting Auburn with the Kiwanians each year. The expense of the trip usually ranges in the vicinity of seventy-five dollars. This money comes out of the treasury of the Club. County Agent, J. W. Fant, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, has charge of the trip each year.

‘MARK REMARKS’ ABOUT KIWANIS AND VOICES OPINION OF COUNTY

Publisher Of News Expresses Faith In Future Of Chilton And Kiwanis Club

“Only live fish swim up stream.” Only live men belong to Clanton Kiwanis. Their sole interest is in building a better, more progressive, more co-operative, more neighborly community — countryside and city alike. Their efforts are constant and untiring in this behalf. The past accomplishments of Clanton Kiwanis plainly reflects its future activities—building, building, building.

More than six months sojourn since “settling” in Chilton county, the “Heart of Alabama,” convinces me that this is not “one of,” but the best county in many respects in the State.

The spirit of co-operation concerning the well-being of the commonwealth; the willingness to “give and take” in controversial issues; the policy of “live, and let live,” in the marts of trade, make it so.

Add to this practically one hundred per cent loyalty to the ideal that in the Christian home, and the Christian community, lies the nation's salvation, and you have my reason for believing—that we have here in the “Heart of Alabama” what the State, the Nation and the World needs.—MARK.

Climbing Kangaroos

Members of the American Museum of Natural History Expedition to Dutch New Guinea have discovered 11 specimens of tree-climbing kangaroos. They are five to six feet over-all length and come from the slopes of the Cyclop mountains, just behind Hollandia. These rare kangaroos climb like the natives reaching up with their front paws, then hoisting themselves as the rear paws follow.

St. Francis' Tomb

Sancien island, scene of the establishment of the first Christian mission in the Orient, is the land in which St. Francis Xavier established a mission in spite of efforts to keep him and his devoted band out of the Orient. And on this island he lies buried. In late August, 1552, he landed on the island, called Chang-shuen-shan, off the coast of Kwang-tung which served as a rendezvous for Europeans. Soon after his arrival Xavier was seized with a fever, and died there.

Kiwanis Internationa Convention Will Be Held In Boston Soon

This year the International Conv tion of Kiwanis will be held in B ton, Mass., June 18-22. A most in esting program has been planned these four days. Delegates from Clanton Club have been elected to tend this convention, and a special fort will be made to have repres tation at the Convention this year.

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE DISCUSSED BY LOCAL TEACHER

J. H. Jackson, Teacher of Vocational Agriculture At Chilton County High School, Tells of Progress Being Made; Kiwanis Instrumental In Securing Local Unit

(J. H. Jackson)

Vocational Agriculture is a program designed for farm boys. It is sponsored jointly by the Federal Government, State and County. Vocational Agriculture was started during the year of 1918, under the Smith-Hugher Bill. The county furnishing the building and equipment and the State and government paying the salary of the teacher.

Each rural school that wishes to have an agriculture department has to meet certain conditions and agree to maintain the department after it is established. Each state has an alloted sum of money which they match dollar for dollar. This sum of money is not near enough to establish a department in each of the schools that have made applications, therefore, the schools are selected that have the most ideal conditions and the support of the local civic organizations, such as the Kiwanis Club which played a big part in securing the department for Chilton County High School.

The agriculture teacher has to be a college graduate in agricultural education; also has to have as much as two years of actual farm experience.

Agriculture is taught on the basis of a person—learns by doing. Each boy carries on the actual farm practices. He carries three projects under the supervision of the agriculture teacher:

(1) Farm crops — such as cotton, corn, hay, peanuts, Etc.

(2) Livestock and poultry, swine production, beef production, dairy and poultry, Etc.

(3) Horticulture—truck crops, garden, orchard, home beautification, Etc.

For each project he tries to carry out the recommendations that have proven to be best suited for his conditions. These projects are selected by the boy, with the father and the teacher. From these projects a boy should learn the best methods of carrying out farm practices, so when he starts on a farm of his own he is much better prepared to do a good job of farming.

In addition to the above he is taught how to do his own shop work, for example: Make singletrees, wagon beds, plow beams, repair farm tools, sharpen plows and how to use the tools in making and repairing a number of things on the farm which will make it much easier in carrying out the daily jobs that have to be performed.

Cooperative buying and selling is put into practice by the boys. This year they have bought feed for about 30,000 chicks and sold in a group which has netted nice profits. They have closed a contract for the coming year with a hatchery to take eggs from 2,200 hens of several leading breeds. These eggs bring 40 cents per dozen.

The agriculture students have an organization which is known as the Future Farmers of America. In this organization leadership is developed, along with a number of other things that are worth while for the boys and the community. They enter essay contests, public speaking contests, take education tours each Summer, give radio broadcasts, sponsor improvement projects, aid in helping put on the County Fair, by entering exhibits and demonstrations; aid in organization of evening schools for the adult farmers and the different improvement group associations. The Kiwanis Club has worked with this organization by incouraging them to push forward and helping them accomplish their objectives outlined in their program of work.

Evening schools are taught in the farm communities that will cooperate with the agriculture teacher by giving their attendance. This year an evening school was held at the Concord school with 109 on roll. In the evening schools the problems of the farmers are discussed. They select the topics they want discussed. Usually 16 meetings are held during the winter months, when the the farmers are not very busy.

The department has an acre of land on which demonstrations are carried out. These demonstrations are planned mostly by the boys. This year we have in our plat about 25 demonstrations which is a big help in teaching.

FARM SECURITY ADMINISTRATION IS RENDERING VALUABLE SERVICE

Facts Regarding Services Being Rendered Farmers Of This County Given Out By Marving Durbin, Local Rehabilitation Supervisor; Active 4 Years

The record of service by the Farm Security Administration to the farmers of this county, in the four years since it was established was reviewed by Marvin Durbin, county rehabilitation supervisor. The order setting up this agency was signed by the President April 30, 1935.

Since the commencement of this work in Chilton county more than 521 farm families have received some form of benefit from it, either in the form of a supervised loan, help in adjusting farm debts, or in some cases, outright grants.

Standard loans made to families without credit facilities for necessary feed, seed, livestock, farming equipment, and capital goods necessary to place their farms on a productive basis, are assisting these farm families in regaining economic security.

The 1939 program in this county so far has loaned $72,400.00 to 307 families. "We sad a fine record last year," said Mr. Durbin, "and this year we expect to better this record. The present outlook for rehabilitation families is very bright and I am confident that when the harvest is made these families will have repaid their government loans and will have advanced a step or two up the rehabilitation ladder."

Supplementing the loan program the county supervisor's office cooperate in establishing community and cooperating services for low-income families and in farm debt adjustment work being carried on by the local county committees.

During the past year, with the help of the county and assistant county supervisors, 18 farmers have been assisted in reducing their debts in a total amount of $3,959.91. With this help these farmers have been able to reduce their debts within their ability to pay. This is the first step taken to assist farmers to become rehabilitated.

Congress has authorized the Farm Security Administration to make a limited number of loans each year to help tenants, sharecroppers, and farm laborers to buy land of their own. In Chilton county 20 loans have been made to enable tenants and sharecroppers to become land owners. Under this program loans are made large enough to enable the selected tenants to buy a farm and if necessary to repair the buildings or put up new ones. They are repayable over a period of forty years at 3 per cent interest.

Any farmer who obtains a rehabilitation or tenant purchase loan is required to sumit and carry out a balanced farm plan. This is a live at home program. The farmers under this plan produce food for the family, feed for the livestock, and enough cash from the crops, livestock, and livestock products to repay their loan. The families in Chilton county who are receiving loans from the Farm Security Administration have been very cooperative with the supervisors in developing and carrying out a balanced farm program. Last year these families canned an average of 219 quarts of fruits and vegetables per family. This was a considerable increase over the amount canned the previous year.

Improving the health of these families is one of the objectives of the Farm Security Administration in its rehabilitation program. In that connection 93 sanitary toilets were built on farms occupied by these families during 1938.

"The importance of a safe water supply and effective screening cannot be stressed too much, said Mr. Durbin. "Good water is essential to health and, along with screening, is a basic step in our fight against typhoid, dysentery, malaria, and other diseases born by water and insects. Such diseases, by their prevalence and long duration, have greatly reduced the ability of a large percentage of our rural families to make a living.

In this county last year 10 wells used by rehabilitation families were dug or repaired, with the new wells being located after consideration of distance from the house and barn lot, so they will be convenient and reduce labor, and with respect to drainage so the water will not become contaminated."

MARVIN DURBIN
Rehabilitation Supervisor

Mr. Durbin also pointed out that keeping the premises clean was emphasized as a factor in protecting the health of the family, as well as adding to the attractiveness of the surroundings. This has been followed up in many instances by the planting of flowers, shrubs and grass about the house, and others who have not yet improved their place in this manner plan to do so.

In connection with the sanitation activities of the FSA, which are carried out in general cooperation with the local county health unit, borrowers are shown the best methods of handling milk and other foods so the health of the family may be safeguarded.

Teel Kiwanis Club Speaker

Now I'm not writing this just to keep on the good side of Mr. Teel, the editor, hoping to get a raise or something, but I heard this from a reliable source elsewhere that last week modest Mr. Teel went over about Clanton, Ala., and made the Kiwanis Club a great speech. Driving over to Clanton was a pretty good distance to travel, but I'm sure the members were amply rewarded by having heard the speaker's message. The speaker always has a good message for anyone on any occasion whether it is in civic clubs, young people's groups, church, or his own Sunday school class.—Prof. Lookon, Chambers County News.

Cultivate Your Kudzu

About two years ago the CCC boys of Camp SCS Ala.-7 planted kudzu on a certain cooperator's farm. Members of the Camp Technical Staff found it almost impossible to check the survival of these plants when they followed up the work.

This was due to a dense growth of weeds, and grasses in the kudzu field. These natural enemies had retarded the growth of the young kudzu, and almost eradicated it.

The Technicians prevailed on the cooperator to work out this kudzu, which he agreed to do at once. The result was a phenomenal growth of vines from the parent plants.

A regretable feature is that this kudzu was retarded in growth approximately one year. This deprived the cooperator of crop of hay from kudzu for a period of a year that he might have had.

Kudzu is a remarkable competitor but it must be encouraged as well as any other crop. Keep your kudzu cultivated until it establishes itself.

"KEEWANIS" INDIAN WORD MEANS, "TO MAKE A NOISE"

Past President Of Club Gives Interesting Data Regarding Origination And Meaning Of The Kiwanis Club

(By John L. Hollis)

"Kiwanis" is the trade name for a group of men that form a club and meet once a week as a service to the community in which they live, known as "Kiwanis Club International." There are over two thousand clubs with a membership of over one hundred thousand, located in all the states of the United States, and the provinces of Canada.

Organization And Name

(The following history was gathered from a talk by Past International President Victor M. Johnson, before International Council, Chicago, December 2nd, 1926):

Kiwanis originated in Detroit, Mich., early in the year 1915. During the fall of 1914. Mr. Allen S. Brown, a Fraternal organizer, together with Mr. Joseph G. Prance, a business man of Detroit, started to organize a fraternal order. This was not very successful and was abandoned. They then conceived the idea of forming a business mens' club, which they did, using the members of the unsuccessful from the start and the new club received its charter from the State of Michigan, January 21st, 1915. This date is accepted as the official birthday of Kiwanis. Mr. Joseph G. Prance was Kiwanis member number one, or the first man to join. Donald A. Johnson was the first President of the permanent Detroit club organization. Allen S. Brown was organizer.

Many stories have been told as to the choice and meaning of the word Kiwanis which the Detroit club gave to our organization and I am sure that an absolute authentic statement concerning this name will be appreciated.

When the first Detroit club was organized, naturally it was necessary to choose a name, and the members of the club had given this subject much consideration. It was decided to ask Mr. C. N. Burton, historian for the City of Detroit, and the State of Michigan, to study the matter and recommend a name for the club. Mr. Burton consulted the library of the Burton Historical Collection and among several Indian words submitted was the word "Keewanis." This word was found in the Indian vocabulary compiled by Bishop Fredrick Baraga, early pioneer of Upper Michigan, one of the world's most eminent students of Indian literature. The definition is given as, "I make a noise." It is understood that because of the limitations of Indian vocabulary its words had a broad meaning and that "Kee-wanis" was taken to mean, "To make one's self known; to impress; to make a noise."

Mr. Burton changed the spelling of the original word to read "K-I-W-A-N-I-S." This word of name was adopted by the Detroit club number one as the official nome of that club early in January, 1915, and has since been continued as the name of our organization. Therefore, as you all can see, that while suggested by the word "Kee-wanis" the word "Kiwanis" is a new original coined word that has just the meaning and significiance that our organization give it.

Kiwanis has certain fixed objectives, they are:

To give primacy to the human and spiritual rather than to the material values of life.

To encourage the daily living of the Golden Rule in all human relationships.

To promote the adoption and application of higher social, business and professional standards.

To develop, by precept and example, a more intelligent, aggressive and serviceable citizenship.

To provide, through Kiwanis clubs, a practical means to form enduring friendships, to render altruistic service, and to build better communities.

To cooperate in creating and maintaining that sound public opinion and high idealism which makes possible the increase of righteousness, justice, patriotism, and good will.

The objectives are set each year in June at the International Convention, and are based on what is thought by the council to be of the greatest value and need for the year.

No man is needed or wanted in Kiwanis unless he is willing to give of his time and means to promote and work for that which is of spiritual and material value to his community.

Citizenship activities for 1938 and 1939 were:

1. Sponsorship of community councils.
2. Support of churches in their spiritual aims.
3. Initiation and support of constructive policies of conservation.
4. Education concerning harmful effects of narcotics, especially marihuana.
5. Co-operation in law observance and enforcement.
6. Increased assistance in public safety movements.
7. Presentation of non-partiasan information on public safety movements.
8. Education and training in the duties and responsibilities of citizenship to insure the perpetuation of the established institution of freedom and popular government.
9. Maintenance of the international good will existing between Canada and the United States.

A man is not selected and made a Kiwanian, he is only drawn into the group that the cordination of many can do more good. Many are good Kiwanians that never belong to the club, they are Builders, Promoters, Boosters, and all around good citizens. They believe and practice the Golden Rule. Kiwanis is a moving spirit, It challenges the leaders of the community to be "a friend to man" and ready servants to the common weal.

Now, I hope from this explanation of what Kiwanis is, that it will arouse the Kiwanis spirit in more of our citizenship, and that Clanton and Chilton county will feel the vibration of that spirit by their presence at our churches and community activities. Let's Build, not wreck.—J. L. Hollis.

4-H CLUB WORK IN COUNTY IS BACKED BY KIWANIS CLUB

Kiwanian C. L. Breedlove, Member Agriculture Committee, Relates Interesting Facts About 4-H Club Work In Chilton County

Four-H Club work for rural boys and girls is a part of the national agricultural system which reaches every state in the United States, Puerto Rico, and the territories of Alaska and Hawaii. Four-H Clubs are organized and conducted under the immediate supervision of county extension agents cooperatively employed by the Department of Agriculture, the State colleges of agriculture, and county governments. Clargymen, teachers and other professional men and women together with outstanding farmers and homemakers, play an important part as local leaders in the development of this work which reaches more than a million rural young people in the nation each year.

In Chilton county there are eleven hundred boys and girls from ten to twenty years of age, doing 4-H Club work. Each 4-H club member does a piece of work under the supervision of the assistant county agent and home demonstration agent that will demonstrate or teach the better way in homemaking or agriculture. Each member keeps a record of costs, labor, and results; explains the work to others; and writes a final report which summarizes the whole year's work.

There are three main points that are emphasized by the county extension agents in 4-H club training. These points are : (1) Leadership, (2) agricultural information and (3) good, clean recreation.

Leadership is developed in club members by having them serve as officers in the local clubs, by having as many club members as possible take part on the program at least once a year, and by giving members other responsibilities.

Agricultural information is given to the club members through lectures, circular letters, and state and United States Department of Agriculture bulletins.

Good, clean recreation is emphasized at county-wide rallies, county-wide camps, and at regular meetings.

Until 1936, when additional appropriations made possible the employment of an assistant county agent in this county, there were only nine boys 4-H clubs organized in Chilton county. Since that time eight more clubs have been organized and there are now clubs in all the large grammar and junior high schools and in all the senior high schools which do not offer courses in vocational agriculture. Three clubs have been organized in the smaller schools.

The projects of the 4-H Club boys include dairy cows, beef calves, swine, poultry, peanuts, potatoes, corn, cotton, sugar cane, and a few other minor crops. The project work is carried on, as nearly as possible, with the use of recommended practices. It is through the rural youth that use of the better methods of farming can be extended.

The reorganization of the Chilton county 4-H Calf club has resulted in the bringing into the county many pure-bred Jersey cows. The Calf club has also bought five registered production bred Jersey bulls which are placed over the county in order to increase the production of the home dairy cows. Members of the Calf club have won many prizes at the County and State Fairs by exhibiting their pure-bred animals.

It is very significant that the assistance and help of the Clanton Kiwanians in carrying out certain 4-H Club projects be recognized. Last year the Clanton Kiwanians bought one thousand 4-H Club forestry calendars for distribution over the county and placed roadside signs on the main roads and highways boosting forest fire protection and erosion control. The efforts of the Clanton Kiwanis Club made it possible for two boys and two girls to attend the Wildlife Conservation Camp at Shocco Springs last summer. The contributions of this civic organization serves not only materially but inspirationally, causing both club members and leaders to aim at higher and more important goals.

FACTS ABOUT HEALTH DEPT. SHOWS SERVICE INVALUABLE

Chilton County Fortunate In Having Full-Time Health Department That Is Rendering Fine Service In Preserving Health Of People

The County Health Department was declared to be one of the most important and valuable agencies of local County Government by Dr. S. D. Sturkie, County Health Officer, in a lengthy discussion of the Department's history and the work that is being carried on in the County at the present.

History of County Health Departments

The first full time county health department in the United States came into being either in Yakima County, Washington, or Guilford County, N. C., about the year 1911. These unites units were probably begun at about the same time. The unit in Washington was organized following a typhoid epidemic and the Guilford County Department was established to promote the health of school children. Up untol this time, the public had looked on the health officer as a worker whose services were needed only in the time of epidemics.

There was usually in most counties a so-called part time health officer whose duties consisted mainly of placarding houses and vaccinating in smallpox and typhiod outbreaks. Such was the situation in Alabama until 1914 when the first county health department was organized in Walker County. In the early 1920's the public health nurse appeared on the horizon. Closely related to and playing an important part in the early development of the county health departments in the South were the Rockefeller Foundation and United States Public Health Service. As early as 1910 the former group had begun laying the ground work for county health work in the South in its extensively applied hookworm control program. Indeed, the Rockefeller people are well remembered and appreciated in Chilton county for their splendid hookworm work here.

Alabama Organization Unique

The system of health organization in Alabama is unique among other systems employed in the United States. In 1875 the State Legislature passed a bill designating the State Medical Association as the State Board of Health and the County Society as the County Board of Health. Thus, the control of organized health work in Alabama was placed in the hands of the medical profession and removed from the sphere of politics. This has afforded the local and State Health Departments in Alabama a great advantage and as time has proven, has worked for greater progress. The State Health Officer is elected by the State Medical Association sitting as the State Board of Health; the County Health Officer by the County Board of Health, which includes five members elected by the County Medical Society and the Probate Judge as an ex-officio member. The county health officer, who must be a qualified physician, after being elected by the County Board of Health must be approved by the State Health Officer. Members of the present Board of Health are:

Dr. T. J. Marcus, Dr. W. C. Golden, Dr. C. N. Parnell, Dr. C. S. Strock, Dr. N. S. Johnson, and Hon. J. Lee Smith, Ex-officio. The Board also is empowered to act in a supervisory capacity over the county health department and must approve all personnel hired by the health officer. The latter is the executive of the staff of county health workers and directs the activities of the department. In addition, he must perform all the work which a physician alone can do, such as physical examinations, diagnosis of communicable diseases, Etc. The program and the policies of the county health department are planned and formulated by the county health officer with the assistance of the County Board of Health. The State Health Department through its various bureaus acts in an advisory capacity to the local health department. Field advisors from the central office in Montgomery make periodic visits to the county department and make recommendations to the county health officer. Such a machinery insures, therefore, a continuance of well planned efficiently executed local health service, immune from the often harmful encroachment of local politics.

As regard to personnel qualifications, it is the policy of both the local and State Health Departments to give preference to workers who have received training in recognized schools of public health or to train workers who come in untrained as quickly as the situation in their counties will permit. In order to avoid entangling political alliances and local prejudices, it has been found a more sound policy not to employ local people as technical workers in the health department. This policy has not applied to the clerical help. In the staff of the local health department at present, Dr. S. D. Sturkie, the County Health Officer, is a graduate of Mercer University of Macon, Ga., (three year pre-med course) and the Medical School of the University of Georgia, Augusta, Ga. He has had one year of post-graduate work in public health at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md. He has had five years experience in county health work. Miss Margaret Rumbley, the Public Health Nurse is a graduate of St. Marys Hospital School of Nursing, Athens, Ga., and has received three months of post-graduate training in public health at George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn. Mr. Fred H. Bucklelew, the County Sanitation Officer, is a graduate of the University of Alabama (A.B. Degree) and attended the School of Medicine of the University of Tennessee for two years.

Method of Financing

The County Health Department is supported by local, State and Federal funds. The total amount of money allotted for the fiscal year July 1, 1938, June 30, 1939, is $9,120.00. Of this amount $3,000.00 is appropriated by the Commissioners Court, $500.00 is appropriated by the County Board of Education, $1,500.00 is derived from the State Health Department and $3,420.00 from the United States Public Health Service. The bulk of the Health Department's income is, therefore, obtained from out of the County, State and Federal funds making up 61% of the total amount of the budget. On a per capita basis, 32c per person is spent by the State and County for health protection in Chilton County; only 14c per person is spent by the County alone. This amount is inadequate from standards which have set by health experts; 50c per capita being considered the minimum amount with which good health service can be obtained. Autauga County, our neighbor, with an assessed valuation of property of 5,000,000 as compared with Chilton's 11,000,000 appropriates through its Commissioners 3,600 as compared with 3,000 from our Court. It must be said in favor of our Commissioners, however, that they are making special appropriations for syphilis and tuberculosis, which are materially aiding the fight against these diseases. There is nevertheless a need for more money to be spent for health service in Chilton county.

The Health Department's Program

Prevention is the keynote, the foundation, and the basic underlying factor in the department's program; prevention of sickness and disease. One must think of the work done by the Health Department as a multitude of different activities all aimed at the same goal. It is often difficult to trace the relation of certain phases of health work to this goal of prevention. For example, what connection is a visit by the Health Officer to collect a death certificate to the prevention of disease. To understand this, one must consider the following: (1) Our knowledge of the ways to fight disease is dependent on our knowledge of the occurence of disease and the number of people dying from disease. (2) Collection of data concerning the number of cases, where these occur, and the number of deaths resulting therefrom is paramount in effectively fighting disease. Thus it becomes very obvious that collection of death certificates is an important phase in the Health Department fight against disease.

A list of the activities included in the program of the local Health Department is as follows: Communicable Disease Control which embraces isolation, quarantine, and immunization, Venereal Disease Control, Tuberculosis Control, Maternity Service, Infant and Preschool Hygiene, School Hygiene, Adult Hygiene, Crippled Childrens Service, General Sanitation, Protection of food and milk, Malaria Control, and Health Education. A daily report is made by each worker showing the number of each of the different types of service done during each day. An individual record is made on each person served by the Health Department and all services rendered to that person are recorded on that record. At the end of each month all the various services are tabulated and a report is sent to the offices of the State Department and to the County Commissioners. The Health Department does not engage in diagnosis or treatment except in those conditions in which the spread of disease si prevented thereby, as, for example, hookworm, syphilis, tuberculosis, Etc. There is a great need for a broad program of medical care to be carried out by the government, but this cannot be expected to materialize from the health departments such as are now in existence. It is much cheaper to prevent than it is to cure, and such being the case, the Health Department must apply itself to prevention and leave the problem of the acutely ill to the individual or the community. In its own sphere of prevention the Department can accomplish great things and serve the people wonderfully well. All that is needed is the support of the people and the intelligent cooperation of those who appropriate for the welfare of the people.

A Day With The Public Health Nurse

"For the benefit of those who have often wondered but have never known just what constitutes a day's work in the life of a Public Health Nurse. Come with me for a day in Chilton County:

"First, we have to go by the office, pack the black bag, get the literature and records that will be needed for the day. On our way to the country we will stop by Mrs. Gray's to weigh her new baby and teach her to bathe him and stress the importance of regular habits. Now we will go see Mrs. Jones who has just returned from the Tuberculosis Sanatorium. We are glad to see her feeling fine, and she says that her stay in the hospital has taught her how to take care of herself and protect her family from tuberculosis germs. Mrs. Long has sent word to come see her, as she is not feeling so good. She is expecting a baby next month. Mrs. Long meets us at the door. Her face is swollen and she is having dizzy spells. We examine a specimen of urine and measure her blood pressure, as her kidneys aren't working properly and her blood pressure is too high. We insist that she see her doctor at once. She has been knowing for sometime she wasn't feeling as well as she should, but with John, her husband, not working and the children needing new shoes to keep them in school, additional expenses seem almost impossible now, but with a promise from Mr. Long that he will make some arrangements to have the doctor see his wife we go to see little Henry, who has a twisted foot caused from the dreaded disease, infantile paralysis. We have made arrangements through the Crippled Children's Service for him to go to the hospital for an operation to straighten his foot. On our way home we will have to go by Sadie's to insist on her coming to the syphilis clinic on Wednesday afternoon, as her blood test was positive. Our last stop will be to see Jane who has an infected ear and some dietary trouble. She needs rest and quiet and careful feeding. Here again we insist on the mother's following the doctor's orders carefully.

"Now this has been a serious day, but to show that this work as well as others has its lighter moments to cheer us on our way, I will relate an experience of a few weeks ago. A home visit was being made to an ever growing family. Twelve individuals lived under the same roof. It was rather difficult to preach cleaniness here, but after and hour of patient effort I was congratulating myself that maybe I had gained a point. I had talked of everything from picking strawberries to a few well pointed questions why the children were not in school. The principle theme being the weekly bath and change of clothing. In the corner sat an old man, silent until now, but aiming his tobacco juice frequently to the fireplace, at last he glanced up and replied with a sarcastic grin, 'Humph, you've a pile of room to take on so. You've been a wearing that same old blue dress every time you all been a comin' down here for the last five months."

"And such is the life of a Public Health Nurse."

Sanitation in Chilton County

The Chilton County Health Unit through the Sanitation Officer promotes and supervises the type and construction of sanitation most suitable in the various localities. At the present time the most extensive work is being done in the incorporated towns and thickly settled communities where proper sanitation is essential. In the rural sectinos the insanitary type of privy persists, namely the open back surface toilet. The aim of the Sanitation Officer is to do away with this type of sanitation, as it is a disease breeder. Approximately 3,000 homes in Chilton county have open back surface toilets or no type of sanitation at all. You may ask what is being done about this. The Sanitation Officer locates the homes needing safe sanitation, talks to the owner, giving him the approximate cost of construction and benefits derived from proper disposal of human waste. In the majority of cases of this type several members of the family may have hookworm. Free treatment for hookworm is given, but unless proper disposal of human waste is provided for members of the family, they may become reinfected. Construction of a sanitary type pit privy affords ground burial and it is impossible for hookworm eggs to be spread if the sanitary pit type toilet is used.

As a safe water supply is essential for continued good health, home owners are approached on the matter of providing a safe water supply. Plans and specifications are furnished on on request and with the installation of a protected water supply samples are sent to the State Laboratory for analysis to insure the owner of the pureness of his water. Screening of the home helps protect the food supply and keeps out the carriers of disease, namely the common house fly and the malaria mosquito.

The above named items constitute the contacts with the public at large. Any item of sanitation is pursued by the Sanitation Officer. The County Health Unit is kept in close contact with the food handling establishments, barber and beauty shops by periodic inspection of these establishments by the Sanitation Officer. All establishments inspected are graded according to conditions found and the grades are open to public inspection on request. In 1938 a new policy was instituted pertaining to food handling establishments. Certain requirements had to be met to obtain a permit for operation. This policy has been well accepted in Chilton County and 63 food handling establishments are under supervision.

Affording the public at large a safe milk supply is a pleasure of the Chilton County Health Unit. One grade A dairy has been established and receives inspection once each month and milk samples are taken for analysis. All persons coming in contact with milk vessels must have a health certificate. The Health Unit invites the public to inspect its source of milk supply.

During the summer months, the Sanitation Officer checks possible mosquito breeding places and inspects all impounded water for proper maintenance to prevent breeding. All positive cases of Malaria are traced to a possible source. Reports on malaria cases to the Health Unit are appreciated for all cases should be investigated.

The sanitation program in Chilton County is being well accepted and through a better educational program, the Chilton County Health Unit hopes to bring to the people the benefits to be derived from proper home sanitation, namely, human waste disposal, protected water supply, and screening.

Kiwanis Club Active In Efforts To Secure National Guard Unit

Realizing that Clanton and Chilton County are well able to support a National Guard Unit, the Clanton Kiwanis Club has been most active in its efforts to influence the establishment of a National Guard Unit in Clanton by the State Military officials.

Recently through the efforts of the Club the State Adjutant General made the statement that Clanton would get a unit of the Alabama National Guard on their first authorization.

TOAST TO ABSENT MOTHERS

We, who are privileged to be present on this day dedicated to the one who embodies the highest, the noblest, and the most self-sacrificing and unselfish characteristics of all that is mortal, turn back in memory, in silent devotion and in reverence to the Mother who is not here today.

In the hurly-burly, hustle and bustle of life we tend to become rather matter-of-fact and perhaps even callous and devoid of emotion. But no matter how business-like we may become, the occasion of Mother's Day causes each of us to pause in reverence and thankful devotion to her who perhaps had in life the hardest lot of all.

And so we consider our lot not one of sorrow but rather one of exhilarating devotion to the Mother who nurtured us, watched over us, nursed us through sickness, prayed for us, planned a noble future for us, believed only the best about us, defended us in our indiscretions and suffered loneliness as we left her home to establish one of our own.

We Kiwanians, our families and our friends, in thankful memory of her character and her sacrifices, drink to the memory of her who is absent and who has gone to that place from whose bourne no traveller returns, the dearest, the finest and the noblest creature in all the world—Mother!—Immediate Past President Walter Boye at the Mother's Day Luncheon of the Chicago Kiwanis Club.

SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION WRITES INTERESTING ARTICLE

PROF. RASCOE MADDOX
County Superintendent of Education

Education and progress go hand in hand. A community with good schools is a progressive community. It will pay a community, be it city or county, to provide good schools. A person without the ability to make a living is a burden on the community. A person on relief costs taxpayers $26.00 a month. That same person fitted for a job by education will support himself, his family, and will by payment of taxes help support the government. Yet it costs less to send a child to school a year in Chilton county than it does to pay the wages of a man on relief for two months.

The Kiwanis International promotes "a more intelligent, aggressive, and serviceable citizenship." It cooperates in creating and maintaining a sound public opinion and high idealism "which make possible the increase of righteousness, justice, patriotism, and good will." Therefore on every battlefront for the cause of education every Kiwanian is found fighting the good fight. Education deals primarily with boys and girls. Every Kiwanis Club has a committee on boys and girls work. Realizing that underprivileged children, denied the opportunities for education, increase poverty and impede progress, every Kiwanis Club has a committee on underprivileged children.

During the past few years the services demanded of the schools have increased in number, while the funds for financing the schools have shown an alarming tendancy to decrease. School administrators have naturally been discouraged at the difficulty of rendering greater service with fewer means. Fortunate is the superintendent who has behind him a Kiwanis Club. The Clanton Kiwanis has faithfully supported every cause for the good of education in Chilton county.

No finer citizenship can be found in any place than is found in Chilton county. Strangers are always welcome into our midst.

CLANTON PILOT CLUB IS ASSET TO COUNTY; WORKS WITH KIWANIS

Combined Efforts Of These Two Clubs Have Wrought Much Good To Clanton And Chilton County; Joint Meet Is Held Annually For Discussions

(By Mattie Jo Barber)

The Clanton Pilot Club is a civic organization, rendering community service by working in cooperation with the Kiwanis club, encouraging, sponsoring, and promoting worthwhile civic movements. The leaders of Pilot have always been women of vision, and and Pilot is composed of selected outstanding women, who are intensely alive and vitally interested in the best things of life.

Pilot is a non-political and non-sectarian organization. It is not concerned with a woman's religious or political affiliations.

The first Pilot Club was organized in Macon, Ga., in October, 1921, and we have spread from the original club to 81 clubs located in 19 of the United States and Mexico. The name Pilot was chosen because it means "Leader and Guide." The Clanton Club was organized in 1931.

The spirit and principles of Pilot have been in the world since time immemorial.

The basic principles of Pilot Club are friendship and service. The town's need is the Pilot Club's opportunity for service. The Clanton Pilot Club rendered service by providing hot lunches daily for three underprivileged children enrolled in the elementary school during the past school term. Vocational guidance was emphasized by meeting with the local chapters of Future Homemakers of Alabama and Future Farmers of America at a joint meeting with the Kiwanis Club. A birthday fund is set aside for aid in the promotion of a crippled childrens' clinic for the county. Materials were contributed for use in making layettes for twelve needy mothers within the county.

MISS MATTIE JO BARBER

Home Demonstration Agent and Member Clanton Pilot Club

These layettes were distributed in cooperation with the County Health Department. Pilots aided in selling tickets to a benefit bridge party, the proceeds from which were for the aid of infantile paralysis victims. A room at the Central Alabama Hospital was recently refinished, including furniture, and placing of window curtains. At the County Fair held last September Pilots cooperated with Kiwaians by taking tickets at the gate and by maintaining a reception room for ladies attending the fair. Other enterprises in which Pilots cooperated with Kiwanians are in: (1) Distribution of Christmas packages to needy families during the holiday season; (2) promotion of Western Union Office for Clanton. To foster better relationships between business and professional women and men a joint meeting of Pilot and Kiwanis Clubs is held once each year. Bosses night, boy friends night and ladies night, are sponsored at special meetings in order to sponsor better relationships between Pilots and non-Pilots.

Membership in Pilot Club is determined by classification and is by invitation only, two members being allowed for each business and professional classification. Ethical women of ability and attainment interested in social and civic poblems are eligible. Active members shall be of good moral and business standing, actively identified with the business or professional interests of the town.

Membership in Pilot Club affords a medium of exchange of thoughts; fosters good fellowship among its members. It develops real and intensive friendships; enlightens as to other women's work, problems, and success. The desire to be of srevice to one's fellowman and society in general is stimulated. A new outlook on one's own business or profession, seeing it more as a service to the community than as a means for private gain only, is developed. It awakens a sense of civic responsibility and a desire to participate in the activities which go to make a community a better place in which to live.

The motto of Pilot is "True Course Ever", and there is no finer motto in all the world than that, and it is the duty and pleasure of Pilots everywhere to steer the "True Course Ever," to broader planes of service, usefulness and happiness.

The Pilot emblem is the wheel, which has been an important element in industry and commerce, and a vital factor in human progress. Eleminate the wheel and our boasted civilization would slip backward a thousand years.

Pilotism is a beautiful ritual bright with silver threads of principles, studded with living jewels of all that is good and fine. It is where sincerity looks into the fact of sympathy, and where great universal thoughts reign in every heart. It is the fellowship of womanhood, exemplification of the Golden Rule, the advancement of citizenship. It is a voluntary system of social service with no hope of reward. It is a perfume which sweetens the soul when the flowers of memory begins to bloom. It is an organized body standing for the preservation of every Christian virtue. It is friendship pledged in secrecy, tested in secrecy—a legacy to leave behind—rich and poor. Pilot teaches the great principles of life—courtesy, kindness, natural sympathy and the love of fair dealing. Do noble things — do not dream them. It enjoys the strong to help the weak; it is a help to those who lack the opportunity for education in the greater things of life.

HISTORY AND DEVELOPMENT OF DIVERSIFIED OCCUPATIONS TOLD

Splendid Service Being Rendered By Organization Under Leadership Of Ben E. Evans As Coordinator; Kiwanians Backing Class Here

The Diversified Occupations class was organized in September of 1936 in Chilton County High School, Clanton, Alabama. The class was taught by Mr. B. E. Evans of Birmingham, Alabama.

The course was carefully planned to accommodate ten pupils. These, to be admitted after they had reached their Junior year in High School and having passed all their academic work. The course was to cover a period of two years, and during that time the student would have covered a wide field of knowledge as well as a period of training which was well supervised.

The plan for the course resembled a time—table to some extent. The students were to spend two hours a day in classroom work, doing the related reading matter that was necessary to their training. The reading was planned so that each bit of information filled in the gaps or was associated with the kind of work that the student was doing outside the class. Then, for three hours a day, the student was to actually do the work in a local business house in town. These businesses served as a preparatory laboratory for the student during the two years training.

The school buys the books and plans all the programs that the student follows as closley as possible with the cooperation of the business. The money for this training comes from our Federal and State funds ond the appropriation is well spent.

So far sixteen students have finished the course, and have easily found work due to the fact that they had some definite training in the kind of work that they are interested in. The businesses are ready and willing to do all in their power to give any of the students a chance to work with them for they know the value of a well trained employee, and one that knows his work. The demand for these trained students has been greater than the course can furnish.

There are, at the present, more appling for the Diversified Occupations course than can be accommodated. The limit is twenty and that many students will be trained and working before another year is out.

Approximotely ninety-five per cent of the students who, after taking this course, find work. The remaining five percent have either quit or found other interests.

When the student finishes this course, they are given a certificate showing that they have received vocational training over a period of two years and under capable supervison. This certificate is a great advantage to those students who are applying for a job either locally or elsewhere.

In adition to the Diversified Occupations and Guidance Class that the department condusts are Fire-fighting ing closses, Lumber calculotion, textile courses, cooking classes for the colored people, loundry work, etc.—all these held at night.

In January 1939, a Diversified Occupations club was organized by the students taking the course. The club helped to emphasize the work of the course as well as creating a new interest in the whole outline of the work. It gave each member something to look forward to. They imeidiatly elected officers, and began to work in earnest for the benefit of the school and the club. A banquet was held, which was to begin a series of annual affairs; they planned trips, picnics, and other valuable outings that would prove beneficial to them.

So far the club has grown and taken in some of the students who had already finished the course before the club was organized. They are called associate members, and have a voice in all the matters of the club.

Truly, the Diversified Occupations Class and Club is a project that all the schools in Alabama will sooner or later adopt for its educational, as well as other purposes.

Kiwanis District Convention Will Be Held In Selma Oct. 8, 9, 10

No more appropriate town could have been selected by this Kiwanis District for the 1939 Convention than Selma, where the Convention will be held October 8, 9, and 10.

It is safe to say that the Clanton Club will be well represented at this Convention. Selma has always royally entertained visiting Kiwanians, and the Selma Kiwanis Club is especially interested in the Clanton Club, for it was through their efforts and guidance that Clanton now has a Kiwanis organization in its midst.

J. Theodore Jackson is District Governor for 1939.

That Swimming Pool—

We were all ready to start this paragraph off with "Now that summer is here. . . .", but at the present time we're not so sure that summer is here. Came to work this A.M. with one coat on and would have brought forth the overcoat but for the looks of wearing one at this time of the year. Well, anyway, as we were about to say; Now that Summer is just around the corner, we've been thinking that with the new water works outfit, plenty of water to spare, how nice it would be if the City of Clanton could provide us with a brand new swimming pool Now we understand that this project is on the list for improvements in the future, and that all that was needed was water. We have water, and we have an idea that we'll have a nice new swimming pool for the enjoyment of all befor long—we hope.

Thanks—

A beautiful bouquet of flowers now reposes in a vase here at the News office. When we say they are beautiful, we mean just that. This bunch of beautiful poppies, cactus blooms, sweet peas, dahlias, and what not, is a gift of our friend Cecil McKee. The boys at the News office certainly appreciate this bouquet. We've never seen the time when flowers were more beautiful than they are this year. If you want to soften the hard heart of a newspaperman, bring him flowers—or or a subscription renewal.

The State Seal—

Can't think of any reason why we shouldn't say something about that new State Seal, as everybody else is voicing their opinion, so it seems. It's a fact that we have the new seal whether we want it or not. Many landmarks and many things in general are being changed these days. There are some things falling before the march of progress that many of us would rather see remain as is. That's just how we feel about the Alabama State Seal. It served Alabama well for so many years, and not one plausible reason has been advanced as to why the Seal should be changed. The United Daughters of The Confederacy, who are credited with originating the idea of a change, have stated that the "Here We Rest" on the seal denoted a lazy (so to speak) tendency on the part of Alabama. But we feel that the Indians didn't have that in mind when they tacked that phrase on the seal. They were just tired after traveling a long way, and decided to make Alabama their home. And, too, they say that the Yankees had something to do with the old seal, and that they dislike it for that reason. If so, that is part of Alabama's history and we see no reason why we should be ashamed of it. But we'll leave this discussion to John Temple Graves and the United Daughters of the Confederacy—they know more about it than we do However, we do bow to this fine organization of women, for, if responsible for influencing the Legislature to make the change, certainly know how to get things done. Our forecast: Four or six years hence, the Alabama Legislature will bring back the abandoned seal. Eight, maybe ten or fifteen years following that the Legislature will attempt to bring back the other seal. and so on. And speaking of so on—so on to the next paargraph we go.

Lions In Clanton—

You'll probably hear the Lions roar in Clanton in the future, for Clanton now has a chapter of this widely known civic organization. It is noticeable that the charter members of this local chapter are comparatively young men from the rank and file of Clanton's business life. Our heartiest and best wishes for the success of the Lions in Clanton. We have always thought that two strong civic organizations in Clanton could accomplish more than twice as much as one. Speaking for the Clanton Kiwanis Club, we salute the Lions—and let the roaring begin.

Vulcan—

Birmingham's Red Mountain Vulcan —Man of Might— couldn't possibly be as mighty as he once was. When a member of the fairer sex enters into the life of any man, he's not ever as mighty and dominating as before. So next time you take a squint up at Vulcan as you coast over the crest of Red Mountain, keep that in mind. He has a queen now, you know.

The Best Fisherman—

Jimmy Bell of the Murray-Bell Hardware, Bill Inzer and M. D. Foshee went fishing the other day, and if you are acquainted with Jimmy, Jr., you know that he is yet quite a young fellow to be going fishing. Anyway somebody provided him with a pole and line, and Junior fished, too. The party returned empty handed—except Jimmy Jr. He made the only catch. And some people call themselves fishermen!

Excellent Record Made By Miss Grace Ezell Permits Graduation From H. S. After 3 Years

By Doris Newell

Grace Eezell, who is a Junior in C.C.H.S., will graduate this year with necessary requirements for college.

Grace, taking the maximum amount of subjects for three years, has the required number of credits to enter college but lacks one to be able to get a diploma from High School. However, by studying this summer, she will make up the extra credit which will enable her to receive a diploma.

She has made an A average throughout her high school years, after being salutatorian in the sixth grade graduation.. Last year she won the medal given by the Beta Club for Scholarship.

Grace will major in English next year at Howard College in Birmingham, with her minor in Music. On a tour of the West last summer with Mr. Little and his Howard College Tour, she received six hours of college work for some extra work done while on the trip.

She was born in Clanton in 1923, making her Clanton's first truly local sixteen-year-old student ever to finish high school and enter a college with the honors with which she is doing so. She was first instructed in music by Miss Della Latham of Clanton, and proved a very apt pupil. Later on, she took music from teachers in Birmingham and still recently, organ lessons from Dr. H. D. LeBaron of Montevallo.

She has served as organist at the Clanton Baptist Church for approximately three years; plays for funerals, weddings and choirs. Last year she was pianist for the High School.

During her high school years she has been president of her class for three years; editor of the school paper for this year; and will speak for the English department during the Commencement exercises. She played one of the leads in the Junior play for this year, and was delegate for this Club at the State Beta Club convention which was held in Montgomery during April.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Ezell of Clanton. Dr. Ezell is State Superintendent of Evangelism. They plan to remove to Birmingham this summer, where Grace will attend college and Dr. Ezell will continue his Evangelistic work.

Clanton may justly feel proud of such home talent, and consider it quite an honor for one of our local students to reach this peak of accomplishment.

The Isabella High School Commencement is an important occasion in the lives of its graduates, an event they want always to remember with a feeling of pleasure and accomplishment.

This is certainly true with the Isabella High School graduates this year. The class of 1939 has many things to be proud of. It has been a class of progressive acitivity. A precedent has been set by this class by sponsoring the first school annual, and it has successfully edited a bi-monthly school paper.

The school is indeed honored to have had this class work for its betterment during the past years.

CLANTON LIONS CLUB ORGANIZED THIS WEEK

THIRTEEN YOUNGER BUSINESS MEN OF CLANTON ATTEND FIRST MEETING

H. T. Miller, charter member of The Montgomery Lions Club and special representative of Lions International, spent two days heer this week organizing a Clanton Lions Club.

With more than eighty Clubs in Alabama, Lions International is a strong civic organization and the local chapter members plan to be an asset to the National Chapter.

The first meeting of the Club was held Tuesday night of this week with thirteen members present. These members are noticeably younger business men of the city.

Officers for six months were elected as follows: Leroy Martin, President; R. M. Tucker, Secretary-Treasurer, and Ed Mullins Tail Twister.

Another meeting of this organization will be held Friday night at seven o'clock and those interested in becoming members as well as those who have already joined, are urged to be present.

Clanton already has one business men's organization in the Kiwanis Club, and with the organization of the local Lions chapter, it is expected that the combined forces of the two Clubs will assist in bringing about many civic improvements to the City and County.

Pletcher Youth Attempts Suicide

The Sreriff's office here had a problem on its hands last Monday when a youth from near Pletcher, evidently suffering from some mental disorder, was brought to Clanton by a group of men who stated to Sheriff W. G. Culp and his deputies that the young man had made an attempt to commit suicide.

The Sheriff was told that the young man, whose full name was not learned, had laid down on the railroad track near Pletcher, in front of an oncoming freight train. The train was stopped by friends before it reached the youth, the News learned, but he was brought to Clanton and placed in the County jail, where Sheriff Culp reported a close watch was required to prevent him from hanging himself. Several attempts were made to hang himself in his cell with strips of clothing.

Alabama Power Co. Reduces Rates Again

Approximately 26,000 residential customers of Alabama Power Co. in cities over the state will save an estimated $100,000 a year in electric bills under a lower rate that became available to them May first.

Hugh White, president of the Alabama Public Service Commission, announced that the company's "objective rate," heretofore applicable to some 94,500 similar customers, has been extended to the 26,000 effective May 1.

"The May 1 rate reduction," Mr. White stated, "is the seventh successive reduction to Alabama Power Co. urban residential customers since the objective rate plan became effective (in 1939), aggregating $1,362,000 saving to them."

Under the "objective rate," Mr. White explained, there is a minimum charge of $1 a month for which the customer may use 20 kilowatt-hours of current; the next 45 k.w.h. is billed at four cents per k.w.h.; the next 135 k.w.h. at two cents each, and then one cent per k.w.h.

QUESTIONABLE FARM LOGIC

The general level of farm prices has reached the lowest point since 1934, which means that the American farmer has dropped back almost to depression depths in the matter of income, which is now five per cent below last year figures.

The chief hope of Federal farm officials for a rise in prices lies in agreement by 85 per cent of the farmers of the nation to continue crop restriction policies, although such practices have persistently failed in the past to even check the downward trend of income. To make this optimism seem more plausible, government administrators are offering the alibi of unsettled conditions abroad for present low prices and they claim that greater stability will permit restriction to show better results.

The logic of such reasoning seems to be questionable in view of repeated assurances that crop restriction is primarily a measure to free the farmer from uncertanties of the world market by gearing him to the economic levels of home consumption, and to argue that more stable conditions abroad would mean greater rural prosperity seems an admission that restriction really is not accomplishing anything other than to keep millions of Americans from wresting a living from the land.—Selma Times-Journal.

Perhaps it has never occurred to the farmer or to those who are sincerely trying to aid the farmer, that every time he (the farmer) reduces the production of cotton and cotton seed that he is indirectly helping to increase the profits of those concerns engaged in producing synthetic and other substitutes, for the things that the farmer has always furnished the public in the past.

To illustrate: The farmer cuts his cotton acreage one acre, or enough to have produced one bale of cotton—which would be 500 pouns of lint cotton and 1,000 pounds of seed. He has thus decreased the competition with his competitors—the producers of rayon and hundreds of other articles now being manufactured as substitutes for cotton products. And in failing to produce the 1,000 pounds of cotton seed, he is aiding his competitors in increasing the prices of those commodities which are in competition with cotton seed oil, such as soy bean oil from Japan and China, coaconut oil, the by-products of the large packing companies, and hundreds of others.

Of course he gets a pittance from the government for this reduction in production, but is it sufficient to compensate him for the loss of "trade" that is surely going to his competitors in the "artificial" field?

The theory that by reducing his own production he would increase the price of that which he does produce has been proven extremely fallacious.

We sometimes wonder if most of this hullabaloo of "helping the farmer," isn't subtle propaganda fostered by those who are profiting by his failure to produce.

COMING UP—Occasionally we get a sample copy of the Chilton County News from Clanton. Put us on the list, we dislike to swap four or five times a year.—Ft. Payne Journal.

ALABAMA EDITORS COMMENT:

AESOP KNEW HIS ONIONS—When old Aesop took his pen in hand to write some of his well known fables, he demonstrated an insight of human inconsistancies that was unusual if not actually uncanny, as exhibited the workings of everyday modern minds. His fable of the frogs who prayed for a ruler is aptly illustrated in the outpourings eminating from the recent meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Six years ago these same august minds which now so glibbly and bitterly assail President Roosevelt were praying for somebody to save them from the debacle made imminent by their mismanagement of the nation's business. Now they are heaping caustic condemnation on the head of the man who not only made it possible for them to survive the consequences of their folly, but brought back to the country a measure of prosperity comparable only to that of 1929.—South Alabamian.

* * * *

THE PUBLICITY AGENTS—Modern publicity agents are flooding country newspaper editors with an avalanche of "copy," much of which has news value but most of the articles are so long that it would take up too much space to print them. Many departments, bureaus, educational institutions, companies, associations flood the country newspaper office with lengthy articles for publication and some follow up their articles with inquiries as to why their contributions failed to appear in print.

It is a physical impossibility for a weekly newspaper to publish the numerous articles contributed by far-away departments, bureaus, etc., and print the local and county news, also.

In fact, country newspaper editors don't have time to read all the contributions continually coming in from places outside the home county.—Mountain Eagle.

* * * *

LET EUROPE ALONE—This isn't a good time to go abroad looking for trouble—there is too much trouble there to be had for the looking and we have enough troubles of our own right here at home. Helping the farmer save his farm from foreclosure, getting jobs for the ten million unemployed in the cities, and balancing the nation's budget is enough to keep all of us busy for awhile. —Southern Farmer.

IMMITATING A GHOST—A friend of ours told us he stayed in a haunted house the other night to see what would happen. About midnight, he declared, a ghost came through one of the walls just as though nothing was there. So we asked what he did then, and he explained that he went through the other wall the same way.—Florala News

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

FLY BY NIGHTS

WHENEVER Jeff Peters, the engaging hero in the book of O. Henry stories called "The Gentle Grafter," went into a new town and spread his samples of corn cure, ink remover, etc., out in front of him, he always took one precaution. He made note of how soon the next train left.

He had to. Jeff never knew what minute he'd have to fold up his kit and hot-foot it for the station, with policemen and angry customers in close pursuit.

He was that kind of business man. We call them "fly by nights." They still infest our cities and towns, but you never saw one of them advertise or build a lasting success.

Charles Roth

The man who advertises for your patronage shows that he has foresight and courage. He wants to establish goodwill and to remain in business, and the best way for him to do these things is to send down roots and advertise so that you may come to him whenever you need what he sells.

Jeff Peters stands for the furtive parasite, hanging around the fringe of respectable society, dashing in and taking whatever he can, giving nothing in return, ready to flee at any minute, always expecting to have to flee.

The manufacturer or merchant who advertises, however, serves notice that he has become a member of the community and society. He announces that he intends to be your business friend and to warrant your patronage.

And you buy from such a man with perfect assurance that you will always get your money's worth. And you do.

It's possible for you to go into some stores and find merchandise which glib salesmen assure you is "just as good."

The fact that even they use advertised items as the standard of comparison, is proof enough that they recognize the permanent power of the force we call advertising.

You as a consumer get more for your money if, in all your buying, you avoid the Jeff Peterses of business and select whatever you need from the stores of merchants who advertise and who sell advertised goods.

A business organization which wants to get the most for the money sets up standards by which to judge what is offered to it, and in Washington the government has an elaborate Bureau of Standards.

You can have your own Bureau of Standards, too. Just consult the advertising columns of your newspaper. They safeguard your purchasing-power, every day of every year.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Late at night my duties as pastor called for me to pass a certain store in town where it was generally known that intoxicating drinks were sold and consumed in an unlawful manner. Looking through the wondow I saw several men and women, moving about, stumbling, reeling as if they were drunk. I saw no sign that the store dealt in whiskey, but I know that they had their products on display in drunken men and women. At another time I was passing a State liquor store and saw a fine young man, leaning against the window of the place and from his lips were flowing the most vile oath that I ever heard. The store had its product on display. Whiskey and profanity run together. While driving along the highway we came to a wrecked car. Several suffering, bleeding young people were there waiting to be carried to a doctor. A strong whiskey odor filled the air and a shattered state whiskey store bottle was on the pavement. Just another product of the whiskey business. Folks, I am against the whiskey business and I do not care who knows it. If you loved our country and our fine young men and women as you should; you would be against it also.

Not many people are thinking about their silent influence. When you enter a state liquor store there are other eyes looking at you. Not for the world would you advise young men and women to follow your example, but the silent influence of your example draws them in after you and before God you are not guiltless. When you want fire you take a match and rub it with speed against an object and the flame leaps to the match end. Your silent influence is the thing that rubs the actions of men and you produce the flame that either warms and helps, or the fire that burns them into a pile of ruin Friends, you have no greater power than your silent influence. Beware how you use it.

"Gee, Daddy, that man is all right." So said a young man of seventeen as he argued with his father about a certain man in the community who had set himself up as a leader and chaperone of young men and women. He was pulling wild parties and the anxious parents were concerned beyond measure. The boy was just blooming into young manhood and his parents knew the power of silent influence over his forming habits. I am in position to write several sad stories that resulted from the influence of that one man in that community. He led young men to drink who since have filled drunkard's graves. He made easy the temptation of young life and the result was that many of those under his chaperone went wrong. He was very wrong himself and the silent influence of his life pulled his comrades down to his own level. Silent influence is like a chain belt that moves with the log carrying it into the saw.

The cold of winter is over and the roar of March winds have ceased There is a silent influence of warmth and heat falling down from the great king of day. Eveywhere the sap is silently coursing its way up the trunk of trees and vegataton. We hear no sounds, we see no pulling power, but everywhere buds are popping open and flowers are blooming. It is the silent influence of the sun that brings in the glory of Spring. It is not what we do with noise and gusto that counts. There is an inner self that reaches out like the rays of the sun, and in a silent way either makes or destroys men and women about us. You may not be aware of it, but you are doing things to other people and God is going to hold you responsible.

On the farm far back on the hills, the farmer's boy had just returned from college. While away in his freshman year he had unconsciously dropped into the use of college slang. At the breakfast table he called out to his mother, "Mother, chase the cow down this way." The mother knew that he wanted some of the nice brown steak that she had prepared and she was equal to the occasion. She remarked to her husband: "Give the hungry calf some steak. Don't you hear him bawling" We associate with people and they exert an influence over us and without being aware of it, we begin to do just as they are doing. We need thinking people to shock us into seeing ourselves as we really are. I knew a man who did nothing but look after a Jack, and beleive it or not, that man could beat that Jack braying.

High gasoline taxes do not necessarily insure motorists of good roads. Some of the states which have maintained low rates of gasoline taxation have road systems which are far better than those in certain high tax states.

SNAKES PLENTIFUL

There seems to be an unusual amount of snakes being seen on various projects of Camp S.C.S. 7, Clanton, Alabama at this time. Most of these snakes are of the moccasin family and are dangerous reptiles.

One work crew engaged in pasture clearing killed 17 snakes one day and 28 more the next. Approximately two thirds of the 28 were killed in the first half hour of work. This project became so infected that it was abandoned until more favorable weather renders the snakes less dangerous.

Farm owners can rid their pastures of snakes by turning various farm animals that are immune to snake bites into the infested areas.

Each S.C.S. work crew is equipped with kits carrying instruments for rendering first aid to members that might be bit. After first aid is given the patient should be carried to a physician.

All snakes are not poisonous, but each carries the danger of infection from their bite, and should not be handled.

These harmless snakes are generally considered valuable because they thrive on rodents and vermin. Everyone should learn to identify the various types of snakes. Do not handle the poisonous and kill the poisonous ones on sight.

Young Men Offered Free Summer Course On Training Ship

The American Nautical Academy, National Training School for Merchant Marine Officers, Washington, D. C., announced today that boys and young men between the ages of 11 and 21 years will be allowed to secure practical ship experience on board a training ship of the Academy within the period from June 1, to October 1, 1939.

The young men may remain on board ship for the entire period, or for any shorter time they may wish, but not for less than a month. Students who enter for any period less than the full course will receive instruction only in those subjects being taught while the student is on board ship.

The purpose of the course is: First, as a foundation for those who wish to become officers in the Merchant Marine, and devote their lives to a career in the service; Secondly, for those boys and young men who, though not desirous of following the sea, still wish to obtain a general knowledge of ships, and the life afloat.

There is no charge for instruction nor for living quarters on board ship. The only required expense is for meals, which are 49 cents. Three meals are served daily.

There is no tuition charge for any of the courses offered by the Academy; and no obligation for future merchant marine, military or naval service of any kind is incurred by the young men.

The scholarship to which the young men will be assigned is the Training Ship "MARSALA", a vessel of 2422 tons, 284 feet long, 45 feet breadth, and built in 1919-20.

On Sundays the cadets will be allowed to attend divine services at the churches of their respective denominations on shore. While on board ship cadets will receive free minor first aid treatment when necessary.

This is the tenth annual summer course offered by the Academy, and will be under the personal supervision of the Captain Commandant of the Academy who will be in command of the vessel.

While on board ship the students will follow the regular daily ship routine, and will be given practical instruction in nautical subjects, including seamanship (ship's work), signaling, rowing, handling, and the use of motor boats, pulling boats, life-saving, and naval drills. Many of the duties on board ship are performed by the cadets as part of their training. They will also receive instruction in the use of life buoys, first aid, the compass, log, lead, ground tackle, and the duties of lookouts as well as the duties of the watch on deck.

Students will join the training ship at Virginia where the vessel will be based at Hampton Roads for the summer training period.

Those completing the summer course with a passing grade will be eligible to apply for a scholarship in the Navagation Course.

Due to the fact that the number of accomodations available is limited, those wishing to take advantage of this opportunity should write at once to the American Nautical Academy, National Training School For Merchant Marine Officers, Washington, D. C.

If every car load of sugar sold in America last year had been packed in cotton bags, the cotton consumed would have given a day's work to nearly ten million people, or one-third of a year's work to 100,000 people. National Cotton Week is a major event looking toward increased cotton consumption.

Important Facts About Syphilis Listed

The County Health Department in a weekly bulletin released today named the outstanding facts concerning syphilis, one of Chilton County's major health problems. Chilton Countians were urged by the County Health Officer to learn the truth about this disease. The following facts are probably the most important, the Health Officer states:

1. Syphilis is a highly cotagious, dangerous disease.

2. Syphilis is caused by a spiralshaped germ.

3. Syphilis is spread usually by sexual intercourse, but may be caught by kissing, using infected drinking cups, towels, tooth-brushes, or other personal articles.

4. Gonorrhea and syphilis are not the same thing.

5. Syphilis is a great killer and cause of invalidism and ill health.

6. There are four stages of the disease; the primary secondary, latent and late.

7. The primary stage in which there may be a rash, sores in the mouth, loss of hair, sore throat, and fever, or a general run-down feeling lasts about four years.

c. The latent stage in which there may be no symptoms may last from five to thirty years.

d. In the late stage there may be heart disease, blindness, deafness, insanity and paralysis.

8. Syphilis is a curable disease if treatment is begun during the first six months of the disease.

9. Treatment of early syphilis consists of seventy shots which must be given straight through, one a week with no rest periods.

10. Even late syphilis can be benefitted by treatment.

11. The pregnant mother who has syphilis untreated has only one chance in six of having a normal full term baby. Usually the pregnancy ends in a miscarriage, stillbirth, abortion or a syphilitic child.

12. If treatment is started before the fifth month of pregnancy, a normal child will usually be born.

13. Every pregnant mother should have a blood test for syphilis.

14. Every person should have a blood test for syphilis at least once a year.

The Senior Class of Thorsby Institute will present a three-act play entitled "A Little Clodhopper," by Walter Ban Hare, on Friday evening, May 26, at 7:30 o'clock in the Helen Jenkins Hall. The story of the play centers around Judy, the little Clodhopper from the poor-house, who was deserted many years before by hel father, now a rich man but seriously ill in a hospital in Texas. He writes to the scheming Mrs. Chiggerson-Boggs, who was the former matron of the poor-house, and asks her to locate his lost child.

Mrs. Boggs, knowing that Judy is a trusting, innocent heiress, determines to marry her to her son, George, a city dude. The success of her plans and the fate of innocent Judy will be revealed as this rollicking comedy-drama unfolds itself. Only Dramatic Critics Are Excluded From 'Players'

For years the great Edwin Booth was fired with the idea of establishing a club primarily but not entirely for actors. In the summer of 1887, with fellow-members of a yachting party, he got down to serious planning. During the next year Booth purchased a Manhattan house at 16 Gramercy park, engaged Stanford White to remodel it, collected 46 charter members, and on the last night of the year, as first president of the Players, handed over the deed of No. 16 to Augustin Daly, the first vice president. Next day Booth moved in, and for the five remaining years of his life the Players was his home.

The Players has become one of the great Bohemian clubs of the world. Besides artists, all sorts and conditions of men have gained admittance — ambassadors and auctioneers, ornithologists and explorers, magicians and Presidents of the United States. Actors have always formed a powerful minority. Only dramatic critics are excluded by rule—to avoid the possible embarrassment of having them run into actors they have panned.—Time Magazine.

Fish and Game Abound in Ruthenia's Hidden Valleys

In Ruthenia's hidden valleys, superstitions linger, and old habits, along with wide-sleeved peasant dresses richly embroidered, and little houses brightly painted in blues, greens and reds behind wooden stockades designed to keep out wolves and bears in winter.

With its wild game—deer, lynx, bears, stags, wildcats, and boars—Ruthenia is a hunter's heaven.

Its swift-running mountain streams are full of salmon, trout and other fish favorites of the sportsman. For the health seeker, Ruthenia claims to have more mineral springs than any other part of the world, says the National Geographic society.

There are rich salt deposits, such as those at Slatinske Doly, where spectacular cathedral-like excavations have been cut by the workers in dazzling forms that resemble high vaulted roofs, columns, and chapels.

Less abundant are other mineral deposits of naphtha, coal, iron, and marble—together with a handsome local form of quartz, or "Ruthenian diamonds," found along river banks.

Nettle Fences

The elephant has a thick hide, but his trunk is so sensitive that he never forgets if he pushes it against a stinging nettle plant.

Rubber planters in Johore, British Malaya, are therefore planting hedges of stinging nettles around their estates, where elephants have done much damage by uprooting young trees and tearing down ordinary fences. It is hoped that when a wandering elephant touches a stinging nettle with his trunk he will dash away and not return.

One difficulty is that the sting of the nettle tree is so virulent that it is hard to plant.

Once Held Silk-Making Secret

Although silkworms are cultivated in many parts of the world in order to obtain the lovely product which they make, at one time the secret of producing this cloth was known only in China, where it was jealously guarded. Raising silkworms was a great industry in China as long ago as 2,600 years before the Christian era. Try as they might, other nations were unable to learn the secret of making the fine cloth. But, according to the story, a faithless Chinese princess finally betrayed her country by carrying to India some of the eggs of the silk moth and the seeds of the mulberry tree upon which it fed concealed in her headdress. From India the secret gradually spread to the West, although it did not reach Europe until the Sixth century.

Eyesight Needs Vitamin A

One of the first and most characteristic symptoms of a deficiency of vitamin A is what is known as nyctalopia or night-blindness. This inability to see clearly in a poor light, or quickly to recover clarity of vision after being temporarily blinded by a dazzling glare like that of headlights of an automobile, is asserted to be largely responsible for the rapidly mounting toll of night motorcar accidents.—Industrial and Engineering Chemistry.

Wars in April

April has been referred to as the "battle month" because the four major wars that the United States has participated in have all begun in the month of April. The first battle of the Revolutionary war at Lexington and Concord, took place in April, 1775; Fort Sumter, starting the Civil war, was fired on April 12, 1861. A state of war was declared with Spain April 25, 1898, and the United States entered the World war April 6, 1917.

Indians' Tobacco

The first Indians encountered by Columbus in the New world were the Ciboneys of Cuba. In the now extinct Ciboney tongue the tobacco plant was called "cohiba," but when a cigar was offered the Spaniards by a native the offer was usually accompanied by the expression of "tabaco," believed to mean, "Will you smoke?"

"The Truth And The Liquor Traffic"

Editor Chilton County News:

We do not offer this title because of its close relation but because of the distance it stands from each other. Also because the liquor traffic stands at a guilty distance before God. Notwithstanding it was devised by men in high position, but that does not keep it from being the deadliest curse ever devised by man or devil.

A conversation with a man who loves his dram led me to the subject on which we are basing our thoughts today. He said in part "Preacher I read after you ever week, and ever line that you have written is positively so.

An outstanding doctor from Montgomery sends me these words by a patient who was under his care for three weeks. "I have never met that preacher but tell him he is writing the truth." Anything bad that you may say about this liquor traffic is so. I offer this statement without any apologies or fear of successful contridiction.

I am aware that there are people who do not enjoy having any one fight this evil, but I will continue to use my influence against it until the Lord says its enough.

A liquor sot who has just returned from the pententiary said to me "you are a preacher and I am a drunkard. I may go back to the pen, but it won't be for making, selling or drinking liquor, but I will go back for putting a two by four Baptist preacher out of business." I am not the only one who heard this statement. Well we are not uneasy at all. But this would only be a short cut to heaven anyway.

My friends, it gives me joy to know that I am worthy to suffer persecution for Christ. Well readers, its not all brickbats. Just since I began writing this article a neighbor came by and I told him of my subject for this week's writing, and he said, "I don't believe any man can find words sufficient to describe the horribleness of this liquor business" and too, I have a nice letter from a Congregational Minister who lives in New York. It reads in part: "I frequently notice your articles in the Union-Banner on the temperance question. I think they are very much worth while. May God give you more power, and bless you in your work." This Minister also sends us a nice check for which we are expressing our thanks to him.

"We also appreciate the nice check sent to us from Mr. Q. C. Maroney, a mail carrier from Verbena. He said in part: "Tell the preacher that I am not personally acquainted with him, but I am sending him this amount to help him on the way"

We are not personally acquainted with this friend but God will not over look this gift, because I used that check, or those checks for the glory of God.

All this is highly appreciated and needed but all that I am asking for is your prayers.. —M. Lockhart, Clanton, Rt. 5.

MAKING BADLY ERODED LAND PAY DIVIDENDS

A relatively new type of hay will be harvested by many farmers in this section within the next few weeks when the first cuttings of Lespedeza sericea will be made from plantings now in their second or later growing season.

An important point in connection with this new hay crop is that it is being grown largely on land that was too severely eroded for the production of other crops, it is pointed out by Mr. James H. Wood, Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service, in the CCC camp area near Clanton, Alabama.

Another important consideration is that this hay will be harvested at a time when most farmers need hay.

These advantages of Lespedeza sericea, Mr. Wood explains, illustrates the importance of a complete vegetative program which enables the farmer to meet his own needs with a variety of crops and to utilize all his land in carrying out a well balanced farming program.

The palatability of Lespedeza sericea for livestock feed depends on cutting at just the right time, since the stems get tough if allowed to grow beyond a certain stage. The best hay is made when the plants average about 14 inches in height.

Once well established, Lespedeza sericea provides continuous protection on areas which because of slope or other conditions are especially subject to erosion and at the same time will furnish at least two cuttings of hay from land which would otherwise be unproductive.

CHILEAN PAVILION AT FAIR IS OPENED

New Ambassador Makes First Public Appearance At Dedication

Dedication of the Chilean Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, on Sunday, May 21, marks the first official public appearance of Alberto Cabero, the new Chilean Ambassador to the United States Ambassador Cabero, who has just arrived in the United States to take up his new duties in Washington, will be the principal speaker at the dedicatory ceremonies.

The Chilean Pavilion, a gleaming structure of steel, glass and concrete, occupies 24,000 square feet of landscaped area in the colorful Court of Nations. An L-shaped structure, two complete faces of the Chilean Pavilion are mirrored in a beautiful crystal-clear pool, and through wide panes two stories in height, a giant mural painting by the Chilean artist, Camilo Mori, is clearly visible from outside the building.

Of course, Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda is an important part of the Chilean Pavilion. This natural product, used in Southern agriculture for more than one hundred years, is a major product of Chile. The significance of the natural origin of Chilean Nitrate is cleverly and interestingly emphasized.

Visitors to the Chilean Pavilion will meet two old friends, Uncle Natchel and Sonny. These two characters, who in newspapers, farm papers, over the radio, and on calendars, have been featured in the advertising of Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda, are present in life-size figures which occupy an important spot in the ground floor of the Pavilion.

Many new aspects of the Chilean Nitrate industry are shown—for instance the extent to which it helps to finance the purchase by Chile of American products, and the fact that it is a large factor in Chile's being first among all foreign countries in the payment of Panama Canal tolls. Chile paid toll on 4,235,000 tons of shipments during 1937. She bought some $24,600,000 worth of finished goods and raw products, including cotton, from the United States during the same year. During the past ten years more than one-third of all Chile's purchases were made in the United States.

The manner in which Chile's importance as an American market is visualized is one of the World's Fair's many interesting exhibits. Elaborate animated dioramas and giant mural photographs are features of the exhibit.

Iodine, a by-product of Natural Chilean Nitrate, vital to the health of humans, as well as livestock, is also interestingly included in the Chilean exhibit.

First Post Office Was Located in Boston in 1641

The first postal establishment on the North American continent was located in Boston in 1641 in the tavern of Richard Fairbanks who was given authority to charge one penny for each letter delivered, Professor R. Del French of McGill university told members of the Rotary club of Montreal, says the Christian Science Monitor. In Canada, the first record of postal service was during the French regime when a road was opened between Quebec and Montreal in 1735.

Private dispatches by mail in Canada were delivered on schedule only after the fall of Quebec into British hands. This marked the final real attempt to organize a postal service on a regular basis, and Benjamin Franklin was instrumental in developing this work between Montreal and New York by way of the Champlain and Hudson route. Postal service was instituted between Halifax and Liverpool in 1755.

BOARD SPEEDS UP HONKY TONK DRIVE

Licenses Revoked At Ten Establishments In Half Dozen Counties

Montgomery, Ala.—Closed retail beer outlets dotted the map of Alabama's 25 "wet" counties today—evidence that Alabama's Alcoholic Beverage Control Board means business when it ordered establishments to "clean up or close up."

Chairman E. Roy Albright of the Board announced that 10 licenses had been revoked and 15 suspended upon reports of field agents that these establishments were volating the ABC law and bringing complaints from citizens.

David E. Dunn, Director of Alabama Beer Industry's Self-Regulation Program, praised the Biard for its quick action, declaring: "Public opinion, once aroused, can operate to bring about an end to these undesirable conditions, and the Board's determined drive is paving the way for attainment of that goal in a laudable manner."

Dunn, who initiated cases against six of the 10 establishments where licenses were revoked, said that he believed the general conduct of beer outlets had improved considerably since launching of the Board's intensive drive two months ago.

Board action, announced by Chairman Albright, follows:

Revocations: Fairfield Grill, Fairfield, Alabama; Mecca Hotel, Birmingham; Batchelor Inn, Russellville; Mountain View Inn, Tuscumbia; Midway Service Station, Tuscumbia; Narmore's Place, Sheffield; Yarbrough's Place, West Point; Indian Creek Store, Madison; Green Lantern, Huntsville; Frank's Place, Montgomery.

Sixty day suspensions: Club Alabama, Birmingham; Mountain Brook Grill, Birmingham; Bungalow, Birmingham.

Thirty-day suspensions: Burger's Inn, Birmingham; Green Lantern Tourist, McCalla; Moon River Beach, Irondale; Blue Crane, Birmingham; Ironwood Inn, Irondale; Fred & Jean's Tavern, Trussville; Jack's Tavern, Birmingham; White Pig Barbecue, Leeds; Rose Hill Tourist Camp, Irondale; Cozy Corner Barbecue, Birmingham; Bill's Place, Helena; Mack's Barbecue, Birmingham.

Handling The Calf Crop

1. Castrate all bull calves when two or three weeks old. Use anticeptic precautions. The Burdizzo Emasculative should be used if there is danger of screw worm.

2. Dehorn all calves when the horns are ¼ to ½ inch long, using calf dehorners.

3. Vaccinate against Blackleg when the calves are two to four months of age, and again when they are one year old.

4. Cull and market inferior calves at 150 to 200 pounds.

In nearly all herds there are some calves that give no promise of developing into profitable beef calves. These should be sorted out and sold as vealers when milk fat and weighing around 150 to 200 pounds. As a rule, such inferior calves will net more money if sold as veal than if carried until they lose their milk flavor and sold weighing 275 to 450 pounds.

Creep Feeding Grain to Suckling Calves

Whether or not feeding grain to suckling calves on pasture will be profitable depends on the type and quality of calves and on conditions and circumstances that exist on the individual farm. With good milking cows and an abundance of good improved pasture creep feeding is not usually profitable.—Dr. R. S. Sugg, Beef Cattle Specialist.

Decisive Steps Taken To Reduce College Debt

Birmingham, Ala.—Decisive steps toward lowering the current debts of Howard College were taken at a meeting here of representatives of nearly 100 Baptist Churches, when it was voted to raise $35,000 for this purpose in the Birmingham district.

The Alabama Baptist State Convention has already voted, at its recent special meeting in Montgomery, to raise $65,000 for Howard College. With the Birmingham district assuming $35,000 of this amount, the rest of the state has assumed the balance of $30,000.

The Birmingham campaign is being directed by Dr. John H. Buchanan and Dr. A. H. Reid. Frank P. Samford, Howard trustee, heads the state drive. President-elect Harwell Davis, of Howard, is being consulted with regard to all activities in the campaign.

The $35,000 goal for the Birmingham district has been apportioned equally among the various churches in the area. On Sunday, June 4th, ministers of every Birmingham district Baptist Church will speak in their pulpits for the campaign.

Dr. Reid said at the meeting here: "This campaign must succeed. Howard has a distinguished history of 97 years, and now faces a new and glorious future. The college has been in Birmingham 52 years, and has made a definite contribution to the religious, cultural and economic life of the community and state. Howard will project her influence into the future with increasing greatness."

Organization meetings similar to the one held in Birmingham are being held all over the state of Alabama, and Sunday, June 4th, is the day selected to raise the $65,000.

We Observe

By BONNIE HAND

"Happiness comes from within, depending on what we are rather than what we have."—Anonymous.

The above would be appropriate for every senior graduating this year to keep in mind And, too, we hope that Chilton County seniors are not laboring under the impression that the diploma they now hold is a passport to the universe, and that all they have to do now to be a success in life is coast along with the idea in mind that they are graduates from High School, college. There's many a hard hill to climb, and the vehicle one rides in or the manner in which he makes the grade is what will count. We extend hearty congratulations to the graduates of the Chilton County High School—the largest class in the school's history—and other graduates of the County.

New Business—

One of Clanton's newest business establishments is the Fore Motor Company. Located on the highway across from the Taylor Wholesale, this new Dodge-Plymouth Agency is operated by C. H. Fore, former Shelby County sheriff, and a newcomer to Clanton. However, Mr. Fore was well known here before going into the automobile business.

Need Your Support—

The Clanton-Maplesville Baseball Team is really going to town these days, and so far have won every game played. It is very noticeable, however, that the fans are not turning out to see the games as they should, and the excellent playing of these boys is not receiving the backing as of former years. We are in hopes that the baseball fans of this section will turn out with a more hearty support during the remaining games of the season. Of course, it takes financial aid, and the boys are sadly lacking in this respect unless the people turn out.

"Fly-By-Nighters"—

No, the menus that were to be printed for two local cafes are not being printed by either of the two local newspapers, as the man said they were. He got our prices alright—and several dollars from several merchants of Clanton. He also "got gone," and at this writing the cafes haven't received their menus. Before you pay a stranger for an advertisement on anything to be printed, it will save you cash to give the local printers a ring if you were told they were doing the printing—especially before you hand out the money. Some of those fellows are all right, and many are not all right.

Widening The Highway—

Work has been in progress for some time now on widening the Birmingham-Montgomery highway north of Jemison. We sometimes wonder just what will be done about Clanton when the road is widened and traffic is increased through the main part of town. We are told that the widening of this road in North Clanton will necessitate the moving of several houses to make room for the right-of-way. That can be done without a great deal of expense and trouble. But the main part of Clanton through which the road runs, something else. At present there is not an abundant amount of room along the highway thoroughfare, what with parking of autos along same. At least we are of the opinion that parking on this road must come to a stop before long to prevent congestion of traffic through Clanton. And then we ard somebody say that the road would be built in the future that will skirt the edges of Clanton. Who knows—we don't.

The University Highway—

We read a good deal about the "University Highway" these days. And this road that will link Montgomery with Tuscaloosa would traverse seventeen miles of Chilton County soil in the Western part of the County, over near Maplesville. Chilton County is being urged to bear their share of the expense of making this road a reality—paved and everything. That's something else we'll have to face whether we are wholeheartedly in favor of it or not—in the future.

LIONS GETTING OFF TO A GOOD START

CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS; CHARTER NIGHT WILL BE BIG EVENT

The Clanton Lions Club met last Friday evening at the Thomason Hotel where plans were made for Charter Night by the Club.

With twenty-nine members and a score of visitors present, a very enthusiastic meeting was held. Officers were elected to preside until January first, 1940. A complete list of officers follows:

Leroy Martin, President; Reese G. Mullins, 1st vice president; Raymond Underwood, 2nd vice president; Earl Parrish, 3rd vice persident; R. M. Tucker, secretary-treasurer; Edwin Mullins, tail twister and Ralph Bryan, Lion tamer.

Date for Charter Night was previously set for June 9, but being unable to secure a place large enough to accomodate the large crowd expected, this has been postponed until a later date. Clubs from surrounding towns are invited on this night and this is expected to be a gala affair.

A number of the local members will attend Charter Night at Eclectic on Friday night of this week. Those who can go should get in touch with Leroy Martin or the Secretary, as a good representation at this meeting is hoped for.

CLANTON HAS A NEW AUTO AGENCY

FORE MOTOR CO. WILL HANDLE DODGE-PLYMOUTH LINE OF CARS, TRUCKS

The Fore Motor Company, Clanton's newest business establishment, is this week announcing that they are ready to serve this territory with the well known Dodge-Plymouth line of cars and trucks, with sales and service.

This new agency is located on the Highway across from the Taylor Wholesale Grocery Co., in the building formerly occupied by the H. N. Smith Motor Co., and is operated by C. H. Fore, formerly of Columbiana. Mr. Fore served as Sheriff of Shelby County for some time, and has many friends throughout this section.

Connected with Mr. Fore in the capacity of salesman is Mr. W. W. Wingard, well known business man of this city.

A line of used cars is also being carried by the Fore Motor Co., and two separate advertisements in this issue of the News tells of this new business and several bargains in used cars are listed.

Health Dept. Opens Verbena Branch Office

Opening of a branch office of the Health Department in Verbena was announced by the County Health Department for Friday, June 2.

This, the latest of several branch offices to be opened by the Department, will be located in the second story of the Deramus Grocery Store of Verbena. Space for the office was donated by proprietors of the store, Mr. Barnett Deramus and Mr. Irby Deramus. Regular office hours will be observed on Fridays from 3:00-4:30 P.M.

Residents of the Verbena and Mt. Creek communities were urged by the Health officer, Dr. S. D. Sturkie, of Clanton, to avail themselves of the services of the Health Department through this new branch office. Free immunizations against typhoid, blood tests for syphilis, stool examinations for hookworm, routine advice for expectant mothers, well infants, preschool and school children, advice for families infected with tuberculosis or other communicable disease, can be had by persons consulting the Health Department.

"The Health Department prefers to render services to those who are referred by their family physicians," Dr. Sturkie emphasized. "The Health Department is operated to render assistance to, not to replace the family physician," he stated.

For the immediate present treatments for syphilis will not be given at the Verbena office. It is Dr. Sturkie's hope however, that by July 1st, a syphilis clinic will begin to operate in Verbena.

The Department's other branch office is in Maplesville where office hours are observed on Wednesdays from 9:30 A.M. to 12:00.

Normally, every duty of life brings pleasure.

1939 Valedictorian Makes Good Record

Ed Goodgame, the 1939 Valedictorian of the Senior Class of C.C.H.S., has succeeded in making the highest honors of the four years of high school.

Anyone who has been through the routine years of High will agree that there are obstacles to be overcome before any student can finish even with a passing mark. However, by the burning of the "midnight oil," Ed has surpassed his fellow students in academic work and we feel proud to say that he has the honor of being valedictorian for this year.

In looking over the records of the students, we find that it was a race to the finish between Ed and Sidney Nelson, for this great honor but due to the fact of a few more points, Ed won. Sidney is salutatorian.

To both these students, we take off our hats and wish you success throughout the future years.

Homecoming Day Brings Many Former Students, Friends To Verbena High School

Last Thursday, May 18, was a veritable holiday for Verbena, for this was the date of the annual Homecoming at the Verbena High School. Homecomings are always gala occasions, and the Verbena Homecoming was no exception.

The program planned and carried out for the day was one of interest and entertainment, and was climaxed by a baseball game between Verbena and their ge-old rival, Marbury. In the last few minutes of this game, during which each team struggled for supremacy, the Verbena boys emerged victorious, the score being 4-5.

But we're getting a little ahead, so we'll run back and relate other interesting highlights of this homecoming. Greetings and salutations were in order during the morning as the people began gathering on the school grounds. An important event of the morning was the organization of an Alumni Association—the Verbena Alumni Association. Officers for the Association were elected as follows:

Aubrey Robinson, president; Frances Strock, vice president; Houston Robinson, secretary-treasurer. Former students who attended the Vebena High School for at least three years are eligible to become members. This promises to become a strong and worthwhile unit of the Verbena School in the years to come.

Next on program was a talk by Dr. Spencer, head of Secondary Education, Montgomery. His talk was enjoyed by a large gathering. Superintendent Rascoe Maddox was also on hand and made some remarks. Following this came the lunch hour. It was "dinner on the ground," and plenty of it, and a large crowd partook of the bounteous feast spread.

In the afternoon came the game between Verbena and Marbury, following which the crowds began making their way homeward. Among the former students and friends of the school who were on hand to enjoy the day was Mrs. Jettie Nix (nee Jettie Ward), former teacher at the school.

On Friday night, May 19, came the graduating exercises of the Senior Class Students receiving their diplomas were as follows:

Marie Minor, Helen Patterson, Ettie Charles Wilkins, Carrie Lee Boockholdt, Elizabeth Cathey, Alice Gilmore Jones, Pauline Littleton, Mary Ruth Gentry, Henrietta Esco, Marie Robinson, Vera Logan, Nita Jones Josephine Calloway, Lawrence Howard, G. B. Sharp, W. P. Champion, Bill Eiland, Herman Connell, Daniel Hudman, Leonard Robinson, Edward Wilkins.

ALABAMA STATE FAIR

Alabama State Fair dates at Birmingham have been set for October 2nd and 7th.

We do not believe there was ever a time when all the people of Alabama could get more out of a big State Fair through wholehearted enthusiastic cooperation than right now.

The people have read and heard so much about "hard times," wars and rumors of wars, pestilence and poverty, until the mass mind is sick of it all, and we believe it would be a wholesome relief to turn our thoughts to showing off ourselves, and what we have in the most attractive way at a big Alabama Fair.

Instead of trying to show what somebody thinks the "world of tomorrow" is going to be like, agriculture, husbandry, industry, commerce, artistry, should all join hands in showing to the world through the Alabama State Fair, at Birmingham October 2nd to 7th, the multiplied good and worthwhile things that Alabama has right now.

Chilton County should have the best and most varied agricultural display at the fair. The returns would be worth far more than the cost.

HIGHWAYS' DANGEROUS DAYS

Alabama highways are more dangerous on Saturdays than on any other day of the week, according to a study of 1937 motor vehicle deaths by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health, the results of which were made public recently.

This study showed that 162 of the 681 motor vehicle accident deaths reported during the year were the result of accidents occurring on Saturdays, as compared with 143 due to Sunday accidents, 82 due to Monday accidents, 67 accidents occurring on Tuesdays, 82 due to accidents occurring on Wednesdays, 75 due to accidents occurring on Thursdays, an 64 due to accidents occurring on Fridays. Six deaths were caused by accidents of which the days of occurrence were not specified.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Feeling The Loss—It looks like the State has begun to feel the loss in revenue from the Alabama Power Company on account of the TVA, chiseling in via the municipal power plants. Of course everybody knew that some day this had to happen, but no doubt, most of us hoped for the best. Of course, also, this loss will become more and more as towns increase their TVA connections. Some day too, this rural electrification may deprive the State of revenue, because the power company would eventually have served the country people. But what of it? There is nothing we can do about it.—Green County Democrat.

COOSA RIVER COMMERCE?

Long before there was a Birmingham, or a Mineral District of any consequence in Alabama, the Coosa River was carrying much if not most, of the commercial freight of the State.

The railroads came and the commerce on the Coosa went. We will not discuss the why.

The Coosa, potentially, Alabama's most important waterway, is being sorely neglected by both the State and the Federal governments. In addition to the thousands of electrical horsepower it is daily generating, it should be carrying on its bosom from the hills of North Georgia, the mineral district and through the great agricultural section of Alabama, millions of tons of commerce to consumers beyond the seas.

The Etowah and the Oostanaula merge at Rome, Ga., to form the Coosa; the Tallapoosa and theCoosa merge between Wetumpka and Montgomery to form the Alabama; the Tombigbee and the Alabama merge at Jackson to form the Mobile River which flows into Mobile Bay. Open the Coosa to nagivation and an unlimited freight route will have been created from Rome, Ga., through the heart of Alabama, and via Mobile Bay, to the whole world.

Take a trip over the thirty miles between Gadsden and Guntersville and you can easily see without the aid of an engineer's compass, that for thousands of years nature has been busy "cutting a canal" that will one day connect the Coosa and the Tennessee—whether man wants it to be so or not.

The Rome, Ga., Tribune, speaks thus of former Mayor George Ward of Birmingham, and his interest in the development of the Coosa River:

"George Ward, whose home in Birmingham is one of the show places of the city, knows his Coosa River and maintains on grounds an exhibit that advertises the importance of the stream to all who come to view his impressive Moorish home.

"This interest in the Coosa began when George was a youngster in Rome, where he saw the light of day, and has continued throughout the years—years in which he made his home in Birmingham, serving successively as mayor and president of the city commission and a wheel-horse in community development.

"The exhibit on the grounds about his extraordinary home shows the Coosa arising at Rome through the merging of the Etowah and Oostanaula rivers. There is a sign calling attention to Rome and then the stream meanders to Gadsden, where another sign appears, designating the great steel city of Etowah county, and then it flows on through Selma, Montgomery and Mobile, after which, by some flight of the former mayor's vaulting fancy, it continues to New Orleans.

"While the flow of the Coosa does not continue from Mobile to New Orleans, the prophetic eye of George Ward sees the time when Coosa river traffic will flow to that point, and thus the idea is embodied in the design. This interesting exhibit, with its perpetually flowing water, does more than prophesy an ultmately developed Coosa, however. It serves the useful purpose of furnishing water for sundry lily ponds and thus adds beauty while giving promise of greatly increased utility. Ward, by the way, is one of the pioneers in the 'City Beautiful" idea. When he was mayor of Birmingham he caused flower boxes to be placed in city hall windows and was hot behind every movement that helped to make the big industrial town the beautiful city that it is today.

"So, if George has his way the Coosa River will not only be open one of these days, providing navigation facilities from Rome to Mobile—and New Orleans—but he'll have the stream bordered with flowers and greenery all the way, if it doesn't already have flowers and greenery all the way."

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

While traveling on a train out west I looked ahead and could see a large sheet of white on a mountain top that loomed in the distance. If I had seen that in Alabama and had been asked to judge the distance I would have said that it was about ten miles away. But out there the mountain top of snow must have been more than a hundred miles away. Our train was averaging around fifty miles per hour and it ran for three hours before we passed the base of that mountain. The atmosphere was so clear that our vision was not impaired and we could see many miles. As we look out on the coming ages we can see the Kingdom of God in the distance. We spend our generation and we do not seem any nearer, but we are traveling all the time in that direction. Some day, some generation will arrive. By faith we can see the kingdom afar, and day after day, generation after generation we are traveling to that sublime age.

While riding along a one-way street we traveled alone, meeting no one. Then we came to a double street and there we met people who were coming to meet us. Standing on a cement base at the pass where St. Andrews Bay connects with the Gulf of Mexico, I saw the waters flowing out and then the waters would flow back into the Bay. The tides determined the flow of the water. Our life sometimes is a one way travel. We must travel alone but there are times when we must meet the winds and the waves of life and combat with the forces that strike us in the face. In sorrow, in temptation, in death we must travel alone in our struggles to provide the necessities of life; we meet all kinds of experiences trying to bat us down. Whether we be traveling alone, or whether we be meeting the waves and tides of life, let's push on in fidelity.

Out at sea we are standing on deck and see another ship steaming by. We shout, "Ship ahoy, whither bound." The answer comes back, "I do not know; run with the wind and the waves and stay in the currents that drift here and there." A captain that is sailing the sea and not knowing where he is traveling and where he will likely land would be called a maniac. And yet that is what we are called upon to see out here on this sea of life. Young and old are traveling with no special objects in mind. They have no ideals. They travel with the currents and drift with waves and winds. "Whither bound." I am shouting to you. Tell me of your cargo and the port where you hope to land when the storms of life are all over.

A man owed me one hundred dollars. The note was due and on asking this man to meet his obligation he replied, "Certainly sir, I will be to see you on Saturday next to settle that note." The promise sounded good, coming from his lips and I did not attach any importance to it. Saturday came but the man and the money did not appear. The value of a thing depends largely upon who is saying it. Words may be bullets, but character must be the powder back of the words to give them projecting power. The man behind the promise is as important as the man behind the gun. We all know men whose words are lacking in projecting power and all because there is no character behind them. Then we know those whose words go far and mean much and all because there is character behind them.

There is nothing this side of heaven sweeter than to see a mother sitting by the bedside of a child as it nears the border land. I have seen them sit there day and night. They were not conscious of hunger, they did not even grow weary in their toil and waiting. All the natural desires of that mother were lost in the one consuming desire for her darling to get well. But listen; often that child gets well and in later years he is playing "hookey" at school, she is doing society at fifteen, and the child is going wrong. That same mother who did not want to eat or sleep while the child was in physical danger, is now as unconcerned and as stolid as a stone. She shows no concern about the spiritual welfare of her child, and sheds no tears over the steps that lead down to ruin and death. Do please tell me where is that woman's real mother heart? Mothers hear me—it is far more important that your child be saved than that he be well.

FROM W. F. GILLILAND

Editor, Chilton County News:

Will you allow a poor weak licensed preacher just a few lines in your paper, as I am moved with compassion.

Where in this world are the folks going? As I notice when Sunday morning comes I can look out by daylight I can see the cars passing by with their fishing canes going toward fishing camps to spend the day, and then when I go to Sunday School I find just a few—about one-fourth what ought to be there. People will drive seventy-five miles to a fishing camp before they will go a quarter to church.

Where is our nation going to? What is to become of people? Ar they looking for something good, or are they looking for the things to satisfy the lust of the flesh. Someone said to me: "When are times going to get any better?" My reply was: "Not until the people get better."

What is going to become of our people? When dark comes twenty-five per cent of our people are on cars riding or at some dance hall or at a swimming pool, or baseball game, or somewhere drinking wild-cat whiskey. They work all the week and when Saturday comes they will draw their check and get drunk.

If there is anyone reading this in the paper who is not a Christian, just stop and ask yourself this question: "If I should die right now, where would I spend eternity?" Just think what it is going to take to turn the people from their evil ways.

Please remember that God has an all-seeing eye and is watching you in all you do.—Rev. W. F. Gilliland.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

HIGH PRESSURE SALESMANSHIP

A SALESMAN, 10 years ago unscrupulous but successful, came in to see me today with his troubles: He no longer makes sales. I asked him what he thought was the matter.

"That's just it," said he. "I don't know. I give 'em the works—but they don't buy."

This man is a salesman of the old school—a worshipper at the shrine of high pressure salesmanship. His methods no longer make sales. He thinks he's losing his grip.

Charles Roth

That is not the trouble. The truth is that high-pressure salesmanship is out, is dead, is obsolete, is without power to make sales in these days of greater education.

People haven't changed, but they have become better educated in the higher education of taking care of themselves and their money. The process which brought about this education is newspaper advertising.

It used to be possible for a glib talker to take almost anything out to sell, no matter how worthless or inferior, and by sheer high-pressure selling to "clean up." But not now.

Even the lowliest buyer knows that certain claims are untrue, and that the price asked for certain items is excessive. These things he knows because advertising, his refuge against false claims, told him so.

The average customer today is much better informed than even professional buyers were 20 years ago.

The housewife knows which foods contain vitamins, which contain vegetable oils, which contain expensive ingredients and the like. She knows the effect of this or that product.

She is never, therefore, at the mercy of the high-pressure artist who seeks to rob her by giving her less than others and charging her more for it.

Advertising in the newspapers, which she consults regularly, has built into her life an expert knowledge of values and prices and qualities. These make her an extraordinarily well informed person.

He who would sell the average customer must come with good value, a fair price and high quality. Otherwise he won't get even a hearing, because we have something now with which to compare unknown or new goods—and we are quick to reject those that do not measure up.

Much more than a selling aid for business is advertising. It is an educational system which is making Americans the best-educated buyers in the world. It is an economic system which is giving Americans more for their money every day.

FISH-A Springtime Favorite!

—o—

If you are seeking ways to get away from heavy, rich foods suitable to colder days—try fish as a main dish. It is easy to procure, fresh, canned or frozen in great variety, so that you need never lack for change. It is economical, too, as there is very little waste. And the time for preparation is usually short—another important factor these lovely spring days when every minute possible should be spent out of doors.

POACHED EGGS IN RICE NESTS

1 cup raw rice
1 tbsp. salt
1-3 cup butter
1-3 cup flour
3 cups milk
1½ cups grated cheese
2-3 cup sliced stuffed olives
Salt and pepper
8 eggs

Pour rice in strainer and rinse well under cold water before cooking. Add salt to about 3 quarts of water. When it boils rapidly add rice and cook until tender but not mushy. Drain in colander when done and pour boiling water over the rice to rinse out starchy water. Put the strainer of rice over the pan in which it was cooked and cover with a clean dry towel and then the lid of the pan. The rice will keep hot and fluffy this way for about 10 minutes. While the rice is cooking make the sauce: melt the butter in a suacepan over low heat. Blend in flower until smooth and bubbly. Remove from heat. Add grated cheese and season to taste with salt and pepper. Add sliced olives last. Poach eggs. Make a nest of rice on each plate. Place a poached egg in each nest. Sprinkle sale and pepper over each egg and pour the sauce over all.

Clanton's New $77,000 Water Works System Now In Operation

FIVE HUNDRED GALLONS OF WATER PER MINUTE COMING FROM YELLOW LEAF CREEK, 4 MILES AWAY

On Monday morning, May 8th, about 10:45 o'clock, Mr. C. Fenn Jones, Mayor of Clanton, turned an electric switch at the new water works plant in Clanton, which set into motion the array of machinery, appliances and contraptions going to make up the brand new $77,000.00 water works outfit of the city of Clanton. The period of about four months has been required for the installation of the system which is now bringing in all of Clanton's water from Yellow Leaf Creek, a distance of some four miles from the city. The plant and system were designed by J. W. Goodwin Engineering Co., Birmingham, Ala.

Three separate and distinct contracts were let by the city for the construction of different units of this system. The filtering plant, the pump station at the creek and the supply line from Yellow Leaf to the city were contracted to the R. J. Reid Construction Company, of Birmingham, at a cost of $59,073.36.

The General Steel Tank Company, also of Birmingham, contracted for the 400,000-gallon raw water tank, the cost being $6,570.75. The 100,000-gallon elevated tank for treated water was built by Chicago Bridge & Iron Company with branch office and warehouses in Birmingham. The cost of the latter was $7,742.68.

MR. C. FENN JONES, Mayor of Clanton.

Additional land acreage, engineering advertising and other preliminaries necessary to the work entailed a cost of nearly $4,000. This brings the entire cost up to the neighborhood of $77,000.00 for the entire outfit all told. Of this amount 45 per cent was granted outright by the government through the PWA. The remaining 55 per cent was taken care of by the city issuing what they call water revenue bonds. These bonds, the officials of the City explain, are not direct obligations of the city, more than moral obligations, but are expected only to be paid from the revenue derived from the sale of water to meter holders.

The first of the three projects to get under way was the elevated tank for treated water, work on which began in December, 1938. The laying of the four-mile supply line and the building of the raw water tank began about the same time—In January of this year.

MEN RESPONSIBLE FOR THE NEEDED IMPROVEMENTS

Mayor C. Fenn Jones has worked valiantly, persistently and tenaciously on the job of building Clanton's modern water system. He has worked at the job with just as much interest and determination as he used to go at jobs of his own personal business when he was running the hardware business and putting up buildings of his own in Clanton. The waterworks system of 1939 is a monument to Mr. Jones that will speak out for his civic spirit and community enterprise long after he has ceased to walk the streets of Clanton and to greet his many friends with that characteristic smile of his.

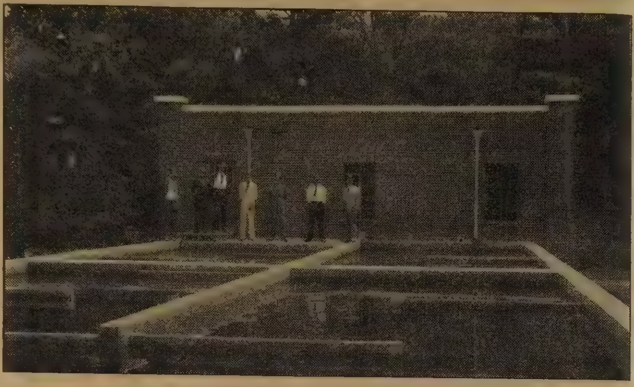
But Mr. Jones does not fail in the least to recognize the part played by the other officials of Clanton, by the Federal Government and by the citizenship of our community in general. Mr. Jones, with a degree of humility, says: "I am indeed proud of what has been done. I have worked hard for Clanton, and I believe that my friends can justly say that I have done much for Clanton and our fine community. However, I want it thoroughly understood that I know I could have done none of these fine things for Clanton had I not enjoyed the fine, friendly and whole-hearted support from the other officials of Clanton. Neither could we have done it without the moral backing of the populace of our citizenship. They have all stood behind me in the big undertakings, and we together have done things for Clanton of which we are all justly proud and thankful. I have only done my duty, and that much is required of every man."

Supporting Mayor Jones in the work of the city for the past several years has been the city council. This body is composed of the following: H. S. Shaw, J. Watts Moore, T. W. Kemp, H. G. Heflin and L. E. Diefenderfer. No less prominent in the activities and accomplishments has been the efficient, courteous and always-on-the-job city clerk, Mr. Claudie H. Pipes; and the services of Mr. Omar L. Reynolds as city attorney, have been indispensable.

Everybody in Clanton must undoubtedly feel proud of our water works system, and hasten to proclaim it an improvement and an accomplishment well worthy of pride and amply in keeping with what we think to be the best all around community in the western hemisphere—and that means in the world.

WATER WORKS SYSTEM IS BEING PUSHED

Work on the installation of the water works system for Clanton is progressing rapidly, and indications are now that by the end of the Summer Clanton will be enjoying the great advantages that always come from having such accommodations at hand. Material for both the water works and sewerage are being placed, ditches are being dug, and everything is rapidly being arranged for pushing the work along. The improvements are under the direction of the McCrary Company, of Atlanta, Ga., and the way they are handling the job is universally approved by the citizens and officials of the town.—Union-Banner, issue of May 14, 1914.



REAR OF FILTERING PLANT AND COAGULATION BASIN

Present Water Supply Could Furnish A City Of 15,000 Population

For three years before any of these projects were undertaken, attention of the city officials was centered on the point selected on Yellow Leaf Creek, as to the advisability of the location and the amount of water available. Finally J. W. Goodwin Engineering Co., Birmingham, Ala., was employed to make the surveys, measure the flow and get up estimates and other data for the project. At the dryest season last summer or fall, the measuring apparatus showed 1,800 gallons per minute flowing at this point on the creek. It is thought that the flow will scarcely ever come under this amount.

The water storage capacity of the city now consists of the following: Raw water tank, 400,000 gallons; new treated water elevated tank, 100,000; old treated water tank, 60,000; old reservoir, 120,000; available from basin of filtering plant, 30,000; total gallons held in reserve, 710,000. For all purposes the city uses about 130,000 gallons per day, so, if all pumps should stop or for any reason no water could be pumped from the creek, there would be enough water stored to keep us going about five and one-half days.

As to capacity, it will be noted that if the pumps at the creek ran every minute of the day, we would take from the creek only a little over one-fourth of the supply even in the dryest season. By installing larger and more powerful pumps, one thousand gallons per minute could be forced through the 8-inch supply line. This may some day become necessary when the population of the city becomes multiplied by four or five. Even then, Yellow Leaf can supply our needs and have 800 gallons per minute to spare. Mayor Jones points out that if any emergency should arise, a surface line could be built to Blacksnake creek, as was done this summer, which would supply almost as much water as the city now ordinarily uses.

Clanton's Modern Plant Pronounced 100 Per Cent

We older citizens of Clanton who some years ago were forced to drink and bathe in muddy water can best appreciate the fine, modern filtering plant which has recently been placed in operation. We cannot here explain the intricate working of this plant, but when the authority from the State Health Department pronounces it one hundred per cent and says that we have here improvements over anything else in Alabama, we are satisfied that the filtering system is Okie-Doke. That is what has happened to the Clanton plant, and the health department authority was none other than Mr. T. H. Milford. At the rear of the plant proper is a large basin called the coagulation basin, which is 30 feet wide, 70 feet long and 11 feet deep. This basin holds 130,000 gallons of raw water, 30,000 of which can be drawn off through 2 concrete filters. There are 2 of these filters inside the plant, they being partially filled with gravel and sand. Several kinds of chemicals are added automatically as the raw water begins to flow from the coagulation basin down through the filters.

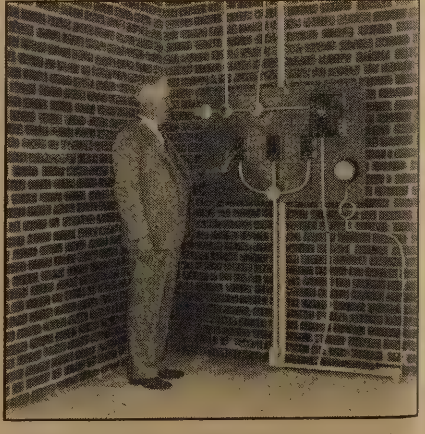
It is in the coagulation basin that is to be found the improvement peculiar to Clanton's plant. The baffles in this basin, similar to those used in our ordinary syrup pans, are made of concrete. These baffles are usually made of wood, but Mayor Jones sensed the fact that such baffles would rot out soon and had the contractors make them of cement—the same as the large partitions in the basin were made of. The purpose of the coagulation basin, as the name would indicate, is to permit a great portion of the sediment in the raw water to settle before it actually goes into the filters.

Nearly all of the valves controlling the flow of the water are automatic, nevertheless, there are some one dozen large valve controls on the second floor of the building which are hand-operated and extend down to a mass of pipes on the ground floor. The stair case is the only wood in the entire plant, and Mr. Jones threatens having that changed to concrete. There is a master meter through which all the treated water passes; by this means it can be determined just how much water is being used at all times and seasons of the year.

The six wells heretofore supplying the water, as well as the old dilapidated filtering system, have been discarded and will eventually be dismantled. City officials point out that the saving of the services of one employee at the plant has been effected by the installation of the new system, amounting to at least $90.00 per month. This is made possible by the fact that the work is more compact and all of the water comes from one source. Efficiency if the key characteristic of the new system.

FIRST SYSTEM 25 YEARS AGO

In the spring of 1914, during the mayorship of Dr. E. A. Matthews, the first water and sewerage system was built in Clanton; The McCrary Company, of Atlanta, constructed the systems, just twenty-five years ago. One well was dug at that time, which supplied a sufficiency of water for a few years. Gradually another well was dug, and another, until the number reached six. These wells cost about $1,000 each. We used muddy water until 1929, while Buck Hart was mayor of Clanton. It was at this time that the first filtering plant was constructed. The old wells and old filtering plant were capable of supplying about 100 gallons per minute, and it was necessary to keep all pumps operating all the time, both day and night. The old filtering plant, thought to be modern when built ten years ago, was made mostly of wood, and during this decade has almost completely rotted out.



MAYOR JONES TURNING ON THE CURRENT

Mayor Jones Speaks Concerning Clanton's New Water System

I think it appropriate at this time to call the attention of the citizenship to the fact it would have been almost impossible for Clanton to have built a water system such as we have now without having received assistance from the government through that agency known as PWA, and I feel very grateful for this donation and cooperation. Our government has been very kind and liberal to Clanton. It has helped us build the city hall; extend water mains to all sections of Clanton; paved our streets; built a new and modern filtering plant with adequate water supply, and through WPA a sanitary sewer line is now being run to the new sections of Clanton, and at the end of these pipe lines we expect to, with government help, build a sewerage disposal plant.

I hope every person will visit the water plant while it is in operation and have every thing explained in detail. You should go also to the pumping station on Yellow Leaf Creek and see for yourself the entire set up. If you will do this I am sure you too will realize more clearly the value of this plant and understand fully its real worth to you and to all of Clanton. It means much to the future growth of Clanton. In fact without ample water supply we could not expect any progress at all. Duing the past two or three years, especially last summer and fall, our entire business section could have easily been lost by fire. But now we have greater protection than ever before, and I shall call on the insurance people to reduce our rate of insurance.

There are, of course, much larger water plants in Alabama than ours, but there are none better. It will give you an inspiration to visit this plant. It will cause you to appreciate Clanton more and increase your civic pride. Clanton has out-grown many of its citizens. Some do not realize what we have even today, and have no conception of the future possibilities of our city. There were 38 votes cast against giving us money with which to build a water system adequate for our needs. Those voters had not, and did not, inform themselves. To them, I, as Mayor, extend a special invitation to inspect the plant. Clanton money has never been more wisely spent than the building of this new plant. Our water system is worth more than $150,000.

Every citizen, whether good or bad, is a part of Clanton. We each have a duty; let us perform that duty well and all work together for a better and larger Clanton.—C. Fenn Jones, Mayor.

Property Owned By City For Water Works Purposes

On Yellow Leaf Creek at the point known as Double Bridges the city has purchased 25 acres of land, on which is located the pumping station a small brick and concrete building, the intake point in the creek, Etc. The space of land, which lies 250 yards on each side of the creek and mostly above the intake point, affords sufficient room for impounding the water with a dam if and when the same becomes necessary to supply the city. The pump house is located about 80 yards from the creek, and connecting the two is a 14-inch cast-iron pipe line laid on a level with the bottom of the creek. There is a large well underneath the pump house, the water to which is supplied by the 14-inch pipe. Two large, powerful electric pumps are installed over the well, which will operate alternately, each four-hundred gallons per minute. If either of the pumps get out of order the other can be used while repairs are being made, thus causing no interruption in the supplying of water. It will never be necessary to operate both pumps at the same time.

PUMPING STATION ON YELLOW LEAF CREEK

The four miles of 8-inch iron pipe for the supply line is laid from the city north, starting up the highway and then taking up the old Lomax Road, sometimes known as the Bruce Road and further on up as the Double Bridges Road. The pumps and pipe line are capable of supplying and conveying into the city 500 gallons of water per minute. The line leads directly into the 400,000-gallon raw water tank. This raw water tank is so elevated that the turning of a valve is all that is necessary to get the raw water from the tank to the filtering plant.

In low places along the supply line are installed large valves or plugs, which will be used to release mud and sediment that naturally will settle at these points along the line. At a number of the highest points of the line are built in air valves to permit the escape of air when the pipe is being re-filled with water. Air can escape through these valves but water cannot escape.

Other real property owned by the city for water works purposes is the plat of land on which the plant proper is situated consisting of about 21 acres. A lot 75 feet by 150 was purchased from Mr. John T. Ellis, on which has been located the two new tanks. The old tank, of course, is located on a small plat across the railroad only large enough for the base of the tower.

1206 Women Say "Yes" to Query

If 93 out of 100 users picked at random declare they were helped by a medicine, would you believe in its merit? Record of the famous Query among women of leading cities in 12 Southern States shows 1206 out of 1297 users queried say CARDUI helped them. That figures 93 out of 100! What a record!

Women all over the South are eager to tell of their experiences with CARDUI. They were weak, rundown, nervous. Those are symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition, which CARDUI helps to relieve by stimulating appetite and digestion and building physical resistance. Try CARDUI!

Church School 9:45 A.M., L. J. Stewart, Superintendent.

Morning Worship, 11:00 A.M. Sermon by the Pastor.

Young Peoples' meeting 7:00 P.M. each Sunday.

Evening worship 7:30 P.M. Sermon by the Pastor.

Now that school is ended and the students do not have studies on their minds and the parents do not have the duties that go with keeping the children in school each day, we hope for a new revival of interest in our church work. We are doing work which we hope looks good in the eyes of our Master, but it may be that we aren't going the limit in our work for Him. We owe Him the best in us. Only when we have given our best will and can we receive the best of His blessing which He has in store for us. We hope and pray that the ones who have been out because of sickness will be returning to us soon fully recovered.

Everyone is cordially invited to meet and worship with us at each of the services. We are happy to welcome visitors and new members.

We Observe

By BONNIE HAND

A Howl Goes Up—

Benito Mussolini sent 40,000 Italian soldiers to Spain during the revolution there. This was no war of Italy's, but under the dictatorship of Il Duce, the Italians made no fuss—they knew better than do so. Mussolini expects to get his reward for aiding Franco in minerals from Spain. Of the 40,000 soldiers, 3,132 were killed. Casualties totaled 13,987, and it is reported that 2,000 of the wounded were permanently disabled. If the President of the United States should attempt to send American soldiers to a foreign war like that we wonder just what kind of howl would be made by the citizens of this country. And yet, because he makes a blanket appear for peace, he is accused of meddling in foreign affairs leading to a war with the dictator countries. Hamilton Fish, Republican Representative from New York, whose word in Congress was voted by nationally known political writers as having the least weight in the Congress, is heading an organization pledged to "Help keep the United States out of war." The organization is all right, but its leader's blaring statement that the President is leading this country into war, strikes us as only a means he is using to knock the administration and Mr. Roosevelt. And this means is a weak one. But, maybe he's trying to make himself heard, and add some weight to his weak influence.

Our Neighbors—

We were honored to learn that the Tuscaloosa News liked our paragraph last week regarding the "University Highway", and reprinted same with added comment. The T. News has and is displaying a keen interest in road work in counties surrounding its own, and only recently carried an editorial headed "Road Work In Bibb County". Of course you know that Bibb County adjoins Tuscaloosa County. This editorial may be found on the editorial page of this newspaper this week. "Mark Remarks", written by our publisher, Mark L. Tucker, on the same page, is calling the attention of the Tuscaloosa News to an interesting fact. Read it.

And while we're on the subject of roads will somebody please tell us just why the new State road map just turned out by the Highway Department shows no paved road connecting Clanton with Selma on its scenic drawing on the cover of this attractive folder-type map. And yet, a tourist looking at this map would gather that there is already practically a completed highway between Tuscaloosa and Montgomery.

Oh, well, maybe they're so dead sure there'll be one there some day it was decided to show it on the map.

We do have a paved highway connecting Clanton with Selma, haven't we? Maybe the map-makers didn't know it.

Just like the Birmingham News didn't know we raised strawberries down here at Clanton until our friend, L. E. Dieffenderfer, manager of the Clanton Berry Growers Association, called their attention to this fact in a letter appearing recently in "The Voice Of The People."

And where did Jack House, writing in Sunday's Birmingham News-Age-Herald, get his information that the new Chilton County High School was to be erected at a cost of $51,150? Evidently it has been taken for granted that Chilton County will have no say-so in what kind of High School building it will have. Prattville's recently completed building was erected at a cost of over $80,000.00. Are we to have a building that costs no more than the one we had, and on which we collected insurance in the amount of $40,000.00?

Worse Than War—

In our opinion an organization that would render a greater service to this country would be one dedicated to "Help curb the National highway slaughter" which is worse than war. Why doesn't some Congressman start a move to this end? We are inclined to get all excited about war but only a casual interest is being manifest in the great toll automobile accidents are taking in this country yearly. We came along just after a four-in-one accident occurred several miles north of Montgomery last Sunday afternoon. Can you imagine—four practically new cars collided practically simultaneously, with a damage that would probably reach twelve or fifteen hundred dollars—with bleeding people walking around. People rave about war and drive like demons. It's about time we gave some attention to the war on the highways and made efforts to reduce the casualties.

REVIVAL AT BAPTIST WILL BEGIN SUNDAY

DOTHAN PASTOR TO PREACH; GEORGIA SINGER TO DIRECT MUSIC

Climaxing a ten-weeks Church Loyalty and Soul-winning Campaign, the First Baptist Church of Clanton on next Sunday morning enters upon an eight days Revival, June 4-11. The pastor of the First Baptist Church, Dothan, Dr. Leroy R. Priest, will preach twice daily. Doctor Priest is one of the most active, successful and loveable pastors of the State, and one of its most able preachers. There is every assurance of good preaching throughout the services of the revival. Pastor Priest is an alumnus of Howard College, a graduate of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and the holder of an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Howard College.

Gospel Singer Charles Maples of Dublin, Georgia, will be in charge of all music and singing throughout the meeting. Mr. Maples is regarded by all who know him as one of the sanest, most capable and most spiritual men in his field of Christian work. A notably sweet singer, he is equally popular as a worker with children. With the excellent organization and training already effected by Mrs. Davis, the children of Junior ages should accomplish great things.

There will be two services daily, morning and evening, from Sunday to Sunday. The hours of worship are 10:30 A.M., and 7:30 P.M. All persons in Clanton and community are invited to attend these services.

DR. LAWRENCE OPENS CLINIC IN CLANTON

LOCATED IN OLD LEE SMITH HOME; DR. GOLDEN WILL OCCUPY VACATED QUARTERS

Dr. C. O. Lawrence, one of Clanton's most prominent physicians, announced this week that he has opened a clinic and moved his office into the old J. Lee Smith home, located on the highway just north of the Taylor Wholesale Grocery Company. Dr. Lawrence stated that this clinic would be open by the first of June, which is today.

The offices of Dr. Lawrence were formerly located in the Reid Mullins Building near the Postoffice. A steadily increasing practice and the need for larger quarters and adequate facilities for treating and caring for his patients properly, was given as the reason for the opening of this clinic by Dr. Lawrence. He emphasized the fact that this would not be a hospital, but would be known as the Lawrence Clinic where patients may be kept under observation for several hours while undergoing examination and treatment. The clinic will occupy the ground floor of the building only.

An office secretary has been added to the staff of this clinic, where all business will be transacted. Dr. Lawrence expressed the belief that he would be in better position to render service to his patients in this new location with enlarged quarters and working facilities.

Many of Chilton County's homes are unscreened and lack sanitary toilets and protected water supplys.

"Such a condition is highly favorable for the spread of typhoid fever," the Health Officer declared. "Until each rural home is equipped with a sanitary pit privy, screened doors and windows, and a well protected from surface pollution with a water tight casing and curb and a pump instead of

BEANS AND SQUASH

[illegible] Mullin tells in the Montgomery [illegible] that approximately 7,500 bushel [illegible] snap beans and squash have [illegible] shipped from Evergreen in the last 10 [illegible]

Some 200 Conecuh County farmers signed up to raise vegetables this year and planted over 2,000 acres. The vegetables included tomatoes, snap and pole beans, butterbeans, peas, corn and several other varieties.

The farmers established a market in Evergreen for the produce and trucks went there from many sections and not a single hamper of these vegetables has failed to be purchased.

Two ready conclusions can be drawn from this. The first is that farmers will produce other cash crops than cotton if they are assured of a ready market. The other is that a market can be had for the fresh vegetables if the farmers will cooperate and bring their produce to one distributing point and let the world know about it.

People in the cities do not get all the fresh vegetables they want. In fact they are difficult to get in rural towns except in the summer months. Alabama farmers can and must supply this demand for more vegetables —The Baldwin Times.

Gen. Hugh Johnson, the NIRA man of the early days of the New Deal, is going after President Roosevelt hammer and tongs in his daily syndicated article appearing in a great many anti-New Deal newspapers. Maybe it is because FDR found out before it was too late that Gen. Hugh's blue eagle had turned out to be a buzzard.

Elsewhere on this page is printed an article on "Road Work In Bibb County," by the Tuscaloosa News. This reminds us that the roughest piece of road between Clanton and Tuscaloosa is the four or five miles between Haglers and Duncanville in Tuscaloosa County. Bruce, why don't you talk to your County Commissioners about this?

* * * *

If all the fellows who are trying to "save" this country by talking and writing and arguing, would just pull off their coats and start doing some real worthwhile thing —we'd soon be going somewhere, and forgetting this imaginary dilemma we think we're in.

ROAD WORK IN BIBB COUNTY

Just at the present, Tuscaloosa is highly interested in the development of Bibb County roads. We are perhaps more interested in Bibb's roads than the roads of any other County in West Alabama, except our own, and this largely by reason of the agitation for the Tuscaloosa-Montgomery highway.

What Jim Oakley, writing in his newspaper, The Centreville Press, has to say, is thus of particular concern to us. Mr. Oakley says:

"Mr. Chris J. Sherlock, Jr., state highway director of Alabama, told members of the Dixon Committee of Bibb County that he expected to start negotiating with the commissioners and judge of probate of Bibb County within the next 15 days on all highway construction that will be attempted in this county for the next three and a half years.

"The state is making plans to construct, pave and put every road in Alabama in fine shape before the end of this administration, and in order to plan a system of roads that will be worth something to the state and the taxpayers, Mr. Sherlock is making plans now for the construction of these roads, so as to have plenty of time to devote in constructing permanent roads. All unpaved roads in Bibb County will probably be paved before the end of this administration, and the road of most importance to Bibb County at the present time is the Montgomery-Tuscaloosa Highway, which is the No. 1 road project for Alabama, and work is expected to start on this road as soon as proper negotiations can be completed with some of the counties.

"Mr. Sherlock left Monday night for Washington where he will spend s everal days in an effort to get the Montgomery Highway designated as a federal aid project, and if he is successful, it will greatly reduce the cost of construction of this road as far as state and county funds are concerned.

"Bibb County may rest assured that they will be given fair treatment, and receive their full share of road work during this administration."

This activity of Mr. Sherlock in behalf of a federal highway from here to Montgomery is especially intriguing. While we have looked at the project largely from an Alabama standpoint, there can be no doubt but that this highway would mean a great deal to South-wide traffic; that is, if and when the new Mississippi River bridge at Greenville is built. The Tuscaloosa-Montgomery Highway would tie in to Federal Highway No. 82, lengthen this artery, and add a great deal to its importance, serving as a direct link between Georgia and Arkansas. The claims of this road for federal recognition cannot be lightly dismissed.—Tuscaloosa News.

A PLAN WITH POSSIBILITIES

There is much to be said in favor of plans now being made by Selma retail merchants to sponsor tours over this area to acquaint citizens with attractions of their home section.

Under the program now being arranged, parties of Selmians will visit towns throughout the section to familiarize themselves with points of interest in order to permit of more effective measure for attracting tourist ravel.

Cooperation from each town is being sought so that tour parties will be able to secure the greatest possible amount of information concerning every stop and in this manner it is expected that neighboring towns will be induced to recognize the value of its own attractions and join in a sectional movement to draw attention to the nation.

A united effort of this kind could not fail to gain some beneficial results, as Central Alabama is rich in historical points of interest and still retains much of the gracious flavor of the Old South.

If these plans meet with ready response from other towns, Central Alabama will soon be presenting its best face to the nation. Then the economic possibilities of tourist travel will become exactly what our people care to make them.—Selma Times-Journal.

We are not going to have anything to say about John L. Lewis, labor leader, only that he should be driven out of the United States. The President tells miners to resume work, Gov. MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

A few years ago Henry Ford visited the Berry School near Rome, Georgia. Martha Berry, the founder of the school, asked Mr. Ford to give her one dime to promote the interests of the school. This asking suprised the great philanthropist, and without question he handed over his dime and went his way. Martha Berry took the dime and bought raw peanuts with it and planted them. A few years later Mr. Ford visited that school again and Martha Berry showed him a large bank account that she had been able to make by planting and harvesting the peanuts coming from that one dime. Mr. Ford was so impressed with her skill and ability that unsolicited he erected a building on the school grounds and later gave a whole group of buildings. When people make use of what they have, they can be trusted with more.

I keep a large waste basket sitting by my desk. When things come to me that I can not use and that will clutter up my desk, they are tossed into that basket. Everybody should have a mental waste basket. Almost every hour of the day, we have thoughts coming to us that are no good. They do nothing but clutter up the way of right living, and they should be tossed into the waste basket. Everybody should have a moral waste basket. We find ourselves in the possession of habits that do nothing but clutter up our way of living, and they should be tossed into the waste basket. Mental and moral junk should be kept from the desk of life if we wish to experience constructive living.

According to the scientific information gathered by the Reader's Digest, the people of America smoke one hundred and sixty-two billion cigarettes a year. That is nine times as many as was smoked in 1915 This information also states that there is enough nicotine in three cigarettes to kill a man. The reason that all smokers are not dead is because some of the nicotine is blown out, while some more is absorbed by the liver and kidneys. "This little white tube of poison is one of our greatest foes." One who smokes moves at the command of an invisible master. One who smokes is no longer his own master—a habit rules his life. Forty per cent of men and boys do not smoke and seventy-five per cent of our women saturate with this deadly poison. No wonder that heart disease is on the increase. I am not a prophet, but if our women keep up the habit of smoking and our men just continue as they are, in one hundred years from today, it will be almost impossible for an infant to have a normal birth.

When Sonja Henie, the world's most famous skater, was offered twenty-five hundred dollars by one of the manufacturers of a noted cigarette brand for the use of her photograph in their advertisements, she answered: "I do not smoke. I think that it is horrid of women to smoke. I do not want your money.' That is what I call "Turning them down cold." What about it young men? What about it young woman? Those who smoke are never their best. Managers of athletic groups know this to be true. Men famous in athletics, such as Connie Mack, Ty Cobb, Red Grange, and Mike Donovan, have said so. Of course you are authority on the question and regardless of other people's observations, smells and distastes, you will puff one. Well, I can't stop you but I am telling the truth.

Persons who have not learned much and who are not open to reason and logic, are always noisy. They do not think of themselves and they do not think of other people. They yell, talk, laugh loudly, tramp and talk around, creating all kinds of noise and discord. They remind me of an empty barrel. When you strike an empty barrel with a blow, the empty space in the barrel carries the sound waves back and fourth and there is much noise. When a person's mind and heart are filled with knowledge, politeness and culture they are like a full barrel, they are not noisy. Why not sit down to some sober, sensible thinking on the question of cigarettes and whiskey. These two items are the most needless and yet the most expensive and hurtful things in American life.

Baptists Determined To Wipe Out Howard College Debt

Birmingham, Ala., May 24—Baptists of Alabama have buckled down in earnest to the task of wiping out the last vestige of the $65,000 floating debt of Howard College, according to reports reaching Frank P. Samford, president of the Liberty National Life Insurance Company, and prominent Baptist layman here, who has accepted the chairmanship of the state campaign to raise this sum.

"Pastors of Baptist churches throughout the state have literally "put on the whole armor' in this drive," Mr. Samford stated today, "and church members are entering just as entusiastically into the work. At the recent sesion of the State Baptist Convention treasurer of the convention, Alabama was divided into 10 districts, with a chairman and two assistants in each district.

"Reports coming to me show a definite revival of interest in Howard among Alabama Baptists, a quickened realization of what Howard has meant in the furtherance of Christian education in the state, the South and the nation during its 97 years' existence. That the rich traditions of Howard will be carried on, Baptists have no doubt."

Not only Baptists, but other friends of the college in the state—teachers, business and professional men and women ,civic leaders—are cheerfully volunteering to do their bit in erasing this debt, according to Mr. Samford.

"The selection of Maj. Harwell G. Davis, collector of internal revenue, for the presidency of the college has met with universal approval in denominational ranks," said Mr. Samford, "and we are confident that, under his leadership, with the zealous support of Alabama Baptists, Howard is destined to stride forward and attain to new heights."

FARMERS AND CITY PEOPLE

—o—

Farmers now pay city people something ilke $1,500,000,000 annually for power and power machinery, whereas, before the World War, they sold power in the form of work animals worth several hundred million dollars annually.—Report of the Secretary of Agriculture, 1938.

—o-o-o—

It requires about 2.4 acres per person to supply us with all the domestically produced and consumed agricultural products. It is estimated that about 280 to 290 million acres are required to feed America. This varies little from prosperity to depression aside from changes due to population.

—o-o-o—

In 1937 farmers' production of 53 leading crops was 13 per cent above the 1923-32 average and 7 per cent greater than the previous record breaking year 1931. In 1938 it was five per cent above the 1923-32 average.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

BUT IT'S JUST AS GOOD

YOU have had the experience, haven't you, of going into some stores and asking for an advertised brand of goods, only to have the clerk hand you another brand and inform you, "But it's just as good."

Sometimes, to your regret, you bought the "just as good" item but sometimes you walked out of the store and searched until you found the merchandise you had asked for in the first place. When you got it you were satisfied.

Charles Roth

You had confidence in the advertised goods, because you read in the honest pronouncements of the advertiser what you might expect his product to do for you. This gave you assurance. You bought because you had confidence.

But when that clerk palmed off something different on you, you had misgivings, you had doubts, you had fears, you had lack of confidence.

Maybe they were justified. Maybe they were not. It doesn't matter. The fact remains that advertising had invested the advertiser's goods with a confidence which made your buying a pleasant in place of a fearful duty.

Usually, but not always, these "just as good" goods are not as good—they are inferior and the merchant sells them because they carry more profit for him. He does his level best to get rid of them, because it is more to his advantage to do so than it is to yours.

Many stores pay their salesman a commission for selling unknown and unadvertised goods, because the salesman would not sell them without some special inducement.

It is much better for you as a consumer to put your reliance absolutely in advertised goods and in stores which advertise, and to patronize both exclusively.

When a man advertises his goods and tells frankly and publicly what they will do for you, he seeks your patronage on the basis of actual value.

It may be that some manufacturers or merchants can offer just as good value in unknown or unadvertised goods. But the chances are ten to one that they can't—because advertising not only increases the distribution of goods, but at the same time increases the production, so that advertised goods cost less to make; hence, gives more to the buyer.

In the long run you get more for your money when you buy advertised goods. You get more in actual value. And also get more in that intangible value, known as confidence.

And confidence is one of the chief satisfactions of life.

Students Seeking Jobs Need Social Security Cards

—o—

the graduation season draws to e-high school and college students advised today to obtain social security account numbers before seeking employment. This advice was given by Mr. Martin C. Folmar, Manager of Social Security Board Field Office irmingham.

Many employers now insist that a worker show his or her social security number before taking a job," Mr. Folmar said.

is much easier to get a number before applying for work, whether temporary or permanent, full-time or part-time, than it is to have to go to our office later and get a card. Meanwhile, the job may be taken by someone else who already has a number. Numbers should be obtained even though there is no immediate certainty of work.

ny person who works in business, commerce or industry is covered by the Federal old-age insurance system, ex in a few specific cases. There is no age limit on the down side, so far as coverage is concerned. Workers who reach age 65 no longer are covered under old-age insurance, as the social security law now stands and deductions from their pay cease at that age."

Social Security account numbers may be obtained easily, quickly and without charge at Mr. Folmar's office at 618 Chamber of Commerce Building. The Birmingham office serves the following counties:

HARVESTING CRIMSON CLOVER SEED SEEN AS PROFITABLE

—o—

The amount of crimson clover seed harvested within the next few weeks will largely determine the acreage of this valuable winter legume which farmers of this section will plant next fall, according to Mr James H. Wood, Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service in the CCC camp area near Clanton.

One of the principal reasons for the failure of farmers to plant more legumes as cover crops in the past has been the cost of seed. To encourage development of a complete vegetative program, service technicians have sought to establish seed patches on every cooperating farm which would enable farmers to expand their acreage of various cover crops with a minimum outlay of cash.

With crimson clover seed patches now established on nearly every farm, several methods may be used for harvesting the seed. One of the most effective methods is to mow the clover with an ordinary mower and later throw the cured clover on a poultry wire screen stretched over a wagon bed and beat out the seed with a pitchfork.

Crimson clover seed are ripe enough to mow, Mr. Wood explained, when two-thirds to three-fourths of the seed heads wil lslip, that is, when the seed can be pulled easily from the seed stems. Fully ripe seed shatter easily when dry. Clover with seed inclined to shatter should be handled only in the late afternoon or early morning when the clover is damp with dew.

County Agent, Mr. J. W. Fant, or Soil Conservation Service workers will be glad to explain other methods of harvesting crimson clover seed. Regardless of method used, it is important at this season to harvest all available crimson clover seed in order to have a supply on hand for fall planting, Mr. Wood said.

Car Complete Failure, But Stork Is Perfect

CHICAGO.—Marion Fronczak's automobile was a 100 per cent failure, but the stork came through with an average of 300 per cent.

His wife got in the family car for a quick trip to the hospital, but the machine wouldn't start. She returned to her home and soon afterward gave birth to triplets, all girls.

PET ROOSTER HELPS IN GROCERY STORE

Owner Says He Ought to Be Partner in Business.

CHICAGO.—Pete Kallas runs a grocery at 1121 Berwyn avenue.

Pat is a White Leghorn rooster with a knowing eye, a red comb, and an ear-splitting crow.

Now Pete steps forward to affirm, on a stack of sardine cans, that Pat should be a partner in the business, along with the other Kallas brothers, Gus and John. And he tells this story to prove it:

"That rooster came in here three and a half years ago in a crate with five other Leghorns," Mr. Kallas explains. "We sold the five—took 'em out and chopped off their heads, right on that meat block over there.

"But every time we went to sell Pat he'd crow at us. We'd put off the sale from day to day. One customer insisted on that particular rooster. We finally had to tell her he wasn't for sale. We started to call him Pat. He seemed to like it.

"One day we let him out of the pen. He strutted around the store like he owned the place. Each time a customer came in he'd crow.

"Pretty soon he got to answering the telephone. Now, whenever it rings, he flies over to it and crows.

"On sunny days he walks down the street as if looking for customers.

"He's jealous of other chickens, too. When we have them in the store he flies at the netting on the pen."

A photographer who had heard about Pat went to the grocery to take his picture. He hinted to Mr. Kallas that he didn't think there was a rooster ever hatched that could do the things claimed for Pat.

"So?" said Kallas. "You just watch. Get your camera set up."

"O, Pat," he called. The rooster quit strutting around and hopped up on the counter. He cocked an inquiring eye at Pete.

"Pat," asked Kallas. "What happened to your brothers and sisters?"

The rooster, with a dejected squawk and with tail feathers drooping, flew over to the meat block. He rolled over on his back with his feet in the air, and lay motionless.

Steel Worker Retires, Turns to Crochet Work

CLEVELAND.—Pensioned steel worker Leonard Murton has laid aside the heavy iron bar with a hook on one end which he used when he was a heater in the steel mills and has turned to using another type of hook—a crochet needle.

Looking about for an occupation, the 71-year-old retired worker began to observe how his wife crocheted.

"I can do that," he said, and he started to learn.

"I think that it was easy for me to learn how to crochet because I used an iron hook so many years in the steel mills. It also came easy to me because my sister taught me how to knit when I was in school," Murton said.

He now is an expert crocheter and specializes in bedspreads of intricate designs.

Murton went to work in the steel mills as a water boy when he was 13. Gradually he advanced to the job of heater. A year before the mill in which he worked was discontinued he was awarded a gold medal for a half-century of continuous employment. The district in which he lives is called the "iron ward."

A Don Quixote Eagle Is Killed in the Rockies

DENVER.—The mighty eagle no longer rules the air above the Colorado Rockies.

One monarch of the crags went out to battle three fearsome-looking invaders yesterday and crashed to death against the wing of an army attack plane 50 miles northeast of Pueblo, Colo.

The three planes were doing about 275 miles an hour when the eagle tackled one piloted by Lieut. C. E. Putnam.

"He dove straight at me, like an attacking plane," Lieutenant Putnam said. "The impact tore a hole the size of a man's hat in the leading edge of the plane's right wing."

True Love Never Dies; Woman Faithful Till 102

NEW ORLEANS.—Marie Alice Lazende's sweetheart was killed in the Civil war and every year on his birthday for 78 years she lifted a glass of wine and said:

"Bientot, mon bon aime." (Soon, my well beloved.)

She was buried recently, having died at the age of 102. Miss Lazende told her sweetheart that if he did not return from the war, she would never marry. She never did.

Thorsby Institute News

Mr. Sam Bentley, a graduate of Thorsby Institute in the Class of 1937, who was during the past year a student in the College of Busines Administartion at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, was one of the six chosen for membership in the honorary society of Delta Sigma Phi.

The Senior Class of Thorsby Institute presented the play "The Little Clodhopper" at the Institute auditorium Friday night at 7:30 to a well-filled and appreciative house. The leading part was taken by Miss Frances Conway of Thorsby who is valedictorian of her class. The play was coached by Miss E. Laverna Jones, a Thorsby Institute teacher. Preceding the play the class night exercises were presented as follows:

History, Frances Conway; Prophecy, Anniece Polk; Poem, Sarah Nell Collins; Last Will and Testament, Nell Marcus, and Giftorian, Merle Martin.

Rev. F. P. Ensminger, D.D., of Birmingham, Superintendent of the Congregational Conference of this area, was the speaker at the Baccalaureate Service of Thorsby Institute on Sunday May 28. Rev. Oscar Davis, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Clanton, gave the Commencement address on Monday morning, May 29. Both gave very inspiring and helpful messages.

Miss Helen C. Jenkins, principal of Thorsby Institute, Inc., announces that the coveted Reader's Digest Award for scholastic achievement has been won by the valedictorian of the class of 1939, Miss Frances Conway, Route 1, Thorsby. She received an engrossed parchment certificate upon graduation.

The Reader's Digest confers this annual award as encouragement to young men and women throughout the nation who, by their scholastic achievement, give promise of growing into leadership in their communities. Principals of progress, preparatory and high schools increasingly advocate an interest among students in the most significant articles which appear in current magazines.

Their belief is that vital contact with the living, quickening thought of our day is essential to education, both before and after graduation. As one principal expresses this thought in a letter to The Reader's Digest, "Your award and your magazine appeal to me as a way to keep our best students in the mental vanguard through the difficult transition from school to society at large." Our own local educators are among the progressives of the nation who use this method of relating text material in magazines to current modern life. It is their broad-minded foresight which has made it possible for our students to compete for The Reader's Digest Award.

Besides the Reader's Digest Award which was given at the Commencement exercises on Commencement Day, a number of other prizes and awards were given. Scholarship pins were given to the two in the Junior Class and the two in the Sophomore Class having the highest record for the school year. These pins were presented to Doris Parker, Thorsby, Clara Harden, Talladega, Norman Petersen, Siluria and Norman Harris, Clanton. The $5.00 Perry English Award which is given by Mrs. Caroline Perry of Watertown, Massachusetts, was given to Doris Parker who has the highest average in English for the year. An undergraduate scholarship covering one semester's tuition at Thorsby Institute, which is given by Miss Marion Butler of Rockville, Connecticut, also went to Doris Parker, who had the highest average for the year.

Doris Parker, Fred Blankenship and Norman Harris each received $2.00 for the highest averages in mathematics, all three having the same average. A two-year's subscription to the Christian Herald, the equivalent of $2.50 went to Doris Parker who has the highest average in Bible for the year. A prize of $2.50 was given to the student in Biology having the highest average for the year. This went to Norman Petersen. The James B. Rollins History Prize of $2.50 which was given by Mr. Rollins, Cashier of the Bank of Thorsby, was awarded to Norman Petersen who had the highest average in this subject. Mr. Rollins plans to give this prize as long as he stays in Thorsby. Each year Piedmont College, Demorest, Georgia, gives scholarships to the two in the senior class having the highest average for the last three years. These scholarships went to Frances Conway and Mae Anniece Polk. Sarah Nell Collins and Ouida Wright were named as alternates. The Helen Drummond Sewall Fund was awarded to Inez Duke. This fund of $1,000 is a memorial fund, the interest of which goes to help some worthy girl attend Thorsby Institute. The recipient is to be a boarding pupil. She is expected to do high grade work, to be cooperative, and willing to obey the rules of the school. For the best kept room at the Campus Cottage $1.00 was given to Inez and Ruth Duke, and for the best kept room at the Dining Hall $1.00 was divided between Clara and Doris Harden and Louise Morgan and Jeanette Plant. $1.00 was given to Augusta Williams as the most willing worker among the town girls and $1.00 was given to Maurice Higgins as the most willing worker among the town boys. Those receiving perfect attendance prizes of $1.00 for the year were: William Callen, Welling Collins, Frances Conway, Maurice Higgins, Kathleen Honeycutt, Jeanette Plant, Bessie June Roy and Woodrow Wilson. $2.00 was given Leonard Bosworth, who has been neither absent nor tardy during his High School course.

The Senior Class presented the following gifts to the school on Commencement Day: a new flag, a dictionary, an electric clock for the library and two scholarships covering tuition for one semester, which are to go to Augusta Williams and Howard Minor.

The Thorsby Institute library will be open on Thursday of this week from 8 to 11 in the morning and 2 to 4 in the afternoon. Next week the library will be open on Tuesday, June 6, from 8 to 11 in the morning and 2 to 5 in the afternoon. After next week it will be open on Tuesdays and Fridays from 8 to 11 in the mornings and 2 to 5 in the afternoons.

Beautiful Words

The words which Sir Walter Scott puts in the mouth of Jeannie Deans in her memorable address to the queen, are true as they are beautiful: "When the hour of trouble comes, and seldom may it visit your leddyship—and when the hour of death comes, that comes to high and low—lang and late may it be yours O my leddy!—It is not what we have done for ourselves, but what we have done for ithers, that we think on most pleasantly."

'Watering the Ropes'

In 1589 in Rome, during the erection of the obelisk in St. Peter's square, a sailor named Bresca shouted to the workmen to "water the ropes" and thus saved the giant shaft from crashing to the ground. Although he had disobeyed the order of Pope Sixtus V for complete silence during the ceremony, Bresca was rewarded with the perpetual right to supply palms to St. Peter's on Palm Sunday. And his posterity carries on the custom, says Collier's Weekly.

NEED FOR FACILITIES TO TREAT TUBERCULOSIS SEEN

Montgomery—The need for increased facilities for the treatment of indigent tuberculosis patients in various parts of the State was emphasized today by Dr. D. G. Gill, Director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases of the State Department of Health, following receipt of a letter from a tuberculosis expert telling of six cases of tuberculosis in a single Alabama family. Dr. Gill did not reveal the identity of this physician or of the tuberculosis patients described in the letter.

He pointed out that the mother of the family called to his attention died of tuberculosis, the father had a healed tuberculosis lesion, a son was diagnosed as tubercular early in March and became much worse before being admitted to a sanatorium, with small prospect of recovery as a result, a second son is now receiving pneumothorax treatment in a county sanatorium following a positive diagnosis a few weeks ago, and two married daughters have been found to have tuberculosis and to be very much in need of sanatorium treatment, including some form of surgery.

"Four younger children were examined and were found to be nontuberculous," he said. "If they are shielded from further exposure to the disease, there is no reason why they should ever develop it. However, unless sanatorium treatment is provided for their older sisters, they are almost certain to develop it and thus continue the chain of infection. Furthermore, these married sisters also have three children of their own, who likewise are almost certain to develop tuberculosis unless their mothers are removed from constant association with them."

FACTS FAVOR FORD

1 The 1939 Ford V-8 is a beautiful, modern motor car. Its 85-horsepower engine gives you economical, well-balanced performance over the entire speed range — and the 60-horsepower engine is even more economical.

2 The structural strength of the Ford car — frame, bracing, axles, body — makes not only for safety, but durability and long life.

3 Ford hydraulic brakes are exceptionally large and strong in proportion to car weight.

4 The Ford car is stabilized for comfortable riding. Its springbase, the distance between front and rear suspension, is 123 inches. Seats are toward the center, perfectly balanced. The car does not bob or dip and can have very little sway.

These four points — power, strength, safety, comfort — are by far the most important essentials in any motor car. They form the basic value of your investment.

With this solid foundation to build on, the Ford V-8 has been made beautiful, spacious, easy to drive. It is richly upholstered and has all the modern features which add to the luxury and pleasure of motoring.

You can see these things when you take a trial drive, but do not forget that the main value is in the things you do not readily see — quality of materials, precision of manufacture, fundamental engineering.

INVITED TO MEET ROYALTY

MRS. PETE JARMAN

Congressman And Mrs. Pete Jarman Among Those Invited To Meet King And Queen

Congressman and Mrs. Pete Jarman of this District are among the limited number of dignataries to receive invitations to attend the Garden Party being given by the British Embassy in Washington for the King and Queen of the British Empire.

Due to the fact that Congressman Jarman is a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, and also Chairman o the Committee on Printing, he and Mrs. Jarman will be privileged to meet the King and Queen when they visit this country in the near future. Following is a clipping from the Washington Star regarding the matter:

Lady Lindsay, wife of the British Ambassador, revealed at a press conference today that she is taking personal responsibility for the 1,300 invitations sent out for the garden party at the Embassy for the King and Queen the afternoon of June 8, and the 13,000 who wanted invitations but couldn't get them must blame her and not the British government.

The guest list was closed some days ago and will not be reopened or expanded, Lady Lindsay emphasized.

PETE B. JARMAN

Of the 1,300 invited, 900 live in Washington and 400 are from cities scattered over the country.

In making up the list, the Ambassador's wife said she had made every effort to include leading citizens of the United States. The list was not entirely made up from the Social Register, she said, although she did use the Register of the leading cities of the country to refresh her memory of prominent persons she and the Ambassador have met. Only those whom the Ambassador and Lady Lindsay have met are included on the list.

Among the 900 Washington guests will be the heads of missions, the counselors of all embassies and legations and their wives, the Vice President and Mrs. Garner, the members of the cabinet circle, the members of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House, the Chairmen of all, standing committees of both Senate and House and other American officials.

The entire staffs of the British, Canadian and South African missions have been invited. Special arrangements have been made for the British subjects living in and near Washington, including the British ex-servicemen, to meet the King and Queen at the Embassy at 10 A.M. June 9, the second day of their majesties' stay in the city.

There will be 34 or 36 guests at the dinner the King and Queen will give at the embassy June 9 for the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Plans have not been completed for this function and invitations have not been sent out. The party will be strictly official, Lady Lindsay stated. As the King and Queen will be the hosts at the fete, the President will be seated on the right of the Queen and Mrs. Roosevelt will be on the right of the King.

The question of curtsying still is left up in the air, with Lady Lindsay stating that the British subjects of course would curtsy to their King and Queen and that Americans should do as they wish.

Lady Lindsay said she thought Americans would find the King and Queen a lady and a gentleman with simple and human desire. They will be guests of the United States Government during their stay and as their plans have been made by their hosts, they have not expressed their desires as to what they would like to see in this country.

Ambassador Lindsay will go to Canada to accompany Their Majesties to the Capital. Lady Lindsay will remain here and meet them upon their arrival at the Union Station.

"THANKFULNESS"

By James L. Miles

Dear God, we give our thanks to You,
For blessing us the way You do.
For leading us from day to day,
And showing us the narrow way.

For giving us a happy life,
For banishing our sins and strife;
For teaching us to do Your will,
And showing us, You love us still.

For Jesus Christ, we thank You too;
For coming, representing You.
For dying there upon the cross,
That sinners here would not be lost.

For promising a dwelling place,
Where we can gaze upon Your face;
Where all our loved ones, we shall see,
And peace reigns through eternity.

Buyer Reveals Increasing Availability of Alabama Made Products

GEORGE H. COLE

George H. Cole, Purchasing Agent of Alabama Power Co., and recently elected president of the Purchasing Agents Association of Birmingham, is enthusiastic about the increasing number of products of good quality manufactured in Alabama.

While reviewing Alabama Power Company purchases recently, Mr. Cole noted a number of items now available from Alabama manufacturers, which until relatively few years ago, were not made in Alabama. Among these items are automobile tires, cardboard and steel containers, kraft paper products, truck bodies and trailers, brass fittings, file folders, galvanized structural steel, galvanized bolts, valves, asbestos and steel roofings, switching and fusing equipment, writing ink. Mr. Cole explained that there are doubtless others used by other Alabama industries, which, like the Power Company, give preference to Alabama-made products, price and quality being equal.

Mr. Cole stated that he believed that this advanee of industrial diversification and growth in Alabama is an encouraging factor, and evidence that Alabama-made products can find a market.

"LITTLE BROWN JUG"

By J. W. Raybourn, The National Voice

My wife and I live all alone,
In a five-room house we'd love to own.
We've toiled and slaved, and tried to save,
But we can't stem the whiskey wave.
Ha, ha, ha, can't you see
The "Nashun's" soaked with Boozeree
It's "Nashuns" wide, can't be dried,
For the flood gates are all open wide,
And since our "Nashun's" in the bizz,
We must expect the booze to fizz.
Ha, ha, ha, can't you see,
Why we hate the boozeree.
With millions injured, thousands dead,
And the "Nashun's" billions in the red
And still the booze ring loves to see
Our "Nashun" steeped in boozeree.
Ha, ha, ha, can't you see
Why Christians hate the boozeree.
The jug that's filled with boozeree,
Does not appeal to wife and me;
The small brown jug that's filled with rum,
Is just what makes the whiskey bum.
Ha, ha, ha, can't you see,
Why we hate the boozree.
The cash that's spent for boozree
Would pay our "Nashun's" debt, you see,
And prohibition's on the way, and when it comes, 'twil come to stay.
Ha, ha, ha, then we'll be free
From the curse of boozeree,
The flood that's hit our "Nashun" wide
Will then from east to west be dried.
We'll thank our Heavenly Father true,
And praise Him day and night—won't you?
Ha, ha, ha, we'll shout with glee,
When we've killed "old Boozeree."

THANK YOU

THE splendid cooperation of Alabama's ABC Board, county and city officials, and the Alabama press has made it possible for the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee to move steadily ahead with its work of "cleaning up or closing up" the small minority of flagrant law violators among the state's 1,600 retail beer outlets.

For this cooperation, Alabama's beer industry is grateful as it drives ahead with its self-regulation program to place the sale of beer on a clean, wholesome basis. Since launching our program March 16 the ABC Board, on cases initiated by the industry itself, has revoked 11 licenses and suspended 5 others.

As the Huntsville Times said: "The word is already around that the ABC Board and Beer Distributors Committee will stand no 'monkey business' and that the only way to stay in business is to observe to the letter their rules and regulations."

Improvement Seen In Beer Outlet

DAVID E. DUNN

Montgomery, Ala., May 31.—David E. Dunn, Director of the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee, said today that the conduct of retail beer outlets in the state showed a "marked improvement" as the result of the intensive enforcement drive by the ABC Board and the beer industry itself.

Latest action came as the Board revoked the licenses of the Vendome Eat Shop, Ensley; Moon River Inn and Lewis Irving's Place, Nanafalia; and Florence Dearmon's Place at Yarbo, bringing the enforcement record of May to 20 revocations and 17 suspensions ranging from 30 to 60 days.

"The conduct of Alabama's 1,600 retail beer outlets shows a marked improvement today over two months ago," Mr. Dunn said. "This improvement, re flecting the hard-hitting work of the Alabama ABC Board and the supplemental work of our own self-regulation program, is gratifying to the industry.

"We are convinced that this improvement will continue, for the Board and the industry are sincere in their determination that flagrant law violators must go, and that there is room in Alabama only for the clean, wholesome places where sales are made in an orderly manner."

The work of the Alabama Committee matches the campaigns of self-regulation in Nebraska, Kansas, Tennessee and Maine as the beer industry, through the United Brewers Industrial Foundation, moves ahead with a program to "clean-up or close-up" the bad spots in the nation's beer business.

THE FARM PROGRAM

Any farm program which does not have for a major objective the restoration and maintenance of our soil resources will not make the necessary contribution to the National welfare.—Claude R. Wickard, Director, North Central Region, AAA.

Cotton Penalty Upped 3 Cents

Auburn, Ala.—Cotton sold from this year's crop in excess of a producer's cotton marketing quota will be subject to a penalty of 3 cents per pound, to be collected by the buyer at the time of the sale, according to A. W. Jones, State administrative officer of the AAA.

The penalty on excess marketings of carry-over cotton will be 2 cents per pound, he states.

All excess marketings last year were subject to a penalty of 2 cents per pound. Provision for the change in the penalty rate is included in the act under which the farm program operates. The penalty for excess marketings does not apply to cotton carried over from a previous season which would not have been subject to penalty if it had been marketed during the previous marketing year.

Producers who have no carry-over penalty cotton and who plant within their 1939 cotton acreage allotments will receive white marketing cards and maf sell all of their cotton in 1939 without penalty. Those overplanting their allotments will receive red cards indicating that marketings in excess of their quotas will be subject to penalty. Producers have carry-over penalty cotton on hand will receive both red and blue cards. The blue card will represent the amount of carry-over cotton subject to the 2-cent penalty

If the producers on a farm actually produce less than the farm marketing quota they may sell carry-over penalty cotton, together with the 1939 crop, up to the amount of the 1939 quota without penalty; but any carry-over penalty cotton sold in excess of the quota will be subject to the 2-cent penalty.

IN MEMORIAM OF A. F. WALLACE

Our father is gone to his home above;
 Away from this earth, and the ones he loved.
We look for him, but we look in vain;
 For we will never see him, on this earth again.
We know he is safe on the other side;
 Beyond the dark waters, and the rolling tide,
But our sorrows it seems, is more than we can bear;
 But we know that heaven is richer, by him being there.
So let us so live that safe we will be;
 When we cross the dark stream, his face we can see.
So pray for us dear friends, with all your might;
 That we may live as he lived; which was always right.

—An only daughter, Ethel Wallace.

LONE GIRL VISITS IN HEAD-HUNTERS' VILLAGE 8 DAYS

Office Secretary Suffers Hardships in Jungle of Ecuador.

CLEVELAND.—A sojourn—interesting, if not pleasant—in a head-hunters' village is one of the adventures Bernice Goetz experienced in her recent trek through Ecuadoran jungles.

The dauntless, attractive, 28-year-old woman is employed in a Cleveland insurance office for 10 months of the year. The other two she spends on one-woman expeditions to uncivilized parts of the world.

"On my Ecuador trip I was deserted twice by my porters—once on the way back from the head-hunters' village, but I set out on foot alone through the jungle. At last I reached a village where I obtained a horse for the journey to Quito," Miss Goetz said.

Miss Goetz's travelogue is one replete with adventure. She said that she took a boat from New York to Guayaquil, Ecuador, and then went by rail to Quito, the "last outpost" of Ecuadoran civilization.

At Quito, a small town in the Andes with an altitude of 9,000 feet, she hired as guide Luis, who was half Spanish and half Jivaro and with whom she could speak Spanish. She and Luis rode horseback three days up into the mountains to the Paramos.

Feared by Natives.

"The Paramos is a weird place. It is a bitter cold area of coarse grass and constant winds," Miss Goetz said. "The natives fear it, as so many have died there. We saw their bones along the way.

"We finally reached Tena, a jungle village. Here we sent back our horses and pack mule with the arriero, who was a sort of porter who followed us on foot."

She said that at Tena Luis hired three porters and the party went on foot along the Napo river, a tributary of the Amazon.

"Everything was fine," Miss Goetz said, "until we came to where natives were panning gold. The lure of sudden riches was too much for our porters and they deserted us. Luis went out each day to find others, but none of them could be persuaded to leave his gold panning.

"I made a lean-to of palms and waited for someone to come along or the natives to become tired of searching for gold. On the fourth day of my residence in the improvised shelter I heard a shout and popped out of the hut to see a heavily bearded Englishman with two canoes and three Indians.

English Explorer Helps.

"He wanted to know what I was doing stranded in the jungle and when I explained my plight he took Luis and me into his canoes down as far as the Rio Anzu. From here he went on to the Rio Tigre and turned inland toward Arapicos, the Jivero city."

The woman explorer said that the Jiveros are the head hunters.

"The young men with their golden bronze skin were very handsome.

"The women were unkempt. They peered out at us through their long hair pulled over their faces.

"I stayed a night in each of eight different houses. With my supply of medicines I was able to help some of the women suffering from insect bites. This raised me in their estimation somewhat, but they never were friendly."

On the last night there was a drunken party in the house where Miss Goetz was staying, so she and her party left the head-hunter city the next day. She added that they could see it was time to leave because "the people were getting too familiar and looked threatening."

Breath Bad, Logy? You May Need This

Just as the lighthouse flashes a friendly warning to sailors, so Nature sends out headaches, bad breath, biliousness, which often warn of constipation.

Too many misunderstand or neglect those symptoms and thereby may invite a host of constipation's other discomforts: sour stomach, belching, loss of appetite or energy.

Be wise. Take spicy, all vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT tonight by simple directions and clear your bowels gently, promptly, thoroughly. This intestinal tonic-laxative helps give tone to lazy bowels.

Its long life and popularity testify to BLACK-DRAUGHT'S merit.

IN MEMORY

LOYD F. WARD, APRIL 26, 1939

No one knows how much we miss you,
 No one knows the bitter pain,
We have suffered since we lost you,
 Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
 Sweetly, tender, fond and true
There is not a day dear daddy
 That we do not think of you
More and more each day we miss you
 Friends may think the wound is healed,
 But they little know the sorrow
 Lies within our heart concealed.

Is yours a neighborhood of "puddle jumpers?"

If your sidewalks look like this, it's time to modernize with concrete walks.

Concrete walks drain quickly and are free from puddles of standing water.

They're safe and sure under foot, wet or dry.

They improve the appearance of the neighborhood and increase property values.

the traditional rope and bucket, it will be necessary for rural folk to take typhoid vaccine every two to three years," Dr. Sturkie said. "Even city folk on their annual vacations are often exposed to the danger of infection with the typhoid bacillus," he pointed out.

All persons living in the County should either consult their family physicians or the local Health Department, according to the Health officer's advice

Typhoid vaccinations are given regularly on Saturday morning at the County Health office. The Health officer does not plan to hold county-wide clinics this year as this was done in 1938 He will, however, be glad to visit those communities where there are enough people who want the typhoid vaccination to justify his visit. Clinics are being planned for several communities not visited by representatives of the Department last year. Dates for these clinics will be announced later.

MADDOX WRITES ABOUT COUNTY SCHOOL SYSTEM

SUPERINTENDENT STATES FACTS REGARDING CONDITION OF SCHOOL PROPERTY

"To the Citizens of Chilton County:

"May I say a few words about Chilton County Schools? I find that according to the report of the State Superintendent of Education for 1938 the value of school buildings and equipment per child in Chilton County is the lowest of all the counties in the state. For Chilton County the value is $53.00 per child. The average for the state is $105.00. Autauga County's buildings are valued at $131.00 per child; Elmore's at $111.00; Shelby's at $103.00. These three neighboring counties have twice as good buildings and equipment for their children as we have.

"Washington County, which is the poorest county in the state judged by its purchasing power per person, has buildings valued at $138.00 per child. The per capita purchasing power of Chilton County is $101.01 as compared with Washington County's $59.26. And yet Washington County's school buildings are worth $138.00 to Chilton's $53.00. One explaination of this condition is that these other counties all have the one-mill county school tax and have been able to benefit by government grants for constructing, re-

Well Baby Clinics Organized By Health Department

Well Baby Clinics have become a part of the service being rendered by the local Health Department, according to an announcement this week by the County Health Officer, Dr. S. D. Sturkie. With the approval of the Medical Society, two clinics are now being conducted monthly by the Department, one in the Clanton office and the other in the Maplesville branch office. Only babies delivered by midwives are eligible for admission to the clinics. Parents who are able to pay are referred to their family physicians for routine care of the well infant.

"The function of a Well Baby Clinic is probably not well understood by the general public," Dr. Sturkie asserted. "It is the aim of this program to provide medical supervision for well infants and thereby prevent many of the mistakes made by parents which result in sickness and oftentimes the death of the infant. Feeding of the infant is carefully supervised and if a formula is needed this is carefully prescribed by the Health Officer and the Health Nurse in a home visit instructs the mother in the preparation of the formula. Specific instructions are given at what age to begin feeding cereals, vegetables, meats, codliver oil, orange juice, etc. Each infant on admission to the clinic is given a careful physical examination. The infant is weighed and measured at each clinic visit and adjustments in the feeding are made if necessary."

"The program is limited to infants under one year of age. It is hoped that the holding of these clinics will serve to educate the public as to the value of such a program for all well infants and that those parents who are able to pay the family physician will begin to consult him in the care of the well infant."

Street Work Nears Completion

Engineers in charge of the street paving project announced this week that work on the project is rapidly nearing completion, and will probably be completed before the week is out.

Thirty-six car loads of Coalmix, last application of the hard-surfacing, were used to complete the job, it was learned. The last of this surfacing was put down the early part of this week. The continuous rains have held the work up considerably during the past few weeks.

Work of arranging the water drainage sewers on the streets is being completed. Hard surface was applied on a thirty-foot thoroughfare except where property owners paid extra for surfacing from curb to curb.

Group Of Chilton Fruit Growers Visit In Georgia

A group of fruit growers of this County, numbering ten or twelve of the leading producers, mostly of peaches, left Clanton early Wednesday morning of this week for Ft. Valley, Georgia, in Peach County, specifically for the purpose of viewing the handling of peaches in that section, which is one of the biggest peach growing sections of Georgia.

The party was led by Roy M. Roper, President of the Clanton Berry Growers Association, and L. E. Diefenderfer, manager of the Association. This Organization will handle the peach crop in this county this season, and have recently installed necessary machinery for grading and preparing the fruit. Being comparatively new in the peach growing and shipping business, the growers expected to get some pointers about the proper handling, shipping, etc., of peaches for the markets.

Lay Dam Road Bridge Nears Completion

Approximately two more weeks will be necessary to complete the bridge which spans the creek on the Lay Dam Road within the city limits, according to engineers on the project.

The bridge, which will cost over $11,000.00, will have a roadway span of twenty-four feet, with walks on each side of four feet each. The general construction of the bridge is similar to the one north of the city on Highway 31, however, it is not as wide.

This bridge is supported by 41 piles, each with a 22-ton bearing. They are driven 28 feet into the ground,. When completed it will have a bearing of 11,000 tons, meaning that it will ably support that much weight. It is 133 feet in length.

At present all the roadway has been poured, and about one-third of the side walls have been completed. Meanwhile, work on the new road leading toward Lay Dam, and on which this bridge is located, is going forward as rapidly as weather conditions will permit. Several months will be required to complete this work.

Clanton-Maplesville Defeats Tallassee

Tallassee, last year's state champions, fell Sunday afternoon before the Clanton-Maplesville nine at Maplesville. The local team triumphed decisively over their old rivals by a score of 11 to 7.

The entire team went on a hititing rampage but particularly outstanding was the hitting of Armstrong with three hits to his credit and Williamson, Alex Hayes, Monroe Hayes and Tiffin who hit safely twice each.

A large part of the credit for the victory may go to Williamson whose fine defensive play in center field and his hitting were responsible in no small part for the resulting score.

Easterling started on the mound for Clanton but was relieved in the second by Golson who went the remainder of the route.

A team composed of all stars from Thorsby, Prattville, Alabama Mills, and Independence will meet the local team at Maplesville Sunday afternoon at three P.M.

Buck Creek will entertain the local team a week from today at Siluria.

PROGRAM OF CANNING IS PLAN OF COUNTY FSA

77,400 JARS IS GOAL OF ORGANIZATION FOR 1939 SEASON SAYS SUPERVISOR DURBIN

With the canning season approaching, the lowly fruit jar is assuming a place of added importance for the 308 low-income families of Chilton County being assisted toward self-support and security by the Farm Security Administration.

These families, according to FSA supervisor Marvin Durbin, plan to buy 1034 quart jars this year. Along with those filled last year and available for refilling, this will mean a total of 77,400 for the 1939 canning season, or an average of 250 per family.

The jars and pressure cookers used in canning are purchased by the FSA families from merchants serving their communities and stores are finding their business boosted accordingly. The amount spent by these families in this county since the program was started is approximately $2,090.00, said Supervisor Durbin.

Production of necessary food is stressed by the Farm Security Administration in making loans to needy farm families and providing supervision to enable them to make the most of the money. Preservation of surplus fruits, vegetables and meats is emphasized so a healthful, wholesome diet may be provided during the months when gardens, orchards and fields are not producing fresh foodstuffs. A more varied diet is also made possible, as shown by the fact that these families preserved a total of 28 different kinds of fruits, vegetables and meats last year.

Canning of meats is becoming an increasingly prominent part of the food preservation activities, said Supervisor Durbin, who pointed out that conservative estimates by authorities indicate a calf that would bring about $15 if sold would represent about $40 worth of food, figured at farm prices, if canned and consumed at home. In addition he said, canning of beef, made possible by pressure cookers used in other canning, means toothsome food instantly available for unexpected guests or other special occasions, a greater variety in meals by supplementing pork products more generally consumed, and makes for better health.

INTEREST SEEN IN REVIVAL AT BAPTIST CHURCH

DR. LEROY R. PRIEST BRINGING TWO MESSAGES DAILY WITH SPLENDID SONG SERVICE

The revival now in progress at the First Baptist Church here is being well attended from the beginning, with a wide, deep, genuine spiritual interest increasingly manifest. There are two services held daily at 10:30 A.M., and at 7:30 P.M.

DR. PRIEST

Dr. Leroy R. Priest, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dothan, is bringing messages of increasing power and spiritual blessing and appeal at each service. Every Baptist within range of Clanton's First Baptist Church should hear Dr. Priest, and every other person of whatever church membership, together with those of no church connections at all are cordially invited to attend these services.

Gospel Singer Charles Maples of Georgia is directing the musical side of the meeting in a great and winsome way. Mr. Maples is himself a native of the State of New Mexico, has held a pastorate in Missouri, holds the Bachelor of Music degree from the University of Chicago and has attended Mercer University in Georgia. This church repeates its welcome and sincere invitation to all the residents of Clanton and surrounding territory to attend the services of this revival now being held.

County Will Vote On School Tax

Next Tuesday, June 13, the qualified voters of the County will vote on the three-mill District "A" and District "B" school tax. This tax is up for renewal for another twenty years, having been in effect for the past twenty. Another county-wide three-mill tax was voted in again some time ago.

Also coming before the voters is a county-wide one-mill tax, which school authorities say is very necessary at this time for the operation of the school system in this County. This tax will net ten cents on every one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in the county, and over half of which will be paid by the county's two largest taxpayers—the Alabama Power Co., and the L.&N. Railroad.

"There is infinite need for less haste and more consideration in legislating. . . . A mistake made by Federal law is a national mistake and its results are likely to be far more costly to all our people than a mistake by State law or Local law. We cannot be successful and prosperous where we have legislation by trading, and with an utter lack of statesmanship; where we have class legislation for the benefit of minorities and not for the benefit of a unified country; where we have legislation that is disciplinary and not educational, legislation founded on policies that are expressive rather than corrective."—Henry W. Johnson.

BILLIONS FOR HUMAN FOLLY

Not one-tenth of one per cent of the persons in the world really want war. To all except a few egomaniacs or atavistic males, war is abhorrent. "I hate war," President Roosevelt said one time. The world echoes that brief phrase. In those three monosyllables is the heart of man.

But because of this thing the world hates, it is spending today a billion dollars a month. That much, according to estimates from Geneva, the world is spending for military purposes. For war or under a plea of defense against war, the nations are spending $33,000,000 daily, or $1,350,000 hourly, or $22,500 every minute, or $375 every time the clock ticks.

A billion dollars a month for war or threat of war while men starve.

A billion dollars a month—while men shiver in hovels or sleep homeless upon the ground.

A billion dollars a month—while men go in rags and walk barefooted because they cannot buy shoes.

A billion dollars a month—while men suffer in pain from disease they cannot afford to fight.

A billion dollars a month—while immorality saps the youth of the world who cannot afford to wed.

A billion dollars a month—while children are denied full educational opportunities and teachers are meagerly paid.

A billion dollars a month—while philanthropy is dried up and chairty goes begging for itself.

A billion dollars a month—while men struggle under taxes and lose heart.

A billion dollars a month—while men under economic pressure exchange their ancient freedom for uncertain security.

A billion dollars a month to preserve peace while men know no peace.

A billion dollars a month by which to slay his fellow-man—that is the record of this creature called heaven's masterpiece, the paragon of animals, the measurer of all things, a little lower than the angels and made in God's own image.

In the face of those figures, one can do no better than recall Mark Twain's observation that man is the only animal that blushes—or needs to.—Birmingham News.

BETTER EDUCATION

The little red school house is fast disappearing from the American educational system and its place is being taken by the consolidated rural schools throughout the country. Teachers no longer are attempting to teach a half dozen grades in a single room, as was done in the scattered little school.

This improvement in the American educational system was made possible by the building of good roads and the development of motor vehicles. especially motor buses. More than 80,000 school buses now are in use in the Unite States. They transport 3,000,000 children to and from 34,000 schools at an average cost of less than 50c per week per child. The routes of these American school buses embrace more than 1,000,000 miles of road.—Houston Herald.

"NOW IS THE TIME"

This from "This Morning," John Temple Graves, II, in Birmingham Age-Herald:

> Since the South's party is in power at Washington, Mr. R. R. Jones, of Summerville, Ga., wonders why we must remain handicapped in so many matters. "If our Southern senators and congressmen ever expect to do anything," he writes us, "now is the time. Why do they allow the tax on margarine? Why do they allow the jute to come in practically free to compete with cotton? Why do they allow unjust freight rates against the South? They are in power, or supposed to be. Can it be that a Republican minority can out-think a Democratic majority? Why don't they do something for the South while they have the opportunity?" For one thing, Mr. Jones, the Democratic party is so much bigger than the Southern part of it now that the South can accomplish things for itself only in bargain and coalition with groups from other parts. For another thing, our own Southerners in Congress and elsewhere are so divided on the New Deal that they are unable to get together on many Southern matters which have nothing to do with the New Deal.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

A group of three little girls met another group on the sidewalk as they were on their way to church. "Where are you going?" inquired one girl of the other group. "We are going to the church over there," said she as she pointed her finger to an unpainted building across the street. "Come and go to our church," urged the other girls. "That one over there is not much of a church." Here is the reply that was given and it had in it much of my idea of a church: "I guess it does not mater what church you attend just so they tell you about God." A church does not have to be fine and it does not have to make a big show to be a real church. Just so they tell a fellow about God and about Jesus, that is what makes a church. If the church building is unpainted and the pews are uncomfortable, yet if the worshipers there hear about God, that is a church.

While crossing the desert in Northwest Texas I sat at the train window looking out over the vast stretches of sand and nothing. In the far distance I saw trees and green that made a line across the sand. I wondered what it meant and waited and watched to find it out. Soon the train came to the green and in a few moments more we were crossing a stream. The trees grew up and down the water course. We can all understand why that is true. Do you claim that the church does not matter? Hear me, the church is the stream of the Christ that flows down through this parched, blistering world, and when men and women join the church they root themselves in the soil of life giving powers are felt. I do not claim that church membership will save a man, but I do claim that it pays to set himself out close beside the stream of salvation. The best thing that any man ever joined was the Church of God.

Many years ago James Hoover and his bride went into the Mission field of Pernec. Savages lived all about them and on their first night at the Mission station they gathered about the house to do them harm. Mrs. Hoover quietly went to the organ and sat down and began to sing the old hymns of the church. How strange and sweet they sounded to those savage men in that heathen land and a strange thing happened. The men went to sleep under the power of that music and soon dropped like logs to the ground. For ten nights following these men returned to do them harm, but each night the music charmed them and soon they were won to a friendly attitude. Any one who can carry an inner calmness of soul can master. Think of Jesus on a ship in Galilee: "And behold there arose a great tempest in the sea insomuch that the ship was covered with the waves, but He was asleep." The calm soul will be able to still the waters of life.

Cut it out. The mayor says we have gotta to stop this noise or we will all go crazy." Carrol says: 'Those who keep the peace of their inner selves in the midst of the tumult of a modern city are immune from organic and nervous disorders. Men break physically and emotionally under nervous tension and nervous agitation.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

JUST WHAT IS GOOD WILL?

A FEW months ago, according to that beguiling writer, Bruce Barton, a large factory caught fire. It burned to the ground. Sirens shrieked. Crowds milled. Firemen fought the flames. Newspaper reporters scurried here and there after stories. Consternation reigned.

Amid all this confusion the most serene man in sight was the president of the factory, he who should have been the most excited. Alighting from his car, he strolled over to where that which he had spent years in building was becoming a total loss. He was calm, at ease, undisturbed.

Charles Roth

A newspaper man spied him, asked him why he was no more concerned. He explained that the loss was fully covered by insurance and that, besides, the most valuable asset of the business hadn't even been touched by the fire.

"To what asset do you refer, Mr. Burlingame?"

"Why, to our good will. We can build a new factory—now we'll have to. We can buy new machinery—better machinery than was in the old plant. As long as the good will of a business is intact, nothing else matters," he concluded.

He was right. The most important thing a business man has i the good will of his customers. Every business which has that is successful; every business which doe not have it fails.

Good will is not a mysteriou quality like genius. It is a simple commonsense matter depending upon doing simple, commonsense things.

The first of these consists of giving good value and service, that the business may win and hold friends. The second consists of making the fact that the business is the kind which wins and holds friends known to its customers, by telling them of its ideals and its services and its merchandise.

This telling process is called advertising. Whenever a manufacturer or a merchant advertises in the newspaper he informs you that he is the kind of business man whom it would pay you to patronize. He makes public the fact that he wants good will and that he realizes the only way he can keep it is by living up to his promises.

You as a customer get more for your money when you patronize a concern with good will. Good will is proof that the concern has done something to warrant the friendship and confidence of its customers.

You see, good will doesn't just happen. It is created—by good goods, by good service, by good advertising.

Value Of Timber

"The value of standing timber produced each year in Alabama would be $25,000,000 if protected from fire," said Lyle Brown, extension horticulturist at Auburn. The South has 38 per cent of the forest land of the nation, he said, but 90 per cent of this acreage is burned annually by woods fires in the South. For every acre burned throughout the north, east and west, the South burns nine. "And yet," he continued, "if protected, trees will grow on nearly any spot in the State of Alabama."

ONE HUNDRED BOBWHITES AND 27 CHUCKARS HATCHED

One hundred and twenty-five Bobwhite and 27 chukar chicks broke their shells in the incubator at the State game farm May 27 to become the first birds hatched in the 1939 season. Supt. James Fuller said that the young birds were strong and healthy for an early hatch. The incubators are full of eggs and from now on through the Summer a hatch will come off every week, Supt. Fuller said. Quail in laying pens are producing eggs at a fast rate he said, and reported eggs gathered as follows: May 8, 170 eggs; May 15, 520 eggs; May 22, 680 eggs; and May 29, 980 eggs. There are 400 pairs of breeding quail in the pens. On account of the increased activity at the game farm, visiting hours have been restricted to three days a week—Sunday, Wednesday and Friday from 2 to 5 P.M. The Conservation Department expects to raise approximately 15,000 Bobwhites for restocking in Alabama this year.

During the period 1920 to 1937 the per capita consumption of cotton was 26 pounds; of tobacco 9 pounds; of wool, 5 pounds, and of flaxseew. 15 pounds.

Everyone holding tickets on the Registered Poland-China Pig to be given away on June 17, by the Yellow Front Store must be at the drawing Saturday morning of that date.

RESOLUTION

—o—

WHEREAS, Lubricating oils are wholly indespensable to modern industry and commerce, and

WHEREAS, The Federal Lubricating Oil Tax is exceedingly difficult and costly to collect and administer, causing great inconvenience and expense to the consumer, the oil distributor and retailer, and the manufacture, and

WHEREAS, The levy needlessly increases the cost of the lubricants used by two of the country's most heavily taxed group of consumers, the motorists, whose earnings average only $20 to $30 per week, and the farmers, who likewise possess only a limited ability to pay, and

WHEREAS, The tax adds an excessive and exorbitant burden to the cost of the lubricants used in industry and transportation, and

WHEREAS, The flat rate of the tax on all lubricants creates an extremely unsound and unfair method of taxation because of the varying uses and prices of various lubricants, and

WHEREAS, This tax was first levied as a "nuisance" tax for one year and is still a "nuisance" tax, now therefore be it

RESOLVED: That the Sixth District Petroleum Industries Commitee of Alabama insist that the four cent per gallon Federal Lubricating Oil Tax be allowed to expire permanently as of June 30, 1939, and that copies of this resolution be sent to our Congressman and two Senators asking them to actively oppose reenactment of the tax, and that copies also be sent to the press, the Clerk of the United Sta House of Represenatives and the S retary of the United States Senate.

Christian Endeavor News

A very interesting and effective topic entitled "Jesus Was A Missionary," was under discussion in Christian Endeavor Sunday evening under the leadership of Lucile McCain. William Sharpe gave a talk in answer to the two questions: "Does A Missionary Have To Be Brainy?" and "Can Missionary Work Begin At Home?" Fred Blankenship talked on the question "Can A Missionary Afford To Look Down On Other Races?

Jack Peterson gave a talk in answer to the two question "Would You Expect a Missionary To Make Other People Feel Happier Or Less Happy?" and "Is The Missionary Job Harder Or Easier Than Other Jobs? If Harder, How Do Missionaries Stand It?" Leroy Peterson talked on the question "Why Does A Missionary Have To Be A Person Whom All Kinds Of People Like?" In conclusion Lucil McCain, the leader, read Joy Socking's definition of a Missionary.

The Christian Endeavor Executive Committee will meet next Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. The regular Christian Endeavor meeting time has been dropped back to 6:30 o'clock again.

There are quite a number of Piedmont College graduates in Chilton County who will be interested to learn the following about the new President of Piedmont College, Mr. Malcolm Dana, Jr. Mr Dana received his early education at the Charles City (Iowa), High School and Berea Academy in Kentucky. He graduated from Carleton College in 1924, majoring in economics. In college he had "Varsity Letters" in basketball and baseball, and college tennis championship. He studied in Chicago Theological Seminary in 1925-26, with residence at Hull House, with personality studies in a mining community. He received the M. A. degree in religious education at Hartford Seminary in 1927 and the B.D. in 1930 and studied abroad in the spring of 1933. For several years he served in various larger parishes in Maine as director of eligious education and leadership training. Fo three years he has been assistant general director and treasurer of Keewaydin Camps, an organization of nine camps, giving large experience in management as well as affording opportunity for inspiring leadership with young people. Mr. Dana has specialized in the matter of personality and character education, and has done some remarkable experimentation in this aspect of education. He thus brings to Piedmont College thorough training for his work, a broad experience in America and Europe, Christian consecration for service, idealism and pragmatic common sense, qualifications which make him the ideal leader for Piedmont College. The Trustees and friends of the college look forward with enthusiasm to his coming and feel that the College will grow and prosper greatly under his inspiring guidance. Mr. Dana is expected to arrive in Demorest about June 1 to assume the duties of his office.

William Sharpe, Thorsby Institute, '37, was graduated last week from Southern Union College, a junior college at Wadley, Alabama. He expects to continue his college work at Piedmont College, Demorest, Georgia next fall.

The Thorsby Institute library has added about 1,000 books this year, making a library of about 5,000 books. Mrs. Harding with student helpers has catalogued many books this year.

When He Grows up

Some day this little fellow and others like him will compose the fourth generation to depend on the telephone in their daily activities. How much they will use the telephone is unpredictable, except that their demands will likely exceed today's.

And today's demands on the telephone system are large. The Southern Bell Company served 1,140,000 telephones in 1938, with 18.800 workers who received $26,600,000 in wages. It paid almost nine million dollars in taxes. Each day, an average of 9,582,798 local calls and 130,613 long distance calls were handled.

Telephone employes strive to give the kind of service their customers want. With this traditional spirit of service, backed by continuous scientific research, it is reasonable to expect that the Bell System will still provide the kind of telephone service this little fellow will want when he grows up.

Alabama Parents And Teachers To Hold 10th Annual Institute 19th

—o—

The Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers will hold its Tenth annual Parent-Teachers Institute at the University of Alabama, June 19th to the 23rd. Officers and chairmen of local parent-teacher associations will arrive early Monday, June 19th, from all sections of the state. Four days will be spent on the University campus, at Doster Hall, with parent-teacher leaders participating in an intensive training course.

The program this year offers an opportunity for excellent training and experience. Martha W. Smith, supervisor. School Attendance and Communty Relations, State Department of Education, will conduct a two hour class each day, for four days, beginning Tuesday, June 20th, at 8:00 A.M. on "Parent-Teacher Essentials." The following basic outline will be carried out: "Oragnization and Structure," "By-Laws and Organization Committees," "Sources for Programs Materials", "Relation of Special Committees to Program," "Planning the Local Program," "Relation of Study Groups to Program Planning," "Developing Leadership." This course has been planned especially for the incoming officers and chairmen of local parent-teacher units.

Dr. Curry Cleveland Myers has been engaged by the University for the Parent-Education Course. Dr. Myers was at the first parent-teacher institute and it is particularly interesting to have him return on the tenth annual one. Parents and Teachers will be given the opportunity to hear Dr. Myers for two lectures each day. He will also be the guest speaker at the Joint Educational-Parent-Teacher Conference Luncheon on Tuesday.

During the past few years, parent-teacher associations have sought to secure lunchrooms in the schools of the state so that all children would be able to have at least one hot dish during the day. This has been one of the principal objectives of at least half the units in the state. Much progress has been made and in order to assist in this program, a course on "The School Lunch" will be given by Miss Certie Reynolds, of the State Health Department. The course will be adapted to fit the needs of various type schools and communities.

Added features for Wednesday will be the "Counsel for Councils" conference, conducted by Mrs. James Fitts Hill, Council Chairman, Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers. Mrs. G. N. Lemmon, High School Chairman, Alabama Congress, will hold a conference for High School officers and chairman on this day. Parlimentary classes will also be arranged, with Mrs. Roy Nolen, as instructor. A conference on the ratings of standard and superior associations will be held Wednesday night, in the reception room of New Hall.

The Institute will be opened formally Monday, by Mrs. B. R. Showalter, State President. She will welcome the large group in attendance. One hundred and fifteen received certificates last year for completing at least 15 hours of class work. It is expected that more than this will receive certificates Friday morning.

Cooperating with the State Educational Conference P.-T. A. members will have an opportunity to hear Dr. G. T. Buswell's lectures on the state reading program.

Graves Believes Alabama Will Get Freight Relief

—o—

Former Gov. Bibb Graves said here last night that he believed the South would know, within eight to ten weeks whether the handicap of "prevailing unjust freight rates," would be removed.

If the rate differential were removed —and he expressed confidence that it would—Mr. Graves asserted it not only would be a great day for the South, but for the whole of the nation.

Col. Graves, after making one of the outstanding pleas for "justice" before the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C., returned to Montgomery Sunday night satisfied that Southern interests had presented an eloquent, weighty, and impressive argument.

The petitioners for the Southern shippers had their whole souls in their arguments, he said, because they knew their people were being penalized unjustly. Col. Graves said that now, probably, the people of the South had more reason to hope for rate equalities than at any previous time.

He predicted that if the rates were readjusted, to give the South an opportunity to get into "our great American market, official territory," the date would go down as one of the most important in recent history.

The additional volume of business that would ensue, he predicted in his plea before the commission, would far more than compensate for loss in rates. Hugh Write, president of the Alabama Public Service Commission, told the commission he believed it was up to the Northern Railroads to show why they opposed giving freight moving in from the South "a rate which was no lower than that maintained inside official territory."

Col. Graves said he told the commission that the South knew it was farther from the markets and expected to pay more to reach those markets, but that the South did insist that it not be further penalized by an additional take-out because it chanced to be a part of the nation which opponents to the urged revision would treat as a satrapy of their empire.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Storekeeping Safest Job; Mining Is Most Perilous

LONDON.—The safest of all jobs is that of the storekeeper's assistant and the most dangerous is that of the tin or copper miner who works below ground.

These and many other facts are revealed in an analysis of occupational mortality in England and Wales which has just been issued by the registrar-general.

For mortality in general the best record was given to storekeeper's assistants, agricultural machine workers, wireless operators on shore, makers of non-metalliferous mine and quarry products, draftsmen and costing clerks and bank and insurance officials.

The worst rates were shown by underground miners of metals, sand-blasters, stevedores, slate miners and quarry workers.

Clergymen were near the top of the list with the best record; judges and lawyers had eighty-third place, authors and editors, ninetieth; doctors 123rd; while hotel keepers were very low on the list—190th.

More drug store owners commit suicide than any other class, with judges, lawyers, bookmakers, hairdressers, waiters, dentists, estate agents coming next in that order.

British Writer Praises Grandeur of Our Scenery

The United States is a foreign country full of strange beauties, but always understandable because of the common language. We travel mainly to get the maximum of change and the maximum of scenic beauty.

It is as difficult to do justice to the amazing variety of American scenery as it is to do justice to the variety of American food. Every traveler who has once seen them comes home convinced that the world has nothing fairer or more inspiring to show than the great heights of the Canadian Rockies and the vast depths of the Grand canyon. Moreover, they are easily accessible. Deserts can be crossed by bus and you can watch the last roundup from an airplane.—London Times.

First Woman Payroller

In the spring of 1862 Mr. F. E. Spinner, treasurer of the United States, prevailed upon Secretary Chase to permit him to appoint a woman to cut and trim United States currency. This work was then being done with shears in the hands of men. He appointed Miss Jennie Douglas, and as he afterward expressed it, "her first day's work settled the matter in her and in woman's favor." On October 9, 1862, the following women employees were appointed: Miss Fannie L. Halstead; Miss Annie York, Miss Belle S. Tracy, Miss Elizabeth Stoner and Miss Mary Burke. They were the first women for whom congress regularly made an appropriation.

Bible Lyceum Will Open Under Tent Here

—o—

REV. MITCHELL R. GARRETT

A Bible Lyceum under the leadership of Evangelists Mitchell R. Garrett, and Cecil F. Graves, will open Sunday night at 7:30 in the big tent Tabernacle on the lot across from the Thomason Hotel. Mayor C. Fenn Jones will give the address of welcome.

Tre party has already arrived in Clanton, and final arrangements are being made to take care of a large audience which is expected Sunday night.

The Bible Lyceum is unique in its name and program. It is the only program of its kind ever given in Chilton County. Besides the evangelistic services each night, special features will be added. The old time sing, under the able leadership of Prof. Graves, with Mrs. Graves at the piano, will be a special feature of the program. An attractive and illuminating feature will be the illustrated songs and lectures flashed on the screen, during the song service and lecture program. Written questions will be read and answered each night publicly.

The full personnel of the evangelistic party promises something different in a religious program. The interior of the tabernacle has been beautifully decorated by the ladies of the party. Because of its unusual nature, and its diversified program, it is expected to attract wide interest in Clanton and the county. Extra seats will be provided for the overflow audiences.

Because of the international complications at the present time Mr. Garrett has chosen that timely topic, "Is the world headed for Armegeddon? Where and when will this great struggle be fought?" Monday night, "What and Where Is Heaven? Will we know Our Loved Ones There?" The announced subject for Tuesday night will be "A World Dictator Soon To Come—Who Will He Be?" Meetings will be held each night in the week, except Saturday. All programs are free, and the general public is invited.

English Language Is Hard Though Rich and Flexible

The English-American language, with its 500,000 words and its unmatched flexibility is the richest instrument of expression in the world. One reason for this is to be found in history, which shows it to be the fusion of two language elements, the Germanic and the Romance. The other reason is that the peoples who speak it are and have been for centuries the top-dogs of the world.

The little island-English branched out and made of their tight little isle the greatest of empires. The Americans developed a virgin continent into the richest nation in the world, and were in their time (let us hope it is not past) the most energetic people on the globe.

The fact that the English-American language is the richest, the most varied, and the most complex instrument, makes it also the most difficult to handle. You can do more work with it, but you can make more mistakes. Only a few men understand Einstein, because the language of relativity is difficult; and only a double handful of men exist who can use our language flawlessly. Between the lowest and the highest we vary only in the number and kind of mistakes we make. A man can overdo it, like George Ade's character, Oscar, who said, "Whom are you?" for he had been to night school.—Alison Ainsworth in Coronet.

Lavender Favorite Perfume

Lavender is one of the favorite perfumes the world over and enormous quantities of the dried flowers are used annually to make the perfume and other lavender products. The yield of oil varies from year to year depending on the weather and the age of the bushes. The plants are very tender to any frost. The oil has to be stored from three to five years before it is sufficiently matured for use in the perfumery and other trades.

MORE WEAR FROM YOUR STOCKINGS

By Katharine Fisher

Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

We've spent many an hour in our textile laboratory investigatin the wearing qualities of many well-known brands of hosiery, to find ou what you can do to make your stockings wear longer. "Wear squads," large groups of active girls and women, have helped us verify our laboratory findings on stockings in actual use. Here are the several things we'v learned which will help you lengthen the life of your stockings.

First, buy a good brand of hosiery. Before buying, plan your hosier wardrobe carefully, and buy the correct weight of stocking for the occasion for which you will use it. You'll find the following weights suitable

1 and 2-thread for evening wear
3-thread for afternoon or informal wear
4-thread for street or business
7-thread for service and sportswear
10-thread for extra service

Of course, the very sheer stockings do not wear as well as th heavier ones. But then you will want to wear them on occasion for thei beauty alone.

Buy at least 2 pairs of the same color at the same time. If one o each pair wears out, you will still have a whole pair left. Sometime there is a price saving when 3 pairs are bought.

Be sure the linings of your shoes are smooth to prevent unnecessary wear. Rough eyelets or sharp-edged buckles ma also cause snags and runs.

KATHARINE FISHER
Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

Put your stockings on properly. The best way i to first roll the leg of the stocking down and slip th foot through the roll into the toe. Then straighten th foot seam, and slowly unroll the stocking, smoothin it up over the leg with the finger tips and straightening the leg seam at the same time.

Don't wear garters after they have lost thei elasticity. They should have plenty of stretch. Th garter should always be clasped half-way down th welt or reinforced part of the stocking, never in th sheer part below the welt. Fasten garters while sti seated in order to allow for knee action.

It is important, too, to buy the correct size an length of stocking. The size stocking to buy is th actual length of your foot in inches, from the back of the heel to the en of the toe, measured along the side of the foot.

The approximate length of stockings you require is from the poin where you fasten your garters to the bottom of the heel, measured a the side. Variations in size of ankle, calf and top measurements mak some difference in length requirements. The standard lengths for hosier are 28 inches (short) 30 inches (average) and 32-33 inches (extra long

Avoid contact with sharp or rough objects, such as rough finge or toe nails, hard callouses or corns, settings of rings, slivers of woo and rough places on chairs, and particularly desks, if you are an offic worker. Short bristly hair on the legs may also injure the delicate sil thread in sheer stockings. Keep your toe nails smoothly pedicured. you have dry skin on feet or legs, use a skin lotion on it as regularly a you do on your hands. If you are careful, many of the snags, pull threads and runs which happen so quickly and are so disastrous, can avoided.

BUS SERVICE TO ALABAMA COLLEGE IS DISCUSSED BY C. M. MAULDIN OF SHELBY

Editor, Chilton County News:

There is one important matter that sould be brought to the attention of the good people of Chilton and Shelby Counties. Without asking, I feel sure that you will cheerfully lend the columns of your valuable paper to its support. Briefly it is this:

Both counties have many high school graduates who are prepared educationally to enter college. More students will complete high school courses each year and be ready for higher education. Most of these young men and young women will be able to attend college if they can live at home as they have done while attending high school. But for them to live at college would cost more than many of their parents can afford to pay.

That excellent college at Montevallo is within sixty to ninety minutes ride on a good bus from Verbena or from Vincent. And the road from either place so runs that the bus would travel within reach of most of the high school graduates of the county. It could take the students to college in time for early forenoon classes and bring them home after classes to spend the night with their parents.

The College with teachers and equipment is there ready to instruct, inspire, and educate. The road is ready and paved. Why not prepare now to have the bus ready when fall term begins to put every willing and worthy graduate of our High Schools at the College door each morning before classes open and back home in his or her mother's yard before night.

Can you imagine the joy in a good old country mother's fond heart when she has her daughter with her at night while working for a diploma from the College in Montevallo? If you can, dear reader, you will not say one word against your county's paying the small expense of one more school bus to haul them. (The teaching and other expenses at the College are not paid from the County funds).

We consider the money well spent to transport the Grammar School graduates to High School. It will prove a much better investment to transport the High School graduates to College.

Talk about social life and rural community improvement. Within a few years this would bring the refining influence of college education into hundreds of rural homes that otherwise it would never reach. Of course, as the home becomes more enlightened and refined the community will improve.

Sons and daughters who complete college courses while living at home with their parents will be more attached to home and parents than will those who stay away four years at college. They will not grow from and become ashamed of their parents; they will be more likely to settle in the community or county; and will become of great value to the county educationally, socially, morally and financially.

The money spent on the expenses of running this school bus will be worth more to the county than an equal amount spent on education in any other way. Hundreds will complete a college course whose education would have been limited to high school. In the run of years these hundreds will become thousands.

Just think: It does not take as long to ride forty miles to college now as it took me, when a boy, to walk to my community school. Whenever it is possible our children should live at home and go to college. The question is: Are we willing for the public funds to pay the transportation expenses? My answer is a very emphatic, I AM.

C. M. MAULDIN.

To Query Women All Over South

Touring Reporters have now asked over 1,200 women and girls of leading Southern Cities the now famous question: "Were you helped by CARDUI?"

Averaging all replies so far shows that 93 out of every 100 users questioned declared CARDUI benefitted them!

Users by thousands are eager to tell how CARDUI has given them appetite; helped them gain strength; has thus relieved them of the symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition. Many also say that, when symptoms indicate the need, CARDUI in larger doses helps "at the time" to soothe pain.

REV. AND MRS. OSCAR DAVIS OBSERVE FIRST ANNIVERSARY IN CLANTON

Last Sunday Concluded One Year's Work As Pastor And First Lady Of The Clanton Baptist Church

When Rev. Oscar A. Davis stepped from the pulpit of the First Baptist Church of Clanton at the close of his sermon last Sunday morning, he brought to a close one year of service as pastor of the Church.

Since coming to Clanton one year ago from the Holt Baptist Church at Tuscaloosa, Rev. and Mrs. Davis have in the duration of this year completely won the hearts of the members of the Clanton Baptist Church, as well as the entire citizenship of this section Their services among the people here have been outstanding, and the good they have wrought can partly be attested by the large audiences on Sunday at the Church, and the growing interest, especially among the younger people of the Church.

Rev. and Mrs. Davis are comparatively young people. He is a graduate of Howard College and the Baptist Seminary Mrs. Davis was well known here before her marriage to Rev. Davis. She was at that time Miss Eunice Long, and visited Clanton on several occasions in her work among the Christian organizations.

Rev Davis assumed the duties of pastor of the Clanton Baptist Church, following the resignation of Rev. S.J. Ezell, who with Mrs. Ezell faithfully served as pastor and first lady for fifteen years Rev Ezell resigned to accept the place of Superintendent of Evangelism of Alabama. During his pastorate the Church indebtedness, accrued by the erection of the present building, was liquidated. An annex was built also during his period as pastor.

Approximately fifty new members have come into the church during the past year, about half by letter and the remainder for baptism. No revival has been conducted until now. The regular Summer revival is in progress this week at the Church. Rev. Davis has just recently closed a six-weeks soul-winning and Church Loyalty Campaign. Large crowds attended each service during this campaign and much interest was manifested by those attending.

As this beloved Clanton couple enter into their second year's work in Clanton, the News joins the citizenship of the community in extending congratulation on a year which has been filled with spiritual blessings for themselves and this community.

Parents of children born in April whose name fails to appear on this list are urged by Dr. S. D Sturkie, local Health Officer, to report this matter to the Health Office. Filing of a birth certificate within five days after the delivery of a birth with the local registrar by the physician or midwife in attendance is required by the State Vital Statistics Law. Cooperation of Chilton County parents with the Health Department in this matter is strongly urged by the local Health Officer.

ALABAMA PRESS

which way to go and what you are seeing when you go; all that heart could wish for on a tour and at the least possible cost.

In fact, because of the number it carries each year on the tour, the Alabama Press Association gets more concessions, more of everything for those who join with them than any group conducting tours; better transportation facilities, better hotels, more sights to see, more entertainment at a less cost to the individuals, Mr. Giles states.

The stay in New York at the Pensylvania Hotel, the sights at the World's Fair, a sightseeing tour about the great city with all its numerous features alone will be worth far more than the total cost of the tour.

In fact, with New York hotel accomodations taxed as are most all other facilities there for handling the millions that will come to the world's fair, one making the trip alone could hardly hope to see half as much or stay half so long for the cost trip with the Alabama Press Association which includes air conditioned chair and pullman trains, dining service with meals paid for on train, best of hotel accomodations and all else the most exacting tourist could ask.

The time is at hand. Those who have not registered with their local newspaper sould do so at once so as to be sure of the best accomodations. Especially those desiring to return by the boat to Florida and then back to Montgomery should make reservations now as only a limited number can be taken.

Go in today and ask your local newspaper to give you further details, and by all means sign up for the tour. Today, President Giles issued the following invitation:

"The public is cordially invited to join with the Alabama Press Association on this annual summer meeting tour. It feels honored that already so many outstanding leaders and friends from many sections of the state have signed up to make the trip with the press. We have left no stone unturned to give the people of Alabama and the members of the Alabama Press Association the best for less—all that was possible to crowd into a full week's entertainment. We'll be most pleased to have you go with us, too."

modeling and equipping their buildings.

"I have investigated personally the school buildings of the county. Nearly all of them need painting. Many of them are leaking. Windows and doors are in bad shape. A prominent architect, an official of the State Department of Education, and a representative of the Insurance Department of the state all agreed that one of our largest school buildings was about the poorest of its size in the state. I believe the people of Chilton County are not willing to be ranked at the bottom in the buildings they provide for their school children.

"I am distressed over the condition of our school buses. They are overcrowded. They are uncomfortable in cold, rainy or dry weather. They are a very poor advertisement for the county. The explanation of course is that they are old. Eighty per cent of our buses are nine years old or older. They have reached the age when they ought to be replaced by new buses. If we could afford it we would replace them by new all-steel bodies which would be safe and protect our children from dust, rain, cold, and mud.

"I find the financial condition of the Chilton County School system perfect on one respect; we owe no debts and all bills are paid. We have kept our schools going seven and nine months and have met our obligations promptly. This is a policy we ought to continue It is an honest policy and a good advertisement for the county.

"As we face the future, however, I am thinking of the other things we ought to do. We ought to improve our buildings, put them in good shape, erect some new ones, replace worn-out buses which are neither safe nor comfortable by new all-steel ones, and at least keep our teachers' salaries where they are. We owe these advantages to our children. In all things we want them to have better advantages than we have had, especially educational advantages. Other counties are giving them to their children. Chilton County can do no less.

"I hope the people will consider these things June 13th when they vote on the county school taxes A vote FOR the taxes will be a vote for giving our children schools equal to what other counties have. It will be a vote to remove from Chilton County a handicap she has had in the past. We can do this by falling in line with the other sixty-three Alabama counties that have the one-mill county school tax. To fail to do this is to cripple our schools and our children's chances of success.

"Yours for better schools,
"RASCOE MADDOX."

heir Majesties—

". . . the King, sitting beside the resident in the Chief Executive's car nd himself at the wheel, was forced grab for his hat as the President ook off at a brisk rate of speed."

The above was the substance of a aragraph in a news story of the visit their Majesties, King George and ueen Elizabeth of Great Britain with resident and Mrs. Roosevelt. And we ee where the President also showed he King what a hot dog was. Whatever olitical significance might be attached the visit of this royal couple to our ountry, we think "a good time was ad by all," and that every true Ameri- an citizen hoped from the bottom of is or her heart that the rulers of the orld's largest empire enjoyed their tay with us. And the couple who head- d the American people as hosts were HE perfect entertainers, is our opin- n. That was no small task, and the elts handled it in their usual harming manner. As the royal party ft the United States we are certain hat the King turned to the Queen and emarked: "Well, my dear, you stole he show, but that is how I wished it. he Americans are one grand people nd they opened up their hearts to how us a good time."

Disappointed—

But of course an affair as huge as hat could not pass off without some- ody getting sore because they weren't nvited to meet the royal visitors. But every big shot could not have the ge of meeting the King and Queen. There's lots of them in the United States, you know. (Some ARE nd some think they are.) We were ontent to let Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. represent us in the affair, and what with the modern news reels, we did everything but get introduced to the King and Queen, anyway. We were for- tunate to see a news reel four days af- ter the Washington reception, and let us tell you, we got a better look-see than many who were on the scene in person. There was smiling John Nance Garner, and Mrs. Garner, who were among the first to be introduced. And following was Alabama's own William B. Bankhead, Speaker of the House. Yes, sir, it was one grand occasion when the heads of the world's mightiest em- pire and nation shook hands—and on American soil.

"Chilco"—

What do you think of the above for the wording on the new label to be placed on the outgoing produce from Chilton County? It's a combination of Chilton and County. We see it as a good arvertisement for Chilton County products, for it is the aim of Chilton shippers to make the products marketed the very best. The label that will be placed on the crates of peaches by the Clanton Berry Growers Association will probably have this wording, along with a picture of a bunch of large strawberries on one end and a peach that looks like the real thing on the other. We hope and believe that "Chilco" will become known over the country as a mark of quality, and that Chilton County will prosper from that reality. The Clanton Berry Growers Association has bought new machinery and are ready to handle the peach crop, after successfully handling a large portion of the County's strawberry crop Is there any reason why Chilton County can't have one big Central Marketing Agency through which the produce of the County can be marketed at a profit, after undergoing proper grading and packing? We believe that the day is not far distant when Chilton County will be known as the produce center of the South—as well as the population and geographical center of Alabama.

THREE AND ONE MILL TAX VOTED IN TUESDAY

UNOFFICIAL RETURNS SHOW BOTH THREE MILL DISTRICT AND ONE MILL COUNTY WINS

With all but a few boxes heard from, it appeared certain Wednesday morning that the District A and B Three Mill School Tax, which was up for renewal, and the County-wide One-Mill Tax, which was an adidtional tax, had both been voted in by a safe majority.

The one mill tax, which school officials say is very necessary at this time, and which Chilton County has been one of the four counties in the State not levying this tax, was voted in with a safe majority. Unofficial returns were as follows:

For District three mill tax, 776.
Against District three mill tax, 179.
For County-wide one mill tax, 764.
Against County-wide one mill tax, 212.

Following is a statement from Superintendent of Education Rascoe Maddox regarding the election:

"To the Citizens of Chilton County:

"Incomplete returns from the school tax election indicate that both the three-mill district tax and the one-mill county tax have been approved by a good majority.

"In behalf of the County Board of Education and myself I want to thank every voter who registered this vote in behalf of our children. It is a vote for progress in education in Chilton County and for the betterment of the entire county.

We deeply appreciate the loyal workers who so successfully performed the task of telling the people of the needs of our schools and of the importance of doing our part in meeting them. Without their cooperation the campaign would never have ended so successfully.

"And now we feel sure that educationally Chilton County will neither stand still nor go backward; it will go forward, for the people have said they want it to go forward.

"RASCOE MADDOX."

TIME FOR DOG VACCINATION IS NEAR

DR. W. L. PARRISH URGES COOPERATION OF DOG OWNERS OF COUNTY

Dr. W. L. Parrish, County Veternarian, is this week urging the cooperation of the owners of dogs over the county in having their dogs treated for rabies. Each year it is necessary for the dogs to be vaccinated and a letter to the News by Dr. Parrish is self-explanatory:

"Dog vaccination time is near. Vaccinating your dog will stop rabies as you have seen in the last year. Your cooperation is very necessary. Your cooperation in the past has been good in most sections. Let's keep it good and make it better in some communities.

"Rabies is a bad thing and no one wants a bite from a rabid dog. It means a horrible death to your dog, also the treatment is bad for the person and should the person miss the treatment, this means a most horrible death.

"I will try to make my appointments as convenient for you as possible. See me early if your community wishes your meeting place changed from last year.

"The price will be 50c cash. I will be at McCain's barn, Clanton, Thursday, July 6—8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Behind Wyatt Drug Store, Thorsby, Friday, morning, July 7, from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. Jemison (McNeil's Shop), Friday afternoon from 1 to 4 o'clock."

PROPER HANDLING OF PEACH CROP WILL BE AIM OF SHIPPERS

New Grading Machine And Other Necessary Equipment Recently Installed By Clanton Berry Growers Association; Shipping Begins Soon

What might be termed the beginning of organized peach grading and marketing in Chilton County was a most interesting meeting last Monday night, held in the recently completed warehouse of the Clanton Berry Growers Association here, when the new $17.50 peach brushing and grading machine was demonstarted to a group of peach growers and other interested persons of the County.

After closing a most successful strawberry season, during which strawberry growers of this County received something like sixty thousand dollars for approximately 100 cars of berries, the Clanton Berry Growers Association, composed of men who have realized that organized marketing of products is truly profitable, have undertaken the task of handling the peach crop of this section for the season now almost at hand.

The first step toward insuring a fair market for this crop of peaches, and for crops to come, was the purchasing of a modern machine which will enable a Number One pack of the fruit, which goes far in insuring a ready market at fair prices. It is a certainty that if the growers of peaches—or other perishable products for that matter—expect fair returns from their efforts, they must place on the markets products put up in a manner that will attract the attention of the consumers.

LOCAL BALL CLUB PLANS BIG 4TH CELEBRAT'N

OLD FASHIONED BARBECUE WITH ALL THE TRIMMINGS; BALL GAMES PLANNED

For the first time in several years there is a good prospect that Clanton will not let the Fourth of July slip by as quietly and as unconcernedly as she has been in the habit of doing for the past several years.

The Clanton-Maplesville Ball Team is working to that end and is making plans so that everyone in Chilton County may come to the County High School on the Fourth and enjoy the entire day.

The plans are as yet immature but if the public shows the proper spirit of cooperation and offers its help the day will be a Fourth long to be remembered.

The tentative schedule for the day is as follows: a big barbecue with all the accessories and everyone invited; contests of all kinds including the traditional sport of climbing the greasy pole and catching the greasy pig.

Two crackerjack ball games are on tap. One at 10 A.M. and the other at 3:30 P.M.

The cooperation of the merchants and citizens is earnestly solicited in bringing to Clanton on the Fourth a real celebration which the public may enjoy.

CITY PASSES SPEAKING ORDINANCE

COUNCIL TO RESTRICT SPEAKINGS, GATHERINGS, ON SIDEWALKS, STREETS

Mayor C. Fenn Jones announced early this week that following action taken by the City Council at a meeting recently, the City will undertake the restriction of speakings, use of loud speakers, and gatherings that tend to block traffic on the streets and pedestrians on the sidewalks.

Mayor Jones stated that it was not the intention of the City to infringe on the rights of the people in the matter of public worship, or gatherings of any kind, but that for some time complaints have been coming in that traffic was being hindered on the streets, and that at times walking up the sidewalks was almost impossible due to the fact that crowds were gatheerd to listen to a speaker. It was further pointed out that loud noises, caused by loud speakers stationed on the streets, were causing an unusual amount of noise, hindering the transactions of business houses, and offices nearby

The Mayor stated that he had one complaint recently from a lady who stated that she was forced to turn her car around in the street recently, after being unable to proceed due to the fact that a gathering had completely blocked the main thoroughfare Having given due consideration to the matter, the City Council passed the ordinance, decreeing that any person or persons wishing to hold a meeting that would attract a crowd, must make application at the office of the Mayor, where the manner of the gathering would be discussed.

"Clanton is a growing City," Mayor Jones stated, "and we must remember that activity on the streets and sidewalks, is becoming more brisk every day, theerfore, it is following due consideration for the safety and general welfare of the people as a whole, that the Council has taken this step." Mr. Jones expressed his belief that the people would lend their cooperation in the matter.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATIONS

Elsewhere in this issue of Chilton County News appears Governor's Proclamations Nos. 1, 2 and 4, giving notice of an election to be held on Tuesday, July 11th, 1939, for the purpose of voting on proposed Amendments to the Constitution of the State of Alabama, as follows:

1. Amend section 8 of the Constitution to permit Circuit Court Judges to act in all felony cases, except capital cases, without Grand Jury indictments, that is, allow a judge to accept guilty pleas with the safeguard provision that no accused person be permitted to plead guilty within 15 days after arrest.

2. Amend section 124 empowering the State Legislature to set up a non-political parole and pardon board, and take all parole powers from the governor, except to grant reprieves and commutations to persons under death sentence.

4. Provide for investment of trust funds.

Two other proposed Amendments, (proclamations not carried in the News):

3. Provide for biennial, instead of quadrennial sessions limited to 60 consecutive calendar days.

5. Give counties optional right to use voting machines.

Every one of these proposed Amendments to the Constitution is of vital importance, and it is the duty of every voter in Chilton County, regardless of his, or her, political affiliations and beliefs, to study them carefully, and vote according to the dictates of their conscience.

The election on July 11th is a general election in which every qualified voter in the county is entitled to vote.

A SELMA TOURIST PLAN

What is a tourist? Is he somebody that has come a great distance to a given community and doesn't know anybody in it? Or may he not be a neighbor from a nearby community who just drops by to your community?

Apparently the retail merchants of Selma and Publisher Mary Raiford of The Times-Journal believe that one may be certified as a tourist who drops in from a neighboring community. The merchants' tourist committee has adopted Publisher Raiford's proposal that parties of Selma citizens will visit the points of interest in west Alabama—for instance, Marion Junction, Maron, Greensboro, Newbern, Faunsdale, Uniontown and Demopolis.

Mayor Burns of Selma will be asked to write the mayors of these communities and ask them to designate the objects of interest in their communities. When this is done the Selmians will go and see for themselves. Not only will they find places of historical interest, but they will also personally inspect current community projects and endeavors.

Commenting on this plan The Times-Journal says in an editorial:

"A united effort of this kind could not fail to gain some beneficial results, as Central Alabama is rich in historical points of interest and still retains much of the gracious flavor of the Old South.

"If these plans meet with ready response from other towns Central Alabama will soon be presenting its best face to the nation. Then the economic possibilities of tourist travel will become exactly what our people care to make them."—Montgomery Advertiser.

BOND ISSUES KEEP US POOR

The economic evil of bond issues of all kinds is clearly shown in the following news story coming out of Montgomery:

"First payment on a 40-year-old bond issue was made yesterday by Montgomery County, James Heustess, clerk of the Board of Revenue, announced. The payment was $23,000 of a called issue totaling $25,000. The other $2,000 in bonds will be paid upon presentation by owners, it was said.

"The total issue was $300,000 financed in 1897 for road improvement in Montgomery County. The bonds were allowed to mature two years ago without payment, and refinanced, dropping the interest from five per cent to 4.2 per cent.

"Before refinancing, interest amounting to $600,000 was paid on the $300,000 loan. During the past two years, $25,200 was paid in interest. An aggregate of $648,200 has been paid by Montgomery County and $275,000 of the original $300,000 loan remains unpaid.

Clerk Heustess said that it was the "Policy of the county officials to refinance bonds as soon as the contracts of the issues permit "

Compare this small bond issue with the tremendous load the towns, counties, states and the nation are carrying at this moment, and we can readily see why the millions of everyday Americans are economic slaves to a financial system that is daily making the rich richer and the poor poorer.

Anyone who is satisfied to continue indefinitely paying interest on bonds for public improvements and other purposes, should not be bellyaching about paying taxes for governmental support.

Also, so the timber hogs can have forests to cut and slash and destroy, and so future campers and smokers can have some woods to carelessly set afire.

Flowers—Monk Tidmore, the linotype operator, brings in one—a believe it or not story. He says he received a letter from his brother, Chester Tidmore, who works for the T. C. I. in Birmingham, and that he told him his boss called him into his office that day and handed him twenty dollars. The young man asked him what that was for, and the boss told him that when he (Chester) was so ill with pneumonia several months ago and all hope of his recovery had been given up, that the boys around the plant made up the twenty dollars to buy flowers to put on his grave, and that it was less trouble to give it to him than it was to hunt up the contributors and return the money.—Greensboro Watchman.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Some fishermen on the coast of North Carolina saw a whale that had drifted ashore and thinking that it was dead they anchored their launch and soon had the carcass of the whale securely tied to their boat. In the swells that came in the boatmen were soon able to drag the big fish into deep water. They had gone some distance toward the market place of their find when all at once the fish seemed to come to life and made a dash for the deep sea, carrying the boat along with terrific speed. The men saw their danger and after a mile or two of fash riding they cut the rope and let the monster go back to his own home. Many a young person discovers what is thought to be a treasure in the way of happiness and pleasure and links on to those things to make them his own. Soon what is thought to be harmless turns into a living reality and they make a dash for ruin, carrying the persons into danger. When you find that you have a habit that is carrying you out into the deep of sin, better cut loose from it.

A beautiful girl of ten stood by the chair of her mother and related what she had done at school that day. She had been the good Samaritan to a poor child sharing her lunch and befriending her in other ways. After she had related her story there was silence in the room. In a moment the child broke the silence with this deserved rebuke to her mother: "Mother, I often do wrong and you never fail to scold me. This time I know that I did right and you won't say a word." I chuckled on the inside as the mother came to herself and then made an effort to satisfy the longing of her beautiful daughter. The most of us are ready to condemn the wrong, but not often are we willing to say kind things when the right is done. First commend the good and then con-

And it came to pass that two plows were made from the same pig iron. In the course of a few weeks one plow was sold to a farmer and he carried it to his home and with it he turned the soil. The other plow was placed on the shelf in the hardware store. Soon it was covered over with rust. In mid-summer the farmer walked into the store with a bright shiny plow in his hand and addressed the clerk: "Some months ago I bought this plow from you. It is now worn out and I want another just like it." The clerk took it and went to the shelf where its mate was. The rusty plow on seeing its shiny mate, said: "How is it that you are so bright and I am so rusty?" The plow in service had remained bright, while the other plow in ease had become rusty and ugly. Verily, verily, I say unto you, the sacrificial life is the beautiful life. Idleness and ease will rust you out.

We arrived in Colorado Springs after sunset. The next morning I was out on the streets at sunrise that I might have a view of Pike's Peak. I looked and looked but could see nothing but rising mist of the early morning. Along came an early traveler and to him I said: "Sir, I am looking for Pike's Peak; can you show it to me." The man glanced up and then pointing toward the peak, he replied: "You have been looking too low—look high and you shall see it." Sure enough, I had just been looking among the broken, drifing mist. I looked up higher and there I saw the snow-capped peaks, lifting themselves in far away grandeur. You complain that you cannot see God, then lift up your eyes and look higher. Lift up thine eyes unto the hills, yea, and above the hills, and there you can see God.

The boat was crossing the stormy bay when something went wrong with the engine and it suddenly stopped. The blowing wind soon had us in great danger. A passenger rushed to the captain saying, "Captain, are we in danger " "Madam," replied the captain, "we must trust in God." Then the frantic woman started to wailing and I heard her say, "Oh, how bad. The captain says we have got to trust in God." There are more folks than one woman in this world who will trust everything except God.

Headache, Bad Breath Tell of More to Come

Just as Paul Revere's famous ride warned of the Redcoats' coming, so Nature's messengers — headaches, biliousness, bad breath—often warn of faulty elimination.

Neglecting these signs may cause a host of constipation's discomforts: sour stomach, belching; no appetite or energy; mental dullness.

It's so easy to wake up your lazy insides. Just take spicy, all vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT. Its unusual help comes from its principal ingredient—an intestinal tonic-laxative which imparts tone to lazy bowel muscles.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

MEMORY COURSE IN 1,000 LESSONS

THE German psychologist, Ebbinghaus, a careful, scholarly observer of the workings of the human mind, has said that we forget 90 per cent of what we learn within 24 hours. From your own experience you know that what he says is true.

The business man, noting this, understands why he must advertise, not occasionally nor sporadically, but all the time. It's the only way he can be of the greatest service to his customers.

His advertising reminds us of him and of the things he sells, and though we may forget him and those things between times, every advertisement he publishes renews the impression and creates recognition of his business.

Charles Roth

His problem is to find the most economical way of reminding us that it is to our advantage to trade with him.

He discovers soon that nothing is so economical a medium for this purpose as the newspaper. There he advertises. We read. Both he and ourselves benefit by his repeated advertising.

He benefits in the obvious way, by winning us as steady customers. We benefit in an equally obvious way, by finding a man whom we can trust and from whom we can buy all the many things we need to make our lives more interesting and complete.

Advertising is the news of business. Often that news is of far more importance to us than any other news in the paper.

For example, if a woman needs a new coat and scans the advertisements to see what is being offered, the business news she reads is of far greater moment in her life right then than the story on page one of a war in Asia Minor or of an oil field fire in Texas.

Stripped of all glamor and mystery advertising amounts to nothing more exciting than this: telling people of a place where they can get what they need to make life possible or endurable or lively or enjoyable at the most satisfactory and economical basis.

The advertiser who keeps telling the story of his advantages naturally gets the bulk of the trade, because, as you have just learned, we all forget rapidly and must be reminded continually if we are to act.

When advertising is carried on for a long enough time, the name of the man and his product become a part of the daily life of millions of households, respected, revered things and names, almost as close to us as friends or members of our own family.

Pleasant memories were revived the other day when Delbert Taylor visited Camp SCS-7, Clanton, Alabama and went out to visit his old crew in the field.

Taylor was one of the many men who has benefited from his work in the C.C.C. and was sorry to leave and that he was proud of having served.

Now employed by Wood Preserving Corporation, in Montgomery, Alabama, Taylor is certain to please his employers and they are to be congratulated on giving this young man an opportunity.

CONCRETE

You don't have to worry about the safety of a properly designed, reinforced concrete building. It stands secure against fires, tornadoes, explosions and even earthquakes.

And no wonder! Walls, frame and floors are a monolith of concrete and embedded steel bars. Left In Clanton

Everybody who is going anywhere stops in Clanton: First, because it is the "busiest little city in the South" and second, because everybody is hungry and thirsty when they get to Clanton, (if you don't believe it, ask 'em).

Three couples, travelling en masse in a coupe, stopped in Clanton the other night for refreshments, (which was perfectly natural), and . . . but listen to the Age-Herald police reporter tell the story in his "After Midnight feature:

"The night men had just poured coffee for the nightly treat.

"Incidentally, Radio Operator Tommy Humphreys' coffee is good, now that he has had some practice. The cake Sergt. Marcus Hancock had brought from home was excellent. And Sergt. Marcus Hancock had brought some especially rich, fresh cream (he has a cow, which, it is said, is an exceptionally good bovine).

„However, to go on—the group had about finished coffee and cake to keep their wits sharp, when five young persons came in. Three were girls and two boys.

" 'Sergeant," began one, "we thought you might help us."

" 'What's wrong," asked the sergeant. "Somebody steal your car?"

" 'No. You see, it's like this. We were six when we started, but now we are only five."

"Tommy choked on his cake and the p. r. strangled on his coffee.

" 'We started from Montgomery, and stopped in Clanton for refreshments," continued the youth.

" 'Now that we're here, we notice there is one missing."

A sergeant called the sheriff at Clanton, and, sure enough, they found a young man at the bus station inquiring about buses to Birmingham.

" 'You see," put in a girl without an escort, "everybody kept on talking till it seemed everybody was there. Anyway, John never did talk much, and he was sort of hidden in the luggage."

Health Department Sets Up Prenatal Clinics

Regular prenatal clinics to be held monthly is the latest addition to the many health services now being rendered in Chilton County by the local Health Department, it was announced this week by the County Health Officer. Local private physicians will conduct the clinics in the Health Office in Clanton and in the branch offices out in the County and will be paid for their services by a fund made available by the State Health Department from the Children's Bureau in Washington.

The Health Department is being assisted," Dr. Sturkie stated, "in equipping the clinic by local clubs and religious groups. Members of the Methodist Woman's Missionary Society have pledged contributions to this most worthy cause, according to Mrs. J. E. Edgar, president of the Society."

Describing this work that will be done in these clinics, Dr Sturkie made the following statement: "It will be the purpose of these clinics to provide medical supervision and prenatal care for the expectant mothers of Chilton County who do not have money with which to obtain this care from private physicians. There will be no responsibility on the part of the physician or the Health Department to deliver any of these patients. On admission each patient will be given a complete physical examination which will include weighing, measuring, inspection of the throat and teeth, examination of the heart and lungs, palpation of the abdomen, pelvic measurements, vaginal examination, determination of the blood pressure, examination of the urine, etc. Each patient will be urged to return to the clinic once a month. Advice regarding diet, rest, clothing, etc., will be given routinely. If any expectant mother develops any danger signs of certain abnormal conditions associated with pregnancy, she will be referred to her family physician for treatment.

All mothers who are to be delivered by midwives (those unable to employ a physician) and any who are referred by private physicians, will be eligible for admission to the clinics. It is probable that to begin with, clinics will be held only in Maplesville and Clanton. While this is merely a start in the direction of a program to reduce the number of lives lost in childbirth in Chilton County, we feel confident that we can through these clinics render an invaluable service to the mothers of Chilton County."

At one o'clock P.M. we assembled for the afternoon singing. Directors for the afternoon were Kermit Connell, B. L. Cobb, Howard Maddox, Lawrence Howard, Clarence Billingsley, Lewis Kilpatrick, P. M. "You're too Modest"

PERHAPS the customer who tells us that we're too modest is right, but we have preferred to speak modestly of our accomplishments, and confine our statements to fact.

We cannot dip into the public treasury for a subsidy (inviting as that prospect might seem) to pay for losses resulting from extravagant promises and claims. We must stand on our own feet, paying our way as we go, contributing our full share toward the upkeep of local, state and federal governments. By doing so, we can feel that the praise which comes our way perhaps is earned, particularly when it comes in such sincerely written letters as those from which we are quoting a few paragraphs in this advertisement.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY

"I see you as a business institution . . . endeavoring to serve people on business principles that have progressed this Nation, thus far, since its Independence. I am justly proud of the progress of both."
—V. R. Brice, Oneonta, Ala.

"Alabama Power Company has done more for our state than any other industry."
—J. Perry Gilliland, Albertville, Ala.

"An institution founded on sound business principles . . . but praised by thousands of Alabama citizens for the pa : it has played in the upbuilding and development of the State."
—Virginia Miller, 204 Williams St. Huntsville, Ala.

"Surely a corporation that can give service like this, care for public taxes and show a profit is entitled to the slogan 'A Private Agency for the Public Good.'"
—M. J. Swinson, 26 Grand Blvd., Mobile, Ala.

"Besides getting my money's worth in service, I feel that I am contributing my small bit to the development of a greater Alabama through the Alabama Power Co.
—F. L. Ferrell, Mentone, Ala.

"Alabama Power Company buys our coal and provides work for our men. Alabama Power Co. is our bread and butter."
—Mrs. G. Laurent, Coal Valley, Ala.

"I'm proud to be a contributor to the maintenance of Alabama Power Co.—a valuable and useful citizen in any community."
—Gordon Williams, 752 Chestnut St., Gadsden, Ala.

"You use your every facility—capital, and the experience, knowledge and training of all your working force, from executives down to the most humble employee, to maintain and improve your business and make it more serviceable and substantial."
—B. M. Guirl, 151 S. Catherine St., Mobile, Ala.

"My conclusions, based on my actual experience, are that Alabama Power Company maintains an organization whose first consideration is to see that its patrons get courteous, prompt and efficient service."
—Wm. H. Proctor, R.F.D., Bessemer

BLACKMAN FAMILY REUNION

The annual Blackman family reunion was held Sunday, June 11, at the home of Mr. Reese Blackman, in Clanton, honoring the eighty-second birthday of the mother, Mrs. L. R. Blackman. She has lived a long, very full and useful life and is most deserving of the love and honor heaped on her by her children, their families and her many, many friends. To know her is to love her.

In the forenoon friends exchanged greetings as each one arrived.

At the noon hour lunch was spread under the shade trees in the yard. Thanks for the bountiful food were offered by the Reverend Dennis Hopper, pastor of the Samaria Church.

Those present were: Mr. Lamar Blackman of Wilsonville; Mr. and Mrs. Reese Blackman of Clanton; Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Ward of Clanton; Mrs. B. B. Scott of Verbena; Mr. Ben Scott and family of Verbena; Mr. Cecil Blackman and family of Clanton; Mrs. O. L. Blackman and son of Clanton; Miss Vonnie Wood of Tallassee; Mrs. Neva Colley of Titus; Mr. Reese Colley and family of Wetumpka; the Rev. and Mrs. Dennis Hopper of Verbena;

Mr. Hugh Colley of Wetumpka was unable to attend so he sent a basket of beautiful gladioli to the honoree.

In the afternoon everyone chatted and exchanged old memories until time to go home.

As this is an annual affair Mrs. Blackman extends invitations to all her children, their families and her friends, to all the future gatherings.

Firestone
CHAMPION TIRES

FIRESTONE WINS 20th Consecutive Victory In Indianapolis 500-Mile Race

WILBUR SHAW,
the 1939 winner

On May 30th, Wilbur Shaw drove to his second victory in the 500-mile Indianapolis Race on Firestone Champion Tires at an average speed of 115.03 miles an hour. Champion race drivers, whose very lives and chances of victory depend on tire safety, know tire construction. That is why they select and buy Firestone Tires for their racing cars.

A merciless sun beat down upon the speedway as Wilbur Shaw drove to victory on Firestone Champion Tires. The blistering brick of the main stretch and the granite-hard surface of the turns and the back stretch put tire safety to the test supreme! Record after record was shattered. Speeds reached as high as 160 miles an hour on the straightaways, as 33 of the fastest drivers in the world waged a breath-taking battle for gold and glory.

Never before in all the history of the motor car have tires been put to such a torturous test. And never before has any tire so firmly established itself as a Champion in construction and performance, as well as in name. Here is dramatic proof of the extra strength which the revolutionary new Safety-Lock cord body provides in Firestone Champion Tires—of the extra protection against blowouts assured by the new and advanced Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process—of the extra mileage resulting from the tougher, wear-resisting rubber compounds in the sensational new Gear-Grip tread.

No longer can there be any question of which tire is safest. One tire—and only one—provides these exclusive safety construction features. One tire—and only one—has been on the winning cars at Indianapolis for 20 consecutive years. Motor car manufacturers enthusiastically adopted the Firestone Champion Tire for their 1939 models. Order your new car equipped with this amazing tire. Or drive in and let us equip your present car with a set of new Firestone Champion Tires, the one tire—and only one that is safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

LOCAL BALL TEAM WINS TWO, LOSES ONE DURING PAST WEEK

The Clanton-Maplesville Baseball Team registered two wins against one defeat last week in three hard fought games.

Wednesday afternoon the strong Buck Creek team from Siluria defeated the locals on the high school diamond 8-6.

The locals had their revenge Thursday at Siluria when they edged out a win of 5-4 after a gruelling fifteen-inning game.

Wallace Watkins, the dean of local mound artists, proved that he still can "fling 'em." He travelled the entire route and pitched a jam-up game allowing only 14 hits. Off the delivery of Amos and Thorp, Clanton collected 12 hits.

The best crowd of the season turned out Sunday afternoon at Maplesville to see the local team defeat an aggregation of All Stars from Alabama Mills, Thorsby, Prattville, and Independence. Alex Hayes was on the mound for Clanton-Maplesville.

Two good games are coming up next week and both promise to give the fans plenty of baseball. The strong team of the Birmingham Paper Company will play the locals at Maplesville at three P.M. Sunday.

The following Wednesday at Clanton a good game is in prospect between Cooks Beer of Montgomery and Clanton-Maplesvile.

Cleveland Driver Wields Bar Over 'Erring Fender'

CLEVELAND.—Louis Koszta had an automobile.

The automobile had a fender.

And the fender, according to Louis, had a habit—a very annoying one. It was always bumping into things.

So, one night after Louis had been partaking, Patrolman Lad Rousal came upon him wielding a crowbar over the erring fender.

"It's that fender again," Louis explained. "It just smacked into that car ahead of me. I can't do a thing about that fender. It's always hitting things."

Louis received a suspended $50 fine and 60-day sentence with the agreement that he would junk the 1932 auto and pay for $15 damage done by the fender with the habit.

PEACHES

tion, headed by Roy Roper, President; J. N. Dennis, Secretary-Treasurer and L. E. Diefenderfer, Sales Manager, has been successful to the extent that they are of the opinion that Chilton County can place upon the markets produce that will catch the eyes of the consumers, and will bring fair prices to the producers of the County. The growth of this organization is proof of this. The Association is of the firm belief that farmers of this County can realize a better livelihood from the production of other things that Chilton County soil will grow, than cotton.

It was with this in mind that the organizaion used its profits of several years to purchase this machine, and erect two warehouses that are roomy and durable. Besides this the Association purchased several hundred dollars worth of crates and other necessary equipment for handling this year's crop. In all, the News learned that the Association has invested approximately $3750.00 in preparing to move Chilton County grown produce to better markets.

The meeting Monday night was for the purpose of explaining to interested growers just what the Association is prepared to do, and what can be accomplished with their cooperation. Some of the peach growers present were as follows: A. B. Jones of Plantersville, Mrs. Jones and their daughter, Miss Arra B. Jones; W. C. Moore, Clanton Route 1; Charley Mitchell, Stanton Route 1; T. J. Headley, Clanton Route 6; A. D. Headley, Clanton Route 6; George Moore, Clanton Route 2; J. T. Walker, Stanton Route 1; William E. Patterson, Stanton Route 1; G. W. Walker, Stanton Route 1; John Deramus, Clanton and several others.

Several bushels of peaches were poured into the machine, and the result was evidence enough for anybody to see that this is an undertaking that will pay dividends. The fruit is carried up a slanting spillway made of whrling wooden cylinders that act to spread the peaches out and carry them to the brushers. Here they are brushed with many brushes, and on coming out on the opposite side they are minus the fuzz that is natural on all peaches. They look much brighter, as they continue to the graders, where the small culls are carried to one place and the good peaches are sorted into two or three grades, as desired. Wide belts carry them to their proper places. Here the packers get to work with the modern packing apparatus and bright shiny peaches, evenly and properly packed is the result. At present the Association plans only to pack the peaches in half-bushel crates.

After the machine inspection was over, County Agent J. W. Fant made several remarks about the purpose of the meeting and expressed his belief that the Association had made a wise move in the undertaking. Roy Roper, President of the Association, and L. E. Difenderfer, Sales Manager, talked at length to the gathering. These men pointed out that the peach crop of this County this season had been estimated at approximately 100 cars. Although growers of the county in the past several years have received fair prices for their fruit, they pointed out, with the increased production, the future markets must be found farther away from home, and the product must be prepared and packed properly, if a good price is to be received. An open discussion was held on the matter.

The possibility of furnishing local stores was discussed, and with the proper packing, belief was expressed that they, too, could be furnished peaches that will sell easily, at a good price.

Recently several growers motored to the peach-growing sections of Georgia, where they saw the manner in which Georgia peaches are handled. Unless organized and proper grading and packing of peaches is profitable, the growers of this section would not go to the trouble and expense of preparing their products. Mr. Fant, who made the trip with the group, stated that the crop in Georgia is short this season, and perhaps this would be a proper time for Chilton County to get started in the business on a larger scale.

A man who has had eighteen years experience in the proper packing of peaches, has been employed by the Association to supervise the packing this year. The Association has tentatively set the price of packing at 27 cents per bushel, including crates and marketing. Proceeds from this will go to pay for the machine and other expenses.

Mr. Diefenderfer stated that the Association had made arrangements to receive daily market reports on the fruit, and his opinion was that good markets could be found for every bushel of peaches.

For several months there has been some talk of one Central Marketing Agency in the County, and Mr. Fant expressed the hope that in the months to come Chilton County would be furnishing the northern markets with not only strawberries and peaches, but many other farm products that are being grown, and can be grown more extensively here. And it is a fact that the first step toward this end is the proper grading and packing of these products

Packing and marketing is expected to begin wihin the next few days, as soon as marketing varieties are ready. It was pointed out that each grower's peaches would be kept separate, and what each receives would depend on just what their fruit brings on the markets.

Local labor as far as possible will be used in preparing the peaches, it was learned. Several persons will be required to pack, arrange, etc., the fruit.

CUTTING AFFRAYS BRING DEATH TO ONE NEGRO; TWO WHITE MEN CUT

Two cutting affrays during the past week end near Clanton brought death to one negro, Eddie Jones, and sent two white men to the hospital for treatment, after they had been stabbed in a fight near the Clanton Cotton Mill.

Coleman Reid, young negro boy, was placed in the County jail Monday morning charged with murder, after he had fatally stabbed Eddie Jones, another older negro, during a fight near Lomax last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Tom Strain, in whose employ Sheriff W. G. Culp stated Reid was at the time of the cutting, and who resides in the Collins Chapel community, brought the negro youth to Clanton and turned him over to authorities Monday morning.

Johnnie Cummings was arrested early this week on three warrants sworn out by two men, Bill Dyson and Roland Morrison. Two of these warrants charged Johnnie Cummings with trespassing, and the other was for assault and battery in connection with the stabbing of two men, Johnnie Green and Roland Green, during an affray near the Cotton Mill last Sunday. Cummings is alleged to have stabbed the Green men, inflicting minor wounds. They were given treatment at a local hospital.

"ALABAMA ON PARADE" THEME OF FAIR

"Alabama on Parade
WHAT ALABAMA MAKES, MAKES ALABAMA
SELLING ALABAMA TO ALABAMIANS AND THE WORLD
ALABAMA STATE

The theme of the new Alabama State Fair—"Alabama On Parade" — was tastefully presented to approximately 120 business and industrial leaders today at a luncheon where everything served, even to the black pepper, came from an Alabama farm or factory.

The unique—and tasty-meal was served in the Windsor Room of the Thomason Jefferson Hotel with officials of the Alabama State Fair and Exhibit Association as hosts to members of the Board of Directors and Board of Advisors and about 50 other guests.

Even the menus listing the many Alabama food products served were printed on paper manufactured in Tuscaloosa from Alabama pulp.

J. Warren Leach, Vice President of the Fair Association, outlined plans for this year's fair, October 2-7, and urged the cooperation of business, industrial and agricultural leaders in helping the fair sponsors "sell Alabama to Alabamians and to the world."

"We want to make the State Fair one of the most valuable agencies in the State in advertising Alabama," Mr. Leach declared.

He also announced that the list of cash awards to winners in the agricultural, livestock and other competitive exhibits will total $25,520.00, or nearly twice the amount offered last year.

Mr. Leach outlined the type of improved exhibits that will occupy the new Agricultural Building, now nearing completion, and pointed out that "the raising of livestock will take a leading part in this new agricultural program."

Alabama industry will also be on parade, with the State of Alabama and the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce, as well as many industrial firms over the state, helping to fill the Industrial Building with interesting and educational displays.

Throughout every department of the fair, the "Alabama On Parade" theme will be emphasized with a view to impressing upon visitors that "what Alabama makes, makes Alabama."

Topping the all-Alabama menu that brought the thought home to guests at today's luncheon were juicy steaks from Sumter County, in the heart of the Black Belt beef cattle section.

Other home products on the table included Baldwin County cantaloupe, Houston County English peas, ice cream made from Dallas County dairy products, spiced peaches from Chilton County, milk, vinegar and fresh corn from Jefferson, Mobile tomatoes mixed in a salad with Jefferson County lettuce and thousand island dressing, butter from Montgomery, eggs from Tuscaloosa, lard from Calhoun, hot biscuits and rolls made from Lauderdale County wheat—and napkins made of cotton grown in Chambers County.

A STATEMENT FROM MAYOR C. FENN JONES

"I am very much gratified with the endorsement the city officials have received from the public in approving the ordinance recently enacted prohibiting speaking, preaching and loud noises on our streets. Especially do I appreciate the cooperation of the ministry by their willingness to obey the law.

"Several people in Clanton and from over the county spoke to me on the subject of our new rule, and each one heartily supported it. Several men from out in the country mentioned that on certain occasions and days when great crowds came to Clanton, and there was no preaching on the streets, men and women carelessly stand together on the sidewalks in such numbers to talk, completely close the walk, and force those who wish to pass on, to go out in the street, and it was suggested to me by men from out in the county that I endeavor to correct this monopoly of the sidewalks I personally know this to be true for I have gone to the street myself to get quickly by those very interested in a conversation while standing on the walk.

"In compliance with the request of these men, I, as Mayor, respectfully ask the public to please not close the sidewalks in that manner. If you wish to engage in conversation on the sidewalks, kindly stand to either side of the walk so others may use the walk to go places.

"I am deeply grateful to the people of Clanton and the people throughout the county, for your splendid support in my efforts to give our growing city all the improvements and regulation that is needed, and is of benefit to every person whether a resident of Clanton or not. I ask your continued help and encouragement in my endeavor to make a real city out of Clanton. This appeal is to all the people of the county.

"Respectfully,

"C. FENN JONES, Mayor."

HEAVY RAINS CAUSE DAMAGE TO CROPS

DAMAGE IN COUNTY NOT GREAT, HOWEVER, IF FUTURE WEATHER FAVORABLE

Chilton farmers this week began the task of clearing their crops of the grass that has appeared like magic in large quantities during the past month or more of heavy rains, and began making check-ups of the damage wrought due to the excessive downpours.

Fair skies greeted the farmers at the beginning of this wek, and a hot sun, which, if continues to beam down incessantly, might add to the damage wrought by the rains.

County Agent J. W. Fant stated Tuesday that if farmers of the County were allowed to work their crops for several days without interruption, they would probably be able to rid them of the grass, and stir the soil properly, allowing them to go forward. The cotton crop has suffered no great damage, Mr. Fant estimated, especially where the farmers had their acreage in good condition before the rains began. Lowland corn has suffered considerably, but Mr. Fant stated that the county oat crop was perhaps the worst damaged. It is estimated that the larger part of this crop was ruined—the grain having rotted under the continued fall of water.

The rains caused a late start of the hay crops, but the County Agent voiced the opinion that there was yet time to plant and produce a number of varieties. There is also yet time to plant and cultivate a late crop of corn, Mr. Fant pointed out.

A fear is prevalent that an extended drouth of several days with hot sunshine will cause the crops to go down faster than if intermittent rains fall. It is, however, hard to really estimate the damage the past rainy weeks have, or will yet produce to the crops of this county.

AN ATTRACTIVE MAP

Congratulation to Chris Sherlock on the beautiful "Official Highway Map of Alabama" he has prepared for distribution. If any state has a better looking, feeling, informing and friend-making map, we have not been told. A feature of Alabama's is the prominence given the old Great Seal of the state on its cover, the way the words "Here We Rest" stand forth in a serenity which must surely attract tourists from a tortured and unresting world. From the beginning we have saluted Chris Sherlock as a scientist in the public service, and now we know that his science includes psychology.—John Temple Graves II in Age-Herald.

We heartily agree with everything Mr. Graves says about this attractive piece of enticing literature. What we can't understand is: Why the beautiful scenic map on the cover does not show a paved highway between Clanton and Selma.

THAT UNIVERSITY HIGHWAY

Chris Sherlock, Jr., the amiable and genial highway commissioner for the state, was over in West Alabama the other day, and one of his main missions was to confer with the officials of Bibb County. As a result of his conference over there, the state has reached an understanding with Bibb County for the paving of the University, or Tuscaloosa, Highway, all the way through the county. No definite agreement has been entered into, but the understanding has been reached, and it looks as though the contract-letting stage will be reached within a few months.

The University Highway touches five counties—Tuscaloosa, Bibb, Chilton, Autauga and Montgomery—and Bibb County has the longest stretch of the lot, thus making the paving of the road through that county highly important. The Tuscaloosa County stretch will probably be equally well advanced within a few weeks, and Autauga, whose mileage is second only to that of Bibb, has gone even farther. The Montgomery link is already paved, and thus we have only Chilton in a highly dubious state.

The Chilton link of the highway would go through Maplesville and not the county seat, Clanton, and for that reason there has been a decided coldness toward the highway in some parts of Chilton. We feel, however, that Chilton County will want to do the right thing, and that it will never consent to stand in the way of a project as important as the Montgomery-Tuscaloosa Highway. In fact, we will not be surprised if a pledge of cooperation by that county is not also forthcoming in a short while.

The University Highway is generally accepted by our state officials as the most important undeveloped highway in Alabama, and nobody has been more active in its behalf than Mr. Sherlock. We in West Alabama are highly grateful for the attention he has shown the road and for the work he has done in its behalf.—Tuscaloosa News

COTTON BAGGING AVAILABLE

P. O. Davis, director of the Alabama Extension Service, says a recent Amendment to the cotton bagging program of the United State Department of Agriculture makes it possible for farmers to obtain cotton bagging at low cost for the 1939 crop.

We are not familiar with the manner in which this bagging is to be made available at low cost, but if those interested in the price of cotton do not avail themselves of the opportunity to use cotton bagging instead of jute, even if the price should be higher, they will have no right to expect further help from the public in connection with the cotton situation.

He who wants help from others must first help himself to the very best of his ability, and wrapping his bale of cotton in cotton bagging is about the most sensible way to begin that we can think of.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

In the South of England a miller removed his grindstone and after examination he declared that it was of no value and dumped it aside in a pile of rubbish. Up through the hole in the center of the rock shot a little oak tree. It grew until it filled the hole and lifted the rock a foot or more from the ground. Passers-by looked on and wondered if the stone would burst asunder, or if the tree would die. At length a storm came and tried every fiber of the oak and the rock burst. The oak lived in spite of the rock that had encircled it. Many a time have we seen where environment or home hereditary influences have encircled an individual, and the problem was as to whether the man would master or be mastered. In a testing moment we do not have long to wait. Blessed is that man who has internal strength to break the bands that bind.

Doctors admit that one way to cure a sick patient sometimes is to advise certain forms and regulations of exercise. You can put the finest horse you know in a stable for months without exercise and he will die. A rotund and pompous parishioner said to the new pastor: "I hope, Reverend, that you will feed the sheep." The pastor glanced at the man's size and said: "It isn't food they need, it is exercise." That is a fact, well stated. So far as the spiritual food for church members is concerned, they have it good and strong. They feast and exercise little and they develop head and heart trouble The wise physician of souls might well prescribe for many soul-sick patients the exercise cure.

Out in front of my cottage on St. Andrews Bay the government has placed a buoy, fastening it securely to a rock on the bottom of the bay. The waves splash around it, but it floats serenely in its appointed place. The tide rises and falls; it is still there. High waves roll near to cover the buoy over, but it rides them all. A furious tempest may beat it under for a moment, but it immediately rises to the surface and is in its place again. What a picture of the conquering life. God has placed us where we are if we have given Him full sway over our lives and in this place we may expect waves as well as calm seas. If we are anchored in Him we will ride them all and forever be in our place.

Have you ever read Bunyan's Pilgrim Progress? If so, you will recall the description that the author makes of a man who built the bars of sin around himself, thinking all the time that when he saw fit that he would break those bars and walk out a free man. At last the man looked about himself and saw that he was within prison walls. He seized the bars that he had made and exerted all of his strength to break them down, but all in vain. What could he do. He cried for help but no one could help him. There he was a helpless prisoner, a victim of his own folly. Sinner man, listen to me—you think that you can build all around your life the bars of sin and when you choose you can break them at will, but not so. The force of habit turns those bars into heavy steel and you will find out that you are in a prison and that you are a helpless slave to your habits.

One night I dreamed that I stood in a crowded church. The great audience was moved in worship. Songs were sung and the Word of God was read. I heard the leader say as he read, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh," and I felt that Jesus was just behind me. I wanted to see Him and yet I dared not turn for fear that the bubble might burst. More and more I felt the Divine presence of my Lord and after some time I dreamed that I ventured to glance behind that I might see the shining face. Imagine my surprise when I saw nothing but the ordinary face of an ordinary human being. He showed no signs of being unusual. Just a face that looked like other men's faces. Do you want to see Jesus? Stop looking for Him with a halo about His head. If you look you can see Him in all faces. He is to your right and to your left. He is in front and behind you. When you draw near to God you can see Jesus everywhere. Blessed are your eyes if you can see.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

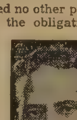
By CHARLES B. ROTH

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF SUCCESS

WE OFTEN say when we discuss various things we acquire that it isn't the original cost that counts. It is the upkeep. This is particularly true of success.

The fact is that there is a responsibility of success which failure or mediocrity never knows. The man who is successful, who achieves in whatever line he may enter, has an obligation and a responsibility which requires that he continue to do his very best.

Especially is this true of business. To make a brief success of a business isn't hard. To build a lasting success requires close application and a fine sense of the obligation which success implies and demands.



Charles Roth

If advertising served no other purpose than to create the obligation of success it would perform a useful social and economic act, for advertising holds up this obligation of success and demands that it be observed constantly.

Whenever a manufacturer or a merchant begins to advertise he sets self-imposed standards on himself. By these standards do others judge him. By these standards do they also classify him.

The Human Side Of Agricultural Depression

—o—

T. J. Woofter, Jr., Chief of the Rural Survey Section of WPA, in an address before Summer School students at Alabama College, said:

"These underlying causes of farm poverty have been developing a long time and were only exaggerated by the depression. What is necessary is a program of reconstruction of rural life which will prevent the recurrence of such distress. This is the problem on which the federal government spent $3,500,000,000 from 1931 through 1937, trying to repair in a few years the damage done over the past 50 years.

"Farms produce only 9 per cent of the nation's income, he pointed out, yet farm families are charged with rearing and educating 31 per cent of the nation's children. Thus rural areas are under severe strain to support the necessary educational, public health and welfare services, he added.

"Agricultural opportunity does not expand rapidly enough to afford employment for all of the new generations," Woofter continued. "The alternative of migration was cut off by the depression, leaving perplexed youth no way of attaching themselves to the productive national economy. Many of them 'took to the road,' and many more stayed as unneeded and unpaid workers in the parental household. Since youth is the age of migration, this is the essence of the youth problem which has drawn so much recent attention."

How Alabama Drownings Happen

—o—

Only about one-fouth of all deaths from drowning in Alabama in 1937 occurred among those who were swimming, according to a special study of drowning deaths by the beaureau of vital statistics of the State Department of Health.

Deaths among swimmers totaled only 37 out of a total of 146 attributed to drowning during the year. Overturning boats were responsible for 31 drowning deaths, while falls from boats caused five. Those who fell into the water, and were drowned, exclusive of those falling from boats, numbered 26. Nine persons lost their lives while wading and playing in the water and six persons were drowned when motor vehicles ran off bridges or ferries, or overturned near streams, or met with similar accidents. Falls into wells caused three persons to be drowned. Other types of accidents were responsible for 17 drowning deaths, while the exact natures of accidents responsible for 12 other drowning certificates—Montgomery Advertiser.

Texas Cattle Come To Alabama

—o—

"Editor, Chilton County News:

"We hear so much about the cattle country in the West and often-times accept as a fact the statement that the high and dry plains of the West are the natural cattle country and that South Alabama is cattle country only as a retreat from the losses from cotton. Not to make a comparison at all but to state the conditions that prevail there and the conditions that prevail here, just this week a carload of cows and calves passed through Montgomery enroute from Southwest Texas to East Alabama. Every cow and calf had plenty of good breeding and might at some time, have been of high quality but due to the severe drouth and the resultant drying up of streams, wells and water holes, the entire lot was barely strong enough to make the trip. Add to this the report that the cattlemen of the West are having to burn the needles off the prickly pears for their cattle to eat in order to stay alive.

"Just yesterday, in company with the Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, I made a trip through Montgomery, Butler, Conecuh, Escambia, Monroe, Clarke, Wilcox and Dallas Counties. Cattle could be seen in every direction and practically every head of them were in wonderful condition.

"Generally speaking, there was little or no breeding in evidence in the cattle that we saw in contrast with the load of cows and calves from the Southwest, but that is no fault of the cattle or the country they are owned in. It is due to the careless breeding practice of the owners.

"Alabama is making great strides in the cattle business and the use of purebred sires is being adopted by every sound-thinking cattleman. We have the country, climate, rainfall and market. In fact, everything that it takes to be the greatest cattle country in the United States.—Tom McCord.

CHEVROLET
"THE BEST PERFORMER EVER BUILT!"
Owners say it - Sales prove it
Count acceleration and hill-climbing... count riding comfort and reliability... count economy of gas, oil, tires and upkeep... Owners say it—sales prove it—"Chevrolet is the best performer ever built!"

They say Chevrolet is "the best performer ever built" because it out-accelerates, out-climbs, out-performs all other economy cars—bar none! Because it represents the highest standard of smooth, safe, steady riding and day-in-and-day-out dependability. Because it gives all these results at lower cost.

But riding beats reading! So drive this fleet, powerful Chevrolet and prove to yourself what Chevrolet sales prove to the world, that owners are right when they say it's "the best performer ever built."

Clanton Methodist Church

Church School 9:45 A.M. each Sunday. L. J. Stewart, General Superintendent.

Morning worship, 11:00 A.M. Sermon by the Pastor.

Young Peoples' meeting, 7:00 P.M. Meeting to be in the basement

Evening worship, 7:30 P.M. Sermon by the Pastor

When one is happiest one's feelings are hard to describe in words.

When one is saddest there is not a word strong enough to express that emotion. Neither are there words good enough or strong enough to tell how good was our Pastor's message last Sunday. Words cannot be found to convince an absent one just how much he or she missed by not hearing the message.

Listen friends we have a good preacher God is speaking wondrous things through him. God is giving us a chance to hear His message through our Pastor. There is danger and death in not coming to Church and hearing these messages. May the words of God Himself in Matthew 17:5 and Mark 9:7, "This is my beloved Son, hear ye Him" ring loudly in our ears and souls. May we heed and to our own members, our friends and our own selves shout until the words are obeyed, "Hear ye Him."

The attendance at Church School generally was better last Sunday than in quite a while. We hope and we urge those who are not growing to work and pray as you work, bringing many to Church School.

Our basement is a fine place to get away from the summer heat. Our evening service was held there last Sunday and will be next Sunday evening. Come, worship, listen and enjoy the service without feeling the oppressiveness of a high summer's temperature.

L. & N. Hands Out Some Figures

To earn enough revenue to buy one typewriter the L. & N Railroad must haul 11,552 tons of average freight one mile; to take enough money to buy a coal scoop it has to haul 123 tons of freight one mile. The purchase of one lead pencil consumes the revenue earned by hauling 1,887 pounds of freight a mile, and the cost of one waybill equals the amount the railroad earns for transporting 541 pounds of average freight one mile.

These examples, and others, are published by L. & N. president James B. Hill in the June L. & N. Employes' Magazine, with a plea to employes to renew their efforts to eliminate wasteful use of supplies. He points out that a saving of even one per cent in the L. & N.'s annual supply bill of $15,850,000 would amount to $158,500.

AUTOMOBILE TAX DIVERSION MAY FACE VOTERS AGAIN

Birmingham, Ala.—Encouraged by the advances being made in five other states by the forces opposing the diversion of motor vehicle revenues, organizations who unsuccessfully sought passage of a Constitutional Amendment in Alabama that would outlaw the diversion of such taxes, are considering again placing the measure before the people.

This statement was made today by Alex C. Montgomery, Vice-President of the Alabama Motorists Association, who led the fight for adoption of the amondment at the general election last November.

Mr. Montgomery said that advices reaching him from the American Automobile Association indicated that the forces of diversion were gaining strength throughout the nation.

"Anti-diversion constitutional amendments were victorious in the legislatures of five states: Idaho, Iowa, Nevada, South Dakota and Wisconsin," said Mr. Montgomery. "This is the second time that Nevada's proposed amendment has been approved by the legislature and it will go to the people for ratification at the next general election, as will the amendment of Idaho and South Dakota. The amendments of Iowa and Wisconsin must be approved again, by the next Legislature, before they are submitted to the voters.

"Last fall, 2,451,231 votes were cast in favor of constitutional Amendments prohibiting misuse of road funds as compared with 1,367,986 objecting votes. Through this overwhelming affirmation, California, Michigan, and New Hampshire augumented the group of states, theretofore composed of Colorado, Kansas, Minnesota and Missouri which have amended their constitutions to guarantee highway use of all motor tax receipts. If this majority vote of nearly 2 to 1 represents general opinion on the subject and it is believed that it does, the proposed amendments of Idaho, Nevada and South Dakota will experience no difficulty in being ratified at the polls.

Thus, they will become full-fledged constitutional safeguards of highway funds and the total of states which have adopted this method of earmarking vehicle revenue will be swelled to ten.

"Bills proposing similar constitutional amendments are pending in the legislatures of seven other states: Connecticut, Deleware, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Texas. North Dakota re-enacted its anti-diversion statute and a bill proposing a similar statute is still alive in Wisconsin.

Answers To The Moth Questio

By Katharine Fisher

Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

Here are our answers to the questions thousands of women ha asked us about moths, and how to defeat them. They are answers whi have been thoroughly checked for accuracy.

Q. Do flying moths eat holes in wools?

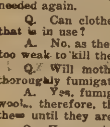
A. No, it is the larvae or little white worms that hatch out of t eggs laid by the flying moths that do the damage. The eggs hatch in few days in comfortably warm places, so wools left undisturbed whe moths can get at them may soon be damaged.

Q. How can winter clothing be protected from moth damage duri the summer?

A. It can be mothproofed, or fumigated or sprayed with an inse spray, and stored where moths cannot possibly reach it. Or it may stored in a cedar chest. Good laundering and dry cleaning leave woo free from moths. If they are stored at once where moths cannot rea them, they will be protected against damage.

Q. How is clothing mothproofed?

A. By spraying it with a mothproofing solution which makes distasteful and inedible to moths. First brush the clothing well, the spray it very thoroughly. Do not overlook a spot, and don't forget sea and folds, the under surface of collars, under button and in pockets. Every thread must be covered. Bla kets, sweaters and other easily washable wools ca be immersed (or rinsed) in a solution of a mothproo ing compound available for that purpose. Mothproofe clothing need not be stored out of the reach of moth It may hang in a closet or lie in a drawer or on a shel



KATHARINE FISHER
Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

Q. How are wools fumigated?

A. By the use of a fumigant. Fumigants ar usually either paradichlorobenzene or naphthalene and are sold as such or under brand names. They giv off fumes that kill moths at all stages, provided th fumes are strong enough and the moths are expose to the fumes long enough. This can only be done wel if plenty of fumigant is used and if the fumes ar inclosed in a space that is comfortably warm an practically air-tight.

Q. Can wools be protected well by fumigating them in dress drawers?

A. Not unless they are sprinkled liberally with the fumigant an at once wrapped closely and sealed in strong paper to keep the fume from escaping. Wrapped in this way they may also be laid on shelve

Q. Can wools be fumigated in closets?

A. Yes, if the closet adjoins a room that is comfortably warm Clean the closet, then sprinkle the fumigant on shelves and floor, usin a pound of fumigant for a small closet 2' x 2' x 7' (28 cubic ft.) or 2¼ lbs. for a closet 3' x 3' x 7' (63 cubic ft.) and so on. Now hang up th clothing to be fumigated and seal the closet door with gummed pape or the tape used by fumigators. Leave the clothes there until they ar needed again.

Q. Can clothes be fumigated by hanging a fumigant in a clos that is in use?

A. No, as the fumes escape when the door is opened and so becom too weak to kill the moths.

Q. Will moths attack clothing and other wools that have bee thoroughly fumigated?

A. Yes, fumigation does not mothproof wools. In fumigatin an wools, therefore, they must be left stored where moths cannot get a them until they are going to be used again.

Q. How can insect sprays protect wools from moth damage?

A. These sprays kill the moths, or their eggs or larvae when they come in contact with them. The spraying, like the fumigation, must be done very thoroughly. They do not mothproof the wool; therefore the spraying must be repeated regularly if moths are about, or the wools, after being sprayed, must be stored at once where moths can't get at them.

Perfect Balance of Pectin, Acid and Sugar Makes Your Jelly Jell

THE famous trio of pectin, acid, and sugar—that's the "eternal triangle" for jellymakers! Unless your fruit juice contains just the right proportion of each one the jelly won't jell . . . and runny spreads are something that no one wants around the house in this day and age.

New-fashioned, short-boil recipes—with the required pectin added directly to the fruit juice—present the "eternal triangle" in its most simplified form. These recipes are foolproof, give you half-again more glasses, and the whole cooking job is finished just fifteen minutes after preparing the fruit.

Try the modern kind of ripe peach jelly this very day—and you'll vote its flavor a true twin to that of sun-ripened fruit in the old home orchard. Follow directions exactly, for they were developed for peaches and no other fruit:

RIPE PEACH JELLY

(Makes about 6 medium glasses)

2½ cups juice
3½ cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare juice, pit and crush thoroughly (do not peel) about 2½ pounds fully ripe peaches. Add 1 cup water, bring to a boil and simmer, covered, 10 minutes. (Add a few crushed peach-pit meats to fruit during cooking.) Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. (If there is a slight shortage of juice, add small amount of water to pulp in jelly cloth and squeeze again.)

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure juice into a 3- to 4-quart saucepan.

Place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once.

RIPE SOUR CHERRY AND PEACH JAM

4 cups prepared fruit
7 cups sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, stem and pit about 1¼ pounds fully ripe sour cherries; crush thoroughly or grind. Add ¼ cup water, bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 15 minutes. Peel about 1½ pounds fully ripe peaches; pit and grind or chop very fine. Combine fruits.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, filling up last cup with water if necessary. Mix well.

Bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes.

Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

More Than Towns Appreciate, Says Kiwanian Local Newspapers Offer Their Communities

Kiwanis Convention Discusses Crime, Traffic Safety, Increased Use Of Narcotics

Boston — "The most unsuccessful newspaper in the United States does more for the support of its community than the finest community ever does for the support of its newspaper!"

Such was the statement made today by Karl Lehmann, of Tavares, Fla., publicity chairman for Kiwanis International, to convention delegates. He explained that the value of Kiwanis news is to educate a community in the service organization's civic and welfare programs.

"The newspaper," he said, "reflects all community life, religious, educational and civic. Therefore the average citizen is indebted to his newspaper which constantly brings to him the news of local, state, national and international affairs.

Free Space

"Every civic, religious and educational group in a city is in the habit of coming to the newspaper publisher, asking him to give away free the one commodity he has for sale. This is space! We would ask of no other form of business in our community to give away free that which gives a livelihood. We would not go into a bakery and ask the baker to give us a loaf of his bread. Yet the newspaper owner is asked to give away the space he has to sell; perhaps not realizing that this commodity, like any other merchandise, costs money to produce," he said.

Kiwanis does not need to sell itself to its own members nor does it need to seek publicity to glorify its work, Mr. Lehmann estimated. Kiwanis publicity must be really educational.

North Alabama Farmers To Supply Seed Irish Potatoes

Farmers in seven north Alabama counties are entering with enthusiasm a program of the Alabama Extension Service to grow a fall crop of Irish potatoes to furnish seed for South Alabama next spring. Four years of experiments have shown that fall-grown north Alabama potatoes give a comparable yield with northern state potatoes when planted in South Alabama. If the plan succeeds the million or more dollars spent for seed in South Alabama will go to the up-state growers instead of the northern and midwestern

GROUP ENJOY TWO DAYS CAMP ON COOSA RIVER RECENTLY

Rev. and Mrs. Oscar A. Davis, Mrs. Reese G. Mullins and fifteen girls enjoyed two days and one night at Lowe's Camp.

We left Tuesday morning at nine o'clock and arrived at camp around ten o'clock. All were anxious to go in swimming and we were free to do any form of recreation so most of us chose swimming. We ate a picnic lunch with plenty of sandwiches, cake and lemonade. After lunch we gathered in front of our cabin under the cool trees for our Mission Study. Mrs. Davis taught this Study. Several passed their maiden tests.

Following our study we went in swimming. Around six o'clock we had vespers in our cabin. Mrs. Davis had charge of this and it meant a great deal to all of us.

Supper was enjoyed by all even if it did take a long time to prepare. We are grateful for Mr. and Mrs. Lowe's help.

After our campfire service we all went to bed for a good night's rest.

Wednesday morning several girls found it impossible to stay in bed. We went boat riding and then swimming. We swam until we thought it was time to cook Brother Davis' and Mr. Mullins' breakfast as they were our guests.

After breakfast we had morning watch conducted by Mrs. Davis. Following an hour of recreation we finished the study of our manual. We then ate a very delicious lunch and made ready to go home, after a delightful time together.

DIXON ASKS AID FOR AMENDMENTS

Stresses Fact Proposed Changes Will Improve State Conditions

MONTGOMERY.— Appealing directly to the people for support of five constitutional amendments up for ratification in a special election July 11, Governor Frank Dixon this week emphasized that all of the proposals are linked with the broad program to improve governmental conditions in Alabama.

Assurances of support came from daily newspaper editors and officials of the Alabama Press Association with whom the governor discussed the amendments in his office one day last week. Earlier, the ratification campaign was given an important boost when several hundred delegates to the annual convention of the Alabama Sheriffs and Peace Officers Association at Mobile pledged active support of the amendments reforming the state's pardon and parole system and allowing defendants in criminal cases, except those charged with capital offenses, to plead guilty and begin serving sentences without awaiting Grand Jury indictment.

The five amendments would:

1. Authorize the Legislature to establish a modern, non-political pardon, parole and probation system, taking from the governor all power over pardons and paroles except the authority to commute or reprieve in death cases. This amendment was submitted to the people by the Legislature in a move to carry out Governor Dixon's campaign pledge to rid Alabama forever of the blight of the parole racket which has flourished in the past.

2. Provide for biennial, instead of quadrennial sessions of the Legislature. The governor pointed out that Alabama is the only state in the union in which the Legislature meets regularly only once every four years. He stressed the point that it is impossible to budget for a four-year period, and that in the past many special sessions have been necessary. By changing over to a system under which sessions would be held each two years, limited to 60 calendar days, plus an organization session of 10 calendar days, the legislative department's work could be handled with increased efficiency and dispatch, and at a huge saving to the taxpayers, he pointed out.

3. Authorize the Legislature to legalize the use of voting machines in counties desiring them. This amendment is purely permissive, and was submitted in order to circumvent constitutional restrictions which now make impossible the use of voting machines by two or three counties desiring to install them.

4. Permit investment of trust funds in securities guaranteed by federal agencies. Ratification of this proposal would enable the Legislature to make effective a plan for investment of trust funds in a manner fully protecting the public interest.

5. Allow felons, excepting those accused of capital crimes, to enter pleas of guilty in advance of Grand Jury action. This amendment would expedite the administration of justice and speed up the processes of courts throughout the state.

Governor Dixon and members of the Legislature carefully studied all of the proposed amendments prior to their submission, and convinced themselves that the proposals not only will make for better government in the state, but pave the way for additional economies.

The governor declared he had no doubt that all five amendments would carry by an overwhelming vote if the people of Alabama acquaint themselves with the provisions and purposes of each proposal. With the election only about three weeks away and no organized opposition having appeared, reports from over the state this week indicated a decisive vote of ratification for each amendment.

WESTERN AUTO'S THIRD ANNUAL FISHING CONTEST

Which Alabama fisherman will enter the biggest Black Bass this year in Western Auto's third annual, nationwide "Big Bass" Fishing Contest? What lucky "Isaak Walton" is going to walk off with that first prize of fishing tackle worth $50.00?

These are the questions that are being asked by local fishermen as they make ready their tackle for a try at the awards in the $4,400.00 fishing contest, sponsored by the local Western Auto Associate Store in cooperation with 1,200 other Western Auto Associate Stores and 200 Western Auto Stores in every state east of Colorado.

The contest, which began on May 15, is free, and open, without obligation, to any fisherman in Alabama—man, woman, boy or girl. Since each of the 37 states where the contest is being staged will have its own set of awards, all Alabama entrants will have an equal opportunity to capture one of the state's awards. They will be competing only with other Alabama fishermen. Everyone has a chance to win, and past contest records show that bass, weighing as little as 1 1-2 pounds, have taken first prize in some states, while 15-pounders or better, won in other localities.

Five valuable prizes will be given to winning Alabama fishermen at the close of the contest September 30. Similar prize awards will be made in all participating states—185 awards in all for the nation's fishermen. Four prizes in each state will be made up of selected high-grade, nationally-known, assorted fishing tackle. First prizes will be valued at $50.00, second prizes, $35.00; third, $20.00; and fourth, $15.00. In addition a silver trophy cup will be presented to the fisherman in each state who enters the largest small-mouth bass, whether a prize winner or not.

Free entry blanks are available at any Western Auto Store or Western Auto Associate Store. Complete instructions are included with the blanks. Those who expect to enter the competition are being urged to secure entry blanks immediately; so that the necessary contest information may be filled in at the time the catch is made, and the record of the catch witnessed according to contest rules.

The "Big Bass" contest is promoted each year by the Western Auto Supply Company to increase public interest in the sport of fishing and to add to the sport the spirit of widespread friendly competition. This year interest in the contest is expected to be increased greatly, since there is a large number of prizes of greater value being offered, and the contest is now recognized as a national event.

SAVE AGRICULTURAL ALABAMA

By HAYGOOD PATERSON
Commissioner of Agriculture

The Garden Clubs of Alabama have the long cherished dream of beautified highways. Outstanding is the work done by this organization in city beautiful movements and wherever there is a Garden Club a more beautiful community blossoms. Alabama is rapidly growing into a state of beauty. Outstanding gardens are developing over its length and breadth.

Nothing will help to develop our state faster than highway beautification. I mean a scheme of using suitable spots along our highways to establish colonies of our native plants to charm the passer-by with foliage, flower, fragrance and berry. Think of a highway in Spring with Jasmine, Dogwood, Redbud, Magnolia, Hawthorn, Hydrangea, Fringe Tree and countless other beauties of our woods flaunting their glory to the passing world. With our varied flora Alabama highways can be made the most beautiful in America.

But all of this can never be realized if Alabama does not have a stock law. Marauding cattle and hogs have no respect for beauty. The day we can take off the highways, the woodlands and the cultivated fields, the tramp of livestock and put them into pastures, then will Alabama make real progress in beautification, conservation and Agriculture.

I am interested in a state wide stock law because we need to advertise our possibilities to the world and demonstrate that we can raise everything in Alabama that is useful and beautiful. We need a stock law in Alabama because only when animals are put in pastures can our woodlands, comprising 66% of our land, be saved from fire and its pauperizing consequence. We need a stock law in Alabama because "turning out" of cattle is but part of the program of laying by and a year around profitable land use allots the tillable land to row crops, the woodland to forest products and the fenced pasture to domestic animals.

Years ago the cry was get rid of the scrub bull. I say that we should, as rapidly as possible, get rid of the scrub animal as such an animal represents neither progress nor profit.

May we not soon see the day when Alabama may have beautiful, animal free highways, well conserved woodlands, improved permanent pastures and busy farm lands. Then will our sons and daughters look upon our land and say it is good and by their efforts make Alabama flourish like a green tree beside the beautiful stream.

QUICK FREEZING MEANS MILLIONS FOR FARMERS

By Atticus Mullin, in The Montgomery Advertiser

A goal of 1,000,000 pounds of farmer raised pork for each county in Alabama with quick freezing plants to take care of it has been set tentatively by the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries, and Commissioner Paterson believes that it can be attained in time.

If the farmers of Alabama would raise 1,000,000 pounds of pork, process it and keep it for home consumption, they would retain more than $6,000,000 of Alabama money which now goes outside of the State for pork products.

The goal set by Commissioner Paterson would not begin to take care of all pork importations into the State but its realization would seriously curtail the heavy outgo of Alabama money for a product which can be raised as cheaply in Alabama as in any other States of the Nation and in one section of Alabama, the wire grass, pork can be made at a cost of less than 3 cents per pound, the lowest probably in the Nation at this time.

There would be no use for farmers to attempt to take care of the greater portion of the needs of Alabama for pork and pork products unless there were quick freezing plants available to them for storage. A careful survey of the cost of quick freezing plants has been made by experts connected with the Department of Agriculture assisted by power company experts and it has been found that a 100 locker storage and freezing plant can be constructed for as little at $3,500 not including the cost of the lot. An average plant of 200 storage bins would cost double the amount, $7,000.

In other States where quick freezing plants have been installed in farm communities, the result has been a money maker for the owner.

In nearly every instance the owner of such a plant has found after a year's operation that it was too small and additions had to be made to take care of the demands. As soon as the farmers found that they could be certain of storage space for their fresh meat, they began to kill more for home consumption, thus using up storage space and at the same time keeping their money at home.

The new storage method is different from the old in that meats are kept much colder than formerly. They are quickly frozen and kept that way until they are used up by the owner. There is no danger of loss from spoiling under the new system of quick freezing, Commissioner Paterson's experts have determined.

The department has tabulated cold storage plant information that it expects to be made available for every farm community in Alabama.

It is the idea of Commissioner Paterson that there should be a killing space on the grounds where the plant is located because expert killing of meat-animals goes a long way in making them more available as food and preventing spoilage.

Already the Dixon-Paterson dream of markets for farmers is coming true because they are being established already and it is expected that they will increase rapidly next year. And so it does not seem unreasonable to believe that in the near future or at least in the not too distant future, 1,000,000 pounds of pork per county will be achieved by the farmers.

Farmers can save a lot of "figgering" next year when the census taker comes around by keeping a record of his acreages and the yields, the number of livestock, etc., which he has this year.

Protection Of Milk Recommended

Grade A raw milk, as produced according to standards of the Alabama State Health Department, is highly recommended to Clanton milk consumers for its sanitary quality, according to the weekly bulletin of the local Health Department. Such milk is usually sold only in towns which have adopted the Standard Milk Ordinance. Clanton, however, has one dairy which on a voluntary basis meets health department requirements with respect to equipment and the method of handling milk. The situation in Clanton with respect to milk is considerably improved with one grade A dairy, according to the local Health Officer, but will not be satisfactory until there is established at least one more Grade A dairy.

"The greatest value in the grading of milk," said Dr. Sturkie, "lies probably in the fact that the dairyman who cooperates with the Health Department becomes health conscious and comes to understand the need for throwing every possible safeguard around the production of milk. By practice he learns the value of steam sterilizing his equipment, cooling his milk immediately after milking, seeing that the milkers' hands and the cows' udder are cleaned, etc.

"It is not easy for the lay person to conceive of the danger of drinking unprotected raw milk. To him milk which looks clean is clean. Little does he realize that the cleanest looking milk may teem with harmful disease producing germs. It cannot be claimed that Grade A milk is entirely free of germs, but it can be said that it is much less likely to transmit disease. My recommendation to the milk consumers of Clanton is patronize your local Grade A dairy and if your dairyman has not yet equipped himself to produce Grade A milk, urge him to do so."

Bible Lyceum Creating Interest

The Bible Lyceum meetings, across from Thomason Hotel, continue with increasing interest. Large crowds were in attendance all week. Sunday night found almost 500 present with many standing to hear Evangelist Garrett speak on the very timely and interesting subject, "When the Devil Joins The Chain-Gang—Where Will You Be?"

Mr. Garrett gave ample Bible proof that no man or woman will have a second chance for salvation during the millenniel period. "When the millennium begins," asserted Mr. Garrett, "probation will close for some 2,000,000,000 people. The destiny of every individual will have been decided before that great moment comes. Now is the time to make our calling and election sure, for then the righteous people will all be taken to heaven and the wicked will all be stricken dead at the appearing of Christ."

Some of the special features of this meeting are the Bibles and other appropriate gifts that are being given away. Also the special music which is being furnished by singers of the community. The Clanton Four has given some very fine and much appreciated help along the musical line.

Mr. Garrett has stated that some of the most interesting and thrilling subjects yet given will be presented this week. They have been announced as Thursday night, "God's Measuring Rod"; Friday night," What Is Truth How Can I Find It?" No meeting Saturday night; Sunday night, "The Mother Of Adam And Her Birthday Celebration"; no meeting Monday night; Tuesday night, "The Bible Answer To The Greatest Blunder Of The Church"; and Wednesday night, "How Can I Get An Answer To My Prayers?"

According to previous announcements the public is cordially invited to all these meetings.

ACCORDED HIGH HONORS

Clanton friends will rejoice over recent honors won by Curry Jones of Asheville, N. C. Curry was lately graduated from the Lee H. Edwards High School, and was president of his class. He was a member of the debating team that a few weeks ago won the Southern championship, five other states competing. Later, in a declamatory contest, sponsored by six southern states, Curry held highest rank. He is the grandson of Mrs. Clara B. Curry of Clanton.

On Saturday morning, June 10, as a fitting tribute to the accomplishments of those boys, the City of Asheville sent them (six in number) with two instructors, on a motor trip to Beverley Hills, California, with all expenses paid. While in California the team will compete in the National Forensic Contests. The itinerary of the party will include many interesting sights and places and they will be absent from home for a full month.

Local Team Wins Two Close Games

The Clanton-Maplesville Baseball Team defeated the strong team from the Birmingham Paper Company at Maplesville Sunday afternoon, in two thrilling games.

The Birmingham Paper Company will be the opponent of the local team on the Fourth if negotiations now underway are successful. They will play a double-header one game in the morning and one in the afternoon.

The Ensley Steel Works will be the next team to oppose the local boys. The game will be called at Maplesville at the usual time, 3:00, Sunday afternoon.

them on the incoming election. Most of our voers are inclined to vote "no" on all propositions which they do not understand. Personally, the writer recalls during the Miller administration that our county voted approximately two to one against some proposed amendments in 1932, and after our people were familiarized with the purpose and intent of these amendments, one year later, the people of Chilton County voted approximately two to one for the same constitutional amendments. In my humble judgment these amendments are worthy of the consideration of the electorate, and I believe if properly understood that each one will be adopted by the voters on the day of the election."

t Guilty—
Last week Editor Wyatt of the nion-Banner charged us with attempt- y to "run him down" on the streets Clanton one day recently, and driv- g his own car, too. We plead not ilty to the charge, because we did t see Mr. Wyatt due to the fact that was raining pretty hard, and we ought surely a newspaper editor had mption enough to "get in out of the in." But then you can never tell, lks, for what newspapermen have to through might lead them to do most ything—including walk around in the in. But as Mr. Wyatt stated last eek, we're friends, even next door ighbors. We had occasion to borrow s car on that day and of course the ar-accident was purely coincidental nother Charge—

We were indeed depressed to learn at a person we have always con- dered our friend, had publicly made e statement that they were not in e least pleased with the "attitude" e News and this column had been suming in recent weeks. Newspapers e always glad to learn how their aders feel about what they print, when ld of same directly. This newspaper endeavoring to render a service to e people of Chilton County as a hole, and we print what we believe to to the best interests of the people. Community Interest In Its Editorial olicy Is The Cornerstone Of This ewspaper," may be found at the top this page, and we make the statement re that we are serving the purpose no certain clique or organization, but at fairness to all is our aim.

Big Fourth—
For the past several years the pa- iotic town of Thorsby has been owing Clanton up when it comes to lebrating the Fourth of July. Maybe at's the reason Clantonians have de- ded to really "spread it on" this year. ans are almost complete for the big- st Fourth of July in its history. horsby, as usual, will have a big cele- ation, featuring the 'March of Time." reasy pigs, greasy poles, baseball mes, races and barbecue. Fun for erybody will be the theme of Clan- n and Thorsby on July Fourth, 1939.

Splendid Program—
The Clanton Lions Club Charter ight was a gala affair. Attended by ar two hundred, the event exceeded e highest expectations of the Lions. n interesting, entertaining and im- essive program was rendered. Well shers have been liberal in their ex- essions of faith that this Club will nder a service to this community that ll brand it as a power for the public od. Leroy (Pewee) Martin made a lendid speech on accepting the Char- r from District Governor A. L. Bell. ewee is a little fellow, physically, but atch him handle the job of President a big way.

nother Improvement Needed—
Clanton has a new waterworks sys- m; Clanton has newly-paved streets; ilton County's roads are being im- oved and others built rapidly. But ere's one more improvement Clanton eds probably as bad as any one other provement—a more presentable ceme- ry. Folks, if you haven't already done , just ride by and see for yourself. e hate to have an outsider read this, t we hate still worse to have him see e object of this discussion. It has ached the point where you can hardly l that it is a cemetery. Weeds and shes are everywhere. This condition n be improved. If this humble scribe sses away before the Clanton ceme- y is cleaned up, we're going to in- uct J. Mell Martin or Raymond nderwood to transport us down the ghway about twenty miles. We know a clean cemetery near a country urch we attended years ago, and al- ough we like Clanton, we like better ll the looks of that resting place at is free of weeds, grass and bushes. we stated some months ago, the ews often carries notices of cemetery anings at our country churches, and 'd certainly like to carry a notice at reads something like this: "There l be a cemetery cleaning at Clan- on such and such a day at such such an hour. Those interested me and bring the necessary tools."

Stores Will Be Closed On Fourth

Most of the business houses of Clanton will be closed all day Tuesday, July Fourth, it was learned from comments by managers of several of these establishments. In the past it has been the custom for several of the grocery stores to remain open for a while in the morning part of the day to allow last minute grocery shoppers to make purchases. We presume this will be done this year.

Registrars To Meet July 3 To 7

The Board of Registrars of Chilton County will sit at the courthouse in Clanton, beginning Monday, July 3, and continuing through Friday, the 7th. They will be in session on July 4th, but will not be in session on Saturday of that week.

All citizens who have become twenty-one years of age since the last registration date, or who have never registered for other reasons, will be eligible to register, thus taking the first step toward becoming a qualified voter. All are urged to bear these dates in mind.

There's No Telling---

There's no telling just where a bootlegger might decide to hide his product of illicit beverage in this dry County.

Inside a telephone would probably be the last place an officer would think to look while making a raid, but Deputy Sheriff ("Riding Deputy") George Murrah just casually peeked inside an old model wall "ringer" the other day and there it was—two pints of bootleg corn.

"But that's nothing," Deputy Murrah told us "We raided the premises of that same person some time ago and found a quantity of illicit beverage. It was necessary for me to return to Clanton to properly make out a bond for the law violator to sign and on my return I was told that Mr—— was at a well in the back yard getting a drink of water, so I went around the house, and there he was—but not drinking water. He was just in the act of removing a buried jug of more spirits from its resting place in the ground."

When asked what he did then, Mr. Murrah answered: "I made another case against him and went for another bond."

Clanton Lions Club Has The Largest Charter Night Gathering Ever Held In State Of Alabama

The Charter Night Banquet of the newly-organized Lions Club of Clanton was one of the City's most gala occasions, when approximately two hundred local Lions, visiting Lions, and invited guests gathered in the spacious basement of the Clanton Methodist Church last Friday night.

H. T. Miller, International Organizer, presided as toastmaster, and the program got underway with the entire group joining in singing songs. Presentation of the Flag to the local Club by the Montgomery delegation was impressively carried out. Introduction of guests consumed several minutes. Visiting Clubs were recognized, and members of their parties were introduced. The Jasper Lions Club had a delegation of over twenty-five present. Montgomery, Eclectic, Birmingham, Wetumpka Clubs were represented.

Toastmaster Miller made the announcement that this was the largest Lions Charter night gathering ever held in the State of Alabama and the second largest Charter Club. Elba, Alabama, exceeded the Clanton Club by only a few members.

A splendid musical program was rendered, which included vocal and piano selections by Miss Kathryn Foss and Miss Lois Thompson, two of Clanton's most accomplished musicians. The Wetumpka Quartet rendered several selections, and their singing was lauded highly by Toastmaster Miller and the entire gathering.

Present at this meeting and the main speaker of the evening was District Governor A. L. Bell of Mobile, Governer-Elect and Mrs. Burton Andrews of Montgomery, International Tail Twister J. Hosmer Scott of Jasper, and others. Two members of the Alabama Legislature were present. Tail Twister Scott kept the gathering in a gay mood with his witty remarks and novel excuses to wring money from the large group of Lions. This money goes to aid the blind of the state.

A delicious plate was served by the ladies of the Methodist Church, and following the feast came the address of Governor Bell. Prior to this, how-

YOUTH LOSES LEG IN AUTO ACCIDENT

IRA HENDERSON OF NEAR WADSWORTH INJURED WHEN CAR-TRUCK SIDESWIPE

Ira Henderson, age 19, resident of near Wadsworth, lost his leg last Saturday night when the truck on which he was riding was sideswiped by a passenger car near the Midway Service Station on the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway. His brother, Adolph Henderson, also occupant of the truck, sustained a badly bruised ankle. The accident occurred at about 11:20 P.M.

According to Patrolmen L. L. English and H. J. Pettus, who investigated the accident, the Henderson boys were riding on the flat bed of the truck in company with eleven other young people, and driven by Arthur Cooper of Deatsville. A car driven by Thomas Hutto, with two other occupants, Percy Medley and Blonnie L. Simmons, enrollees at the Clanton CCC Camp, sideswiped the truck which was headed south. The car was headed north. The accident occurred about 100 yards south of the Midway Service Station, thirteen miles south of Clanton.

The injured men were brought to the Central Alabama Hospital here where it was necessary to amputate Ira Henderson's right leg just below the knee. Adolph Henderson was given treatment and it is thought his ankle is not seriously injured. They were the only occupants of the truck and car who suffered injury. The two vehicles were not badly damaged.

This bridge was erected as a two-way project between the City of Clanton and the State, at a cost of approximately 11,000.00. It is modern in every respect. The Lay Dam Road is under construction, and at this point has been graded and made ready for traffic.

FIRST LOAD BRINGS IN A PREMIUM PRICE

Packing Continues As Good Quality Of Peaches Brought In

County Agent J. W. Fant announced Tuesday of this week that the first truck load of peaches properly graded, sized, brushed and packed was sold in Clanton by the Clanton Berry Growers Monday. Four hundred and twenty-nine one-half bushel hampers were placed on the market in competition with other peach growing sections. Due to better color and quality the peaches sold for a premium.

At the time of this writing (Wednesday noon) Manager L. E. Diefenderfer of the Association, stated that 159 one-half bushel hampers were packed Tuesday and that they were expecting to pack from 800 to 1,000 hampers Wednesday.

The following named farmers contributed to the load sold Monday: A. B. Jones, A. D. Headley, W. L. Herrod, C. J. Mitchell, T. J. Headley, John Childress, A. N. Headley, W. E. Patterson H. Headley and W. B. Cooper.

The Clanton Berry Growers, a farmers cooperative that has been shipping strawberries for several years has installed a first class machine for handling the peaches and has employed Mr. Coley, Fort Valley, Ga., to operate the equipment this season.

Many farmers believe that this is the beginning of a real peach industry in Chilton County. There are many farmers in the county who have small orchards and it is hard for them to market their peaches as individuals but with the help of this organization a farmer can market any amount of peaches and the cost will be the same per bushel.

William Patrick Lay Tablet Unveiling

On next Saturday, July 1st, an interesting ceremony will take place at Lay Dam. Alabama Power Company will unveil a handsome tablet which has been affixed to the structure of the dam in honor of Captain William Patrick Lay, the first president of the Company. In 1929 the plant of the company which had been known up to that time as "Lock 12" was by action of the Board of Directors named "Lay Dam." Elaborate exercises were held at the dam at that time, attended by hundreds of friends and admirers of Capt. Lay.

The exercises Saturday will be held in the presence of a limited number of officials and employees of the company and personal friends of Capt. Lay and will be presided over by Mr. Thomas W. Martin, President of Alabama Power Company. The exercises will begin at 10:30 o'clock A.M. and at their conclusion luncheon will be served the guests.

"March Of Time Parade" Will Be Feature Of Thorsby's Big Fourth Celebration

Thorsby has announced to the public that she will celebrate the Fourth of July in a big way, and she doesn't mean maybe. And after reading the program for the day this writer has concluded that there's no "maybe" to it.

A most interesting and unique feature of the Thorsby Fourth of July celebration will be the "March Of Time Parade" which will be staged at 9:30 A.M. This parade will show the progress of that community during the last century, and will be sponsored by the wide-awake merchants of Thorsby.

And of course there'll be baseball games. No Fourth of July celebration at Thorsby would be complete without ball games. Two or more games have been announced for the day—one at 10:00 A.M., and another at 3:00 P.M., with probably another following. Thorsby has lost but one game this season out of eleven played. She was defeated last Saturday by the strong Vincent team of Vincent, and it will be this team from which she will will seek revenge on July Fourth as one of the games.

Down farther on the program for the day we see that there'll be a boxing match—a "battle royal" to be exact. And races: no celebration would be complete wthout races, and there'll be bicycle races, foot races and sack races, at Thorsby July Fourth. Will there be contests? You're asking us, and we're telling you that there WILL be contests. Leading the field will be the Fiddlers Contests with prizes being awarded, and all fiddlers are being extended a special invitation to be on hand, ready to file.

And last, but by far the least, we come across the announcement that makes us decide once and for all that this IS to be a celebration, and that we'll be there. FREE LEMONADE, and that isn't all for plate barbecue will be served at noon at a reasonable price per plate.

The Thorsby Community Club is sponsoring this celebration, and we are sure that Thorsby means just that when she says: "Everybody invited to spend the day and have lots of fun."

BANKHEAD AS A FAVORITE SON

To the Editor The News:

Nearly a quarter of a century ago Alabama had a favorite son whose loyal public service and statesmanship made him a national figure. The Democrats of the state honored themselves when they honored Senator Underwood by electing a delegation to the Democratic National Convention instructed to vote for him as the Democratic nominee for president of the United States.

Today Alabama has another favorite son, one whose long and able career in the halls of Congress, whose fidelity to his party, whose record of achievement, whose quality of leadership, and whose brilliant work as speaker of the national House of Representatives make him one of the outstanding figures in the public life of this generation. The Democrats of this state will honor not only this distinguished Alabamian but themselves by electing a delegation to the approaching Democratic National Convention instructed to vote for Hon. William B. Bankhead as the standard-bearer of the party. It is an honor and a compliment which Mr· Bankhead richly deserves. And even though he does not receive the requisite number of votes in the convention to make him the party's nominee, nevertheless he will be in a strategic position when the choice for a running mate of the nominee comes before the convention.—Fred G. Koenig, Sr., in Birmingham News.

WPA WORKERS HELP FARMERS OUT OF THE GRASS

(By Billy Smith, Director Information Service)

With heavy rains throughout Alabama causing considerable damage to crops and holding up work in the fields, allowing grass to get a large headway in crops, farmers have already made appeals for additional labor and appeals reaching the offices of the Works Progress Administration in Montgomery have brought about a wholehearted movement of cooperation from officials of the WPA in allowing project workers to hire out to those farmers in need of additional labor to cope with grass and the problem of salvaging crops as a result of the extensive rains.

In a statement issued recently, Colonel W. G. Henderson, Alabama Administrator of the Works Progress Administration, he said, "It is our desire to give every ounce of cooperation we can in providing additional labor for those farmers requesting it. We realize the situation they are up against and we certainly intend to help where and when possible."

Letters being received by the WPA offices in Montgomery have been high in their praise of the cooperation of the WPA in this emergency and many have gone so far as to say that the workers secured from the WPA have shown a most commendable attitude and have entered into the work with much greater zest than has been anticipated.

In counties where the demand arises for farm labor to meet the problems being faced at this time, WPA projects that can be suspended without loss in materials and money, are being temporarily shut down to allow the workers to accept employment on farms. "Of course," Col. Henderson stated, "We realize this employment on the farms is only temporary and we have let it be known that if a WPA worker had an opportunity to secure this work he would be reassigned to WPA work if he was still in need after the farm job was completed. This procedure is being followed in all counties where the requests are made and provided there is a sufficient number of WPA workers available and provided further the farmer is financially able to pay the workers the prevailing wage for such farm labor in their respective counties."

So far, not one statement of dissatisfaction has been received on the work being done on farms by those taken from WPA rolls," Col. Henderson stated, "the greatest need for this additional help on farms has come from the northern part of the State and some from the central part and we see no reason for anyone saying that they are unable to secure the needed farm labor in this crisis due to WPA because we are certainly lending an ear to any appeals made and endeavoring to give immediate action· It is most gratifying to us to hear that our efforts toward this end are meeting with the desired results."

Farmers desiring to use labor from the WPA rolls will make requisition through the county agent's office for the number of men wanted and should also notify the county agent when the workers have served their purpose on this emergency farm work.

"SO MUCH DEPENDS ON THE POINT OF VIEW"

(From The Birmingham News, Sunday, May 28, 1939)

Do you joke and laugh about WPA? Do you think its workers, as a rule, are not of much account; that such work as they do is hardly worth doing; that the whole system is pretty sorry business, even if it is more or less necessary?

If you do, you can learn a lot from a man who not long ago felt pretty much the same way, and then, when circumstances changed for him—as they might for any man—found out for himself within the WPA that it was not all what cheap jokes represent it as being.

This man, who had had extensive managerial experience, became a WPA project superintendent. He expected as a result of all that he had heard and more or less accepted, that he would have a bunch of spiritless loafers on his hands, that he would find plenty of trouble-makers, that what he would be doing would hardly be worth the effort of self-respecting men.

This man knows better now. The reality was so different from what he had anticipated that he was moved to write a letter to his superior. That superior was so much struck by the letter that he passed it on to the WPA administrator for Alabama, and the latter, in turn had it sent out to every project superintendent in the State.

What this discoverer learned is not only of value to other superintendents and to people who have prejudiced, ignorant conceptions of the WPA. The lesson of his experience is worth passing on to all sorts of people. It is a lesson that most people should have recalled to them every once in a while.

This superintendent learned that the men under him in WPA were not different from other men who had worked under him; that they seemed to want to do the right thing about their jobs.

* * * *

Faith in people is the foundation of religion; it is the foundation of democracy; it is imperative to the achievement of the supreme values and experiences known to man·

Doubtless, beneath his superficial attitude toward the WPA, this superintendent still retained his faith in humankind. His faith in and his respect for his workers helped to make his project worthwhile; and the work put into it is good, honest, respectable work.

Perhaps there is nothing men need today more than faith in one another. This WPA superintendent has renewed his faith and helped to rebuild faith in the men working with him. If all of us could do as much, we could quickly make a better world.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

A fisherman's story coming out of Virginia says that one day a man with cane and bait started to the creek in his flivver. After a bumpy ride he arrived and found that he had lost his bait on the way. In dismay he walked out to the creek bank and while looking around he saw a moccasin lying by a log with a frog in his mouth. He clamped a forked stick over the head of the snake and robbed him of the frog for bait. The reptile looked so disappointed and sorrowful over being deprived of its meal that the fisherman pulled the stopper out of the bottle of whiskey that he had in his pocket and poured a good supply into the mouth of the snake. The snake drank it down and then went wriggling away. After fishing for fifteen minutes with the frog and no results the man's attention was attracted by a gentle insistent thumping on his leg. He looked down and there was the same water mocacsin. He was looking up at the man with a twinkle in his eye and holding another frog in his mouth. When a man gets one drink it calls for another. A sensible man will be man enough not to take the first drink.

It is said of the late Dwight Morrow, father-in-law of Charles Lindbergh, that he was very absent-minded. One day he entered a train and with a magazine he took his seat and started to reading. Along came the conductor and asked for his ticket. Frantically Mr. Morrow searched for it. Seeing the embarrassed condition of the passenger the conductor said, "Never mind, Mr. Morrow, when you find it mail it to the company. I am sure you have it." "I know I have it," replied Mr. Morrow, "But that is not all of my trouble. I have forgotten where I am supposed to go." I heard a good lady say that she wanted to die before she told the same thing ten times before breakfast. Being absent-minded will play us many a bad trick.

Do not play me a bad trick and skip over these figures. They tell you something that I want you to know. The Golden Rules Foundation has revealed that while the average income of the individual has increased the gifts to churches has decreased thirty per cent within the last five years. This decrease was not because of lack of money, for the increase for picture shows has been forty-one per cent, for cigaretts forty-eight per cent, for automobiles two hundred per cent, for whiskey two hundred and twenty per cent, for dadios three hundred per cent and for beer three hundred per cent. America does what it wants to do with its money. People have money for what they want. Tobacco, chewing gum and whiskey receive more of our money than the Church of God and all because people had rather spit, chew and drink, than to worship the God of the nation and the God of the world. In the light of these statistics would you say that the Church was wide awake.

While I was writing the above "Mo Echo" a fine car stopped at the parsonage door and a very wealthy lady stepped out with her hands full of beautiful sweet peas. She said on approaching the door: "I have lots of these and I want to share them with you." With her chauffeur she was making the rounds of this little city, carrying flowers to her friends. It occurred to me that such a deed was very commendable. I am not suprised that some people have such fine faces and such fine characters. They live to share what they have. Whether we have flowers or money, it is our duty and our privilege—may I not say also that it should be our joy, to share all alike with our friends and neighbors. Do you have your flowers just to bloom for you and yours, or do you share them with others?

Out there on the diamond of life I see a host of men all lined up to play the game of living. I see one youg man who is burdened down with bad habits. He curses, he keeps late hours, he drinks, but now he is at the bat. "Give me a ball" he shouts and the ball comes swift. and fast, but he fans out. But I see another youth go to the bat. He is as fine as the sunshine and as free as the birds and he shouts "Give me a ball. Give them thick and fast", and he knocks a home run. Be a man at the bat.

AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY

The development of aeral photography has greatly facilitated scientific farm planning, according to Mr. James H. Wood, Superintendent, the Soil Conservation Service in the CCC Camp area near Clanton, Alabama.

Aerial photographs are made to scale and can therefore be used as a base for mapping during field surveys by simply indicating in pencil notations on the photograph itself the soil type, degree and extent of erosion, steepness of slope, and existing land use on every portion of the farm.

Since these are the essential physical factors needed to determine the proper land use, an exact map, traced from the photograph and including this information, provides a basis for planning better land use and the required erosion control measures. Such physical information is considered in conjunction with the economic condition and needs of the farmer.

When land use practices and erosion control measures have been determined and agreed upon by the farmer and Soil Conservation Service planning technicians, a second map can then be traced from the photograph to indicate the revised land use program and cropping system.

A detailed description of the crop rotations, maintenance practices, other measures provided for in the conservation program is outlined in Cooperative Agreement signed by farmer. This cropping plan, toget with the soil-survey map and the la use map then provides the farmer w a complete land inventory of his fa and an operating plan for a five-y period.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

'PLEASE PASS THE CUSTOMERS'

THERE'S one muscle in the human anatomy which was named by a humorist with boarding-house experience. It is called the "boarding-house muscle" because it is the muscle which enables you to extend your arm—and reach.

It took its name, of course, from the dining-tables of boarding-houses, where to reach far was to get more to eat at a table where everybody was so engrossed in his plate he didn't have the time or the inclination to pass anything to anyone else. Reach won.

Charles Roth

In business it is reach also that wins. One of the chief values of advertising to the advertiser is that it gives him a reach for customers. Every business must both reach customers and reach for them if it is to exist.

The business man whose reach is longest or most skilled is the man who brings the most customers into his store. And those who reach the best have the best stores and can give the best values.

The chief concern of every business is its customers. Who are they? Where do they live? Why should they trade with me? How can I tell them of the advantages my business? Every business m asks these questions. Every s cessful business man answers the

In the reach for customers, it is a muscle which does the trick. is advertising.

A man starts a store. Somewhe are men and women who sho buy from him. He is sincere in desire to serve. But unless he do something about it, his store fail before enough customers their way to his doors.

He has to reach out for them. begins to advertise where custom will see—in the newspaper. reads. He is convinced. He g to the store. He is well-treated. buys. He likes what he bought. returns to buy again.

Gradually, as more advertisi appears, more customers com buy, return to buy again. The rea for customers is building a gr business.

But don't you see that the bu ness man is not the only one w has benefited in the process?

Every customer who found th a better place to buy, a place whe he could get a little bit better m chandise and a little bit better se ice at a little bit better price, a benefited.

The customer benefits as mu from advertising as the busine man, if not more.

Beer Sales Ruled By Public Opinion

Montgomery, Ala., June 28—David E. Dunn, director of Alabama's beer industry, told the Montgomery Kiwanis Club today that "public opinion, once aroused, can operate to bring about the orderly conduct of retail beer outlets which we all earnestly desire."

Mr. Dunn outlined the self-regulation program of the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee which was organized by wholesale beer distributors controlling 95 per cent of the beer supply of the state to cooperate with the Alabama ABC Board and other law enforcement agencies in "cleaning up or closing up" the bad spots among the 1,600 retail beer outlets in Alabama's 25 wet counties.

Mr. Dunn said that during 1938 the beer industry in Alabama employed more than 1,000 citizens with a payroll of more than $4,700,000 and paid state, county and city taxes exceeding $1,000,000 for the privilege of selling the 281,000 barrells of beer which Alabamians consumed that year.

The ABC Board, since the self-regulation program was launched March 16, has revoked 20 retail beer licenses and suspended 21 others The Beer Committee, in addition to initiating 14 of these cases, sent warnings to more than 45 other outlets that conditions there must improve or their licenses would be subject to revocation.

"Through the wholehearted cooperation of the ABC Board, the county and city official, and the press of Alabama, I sincerely believe that our program has brought about 100 per cent improvement in the conduct of retail beer outlets," Mr. Dunn told the Kiwanis Club. "We want you, as representative citizens, to understand what we are trying to do. Public opinion, once aroused, can operate to bring about the orderly conduct of retail beer outlets which we all so earnestly desire. Restriction of your patronage to legal, respectable outlets can and will operate to improve and maintain the high standards all Alabamians want."

MODERATION

HISTORY . . .

Alabama beer distributors sincerely believe their product is a wholesome food beverage, one that has worn the robe of moderation for more than 6,000 years.

The Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth Rock instead of proceeding to their original destination of Virginia because provisions aboard the Mayflower were running low. The actual record of the journey states: "For we could not now take further time for search or consideration; our victuals being much spent, especially our beer."

TODAY . . .

In these modern times, the beer industry recognizes that conditions sometimes surround the sale of beer which are undesirable to us all, wets and drys alike. To help Alabama's active ABC Board eliminate these bad spots, the beer industry of Alabama on March 16 launched a program of self-regulation, placed its conduct in the hands of David E. Dunn, former administrator of the ABC Board. The goal was to "clean up or close up" the law-violating outlets which were bringing criticism upon an industry paying wages and taxes exceeding $5,000,000 annually to Alabamians and Alabama.

Since that time the ABC Board, in addition to continuing its own drive, has revoked 10 retail beer licenses and suspended 2 in cases initiated by the industry itself. Director Dunn has sent warnings to 42 retail outlets that conditions there must improve.

THE FUTURE . . .

We are sincere in our efforts to assure the patrons of today and tomorrow of clean, wholesome conditions in the state of Alabama. You, the public, can help by patronizing only reputable, law-abiding outlets.

B. L. Cobb Writes To Voters Of County

To the Voters of Chilton County:

On the 18th day of last March a mass meeting was held at the Court House, which was called at my request. At that meeting Karl Harrison, our Senator, was present, and our representative, Percy M. Pitts, was present, there were about 1,000 farmers and citizens of the County present.

At the meeting which was presided over by Honorable L. H. Reynolds, the Local Act which was passed by the 1936 Legislature and which put the control of the County Agent's office completely out of the hands of the Commissioners Court of Chilton County was discussed. This Act requires that the Commissioners Court of Chilton County MUST appropriate to an Agricultural Fund $4300.00 a year of the tax payers' money, out of the General Fund of the County, which goes to pay the County portion of the operation of the County Agent's office. That Act besides requires the Commissioners Court to "provide adequate office space, office and field equipment, supplies, water, heat, lights, telephone rental, coal charges, telephone charges, janitor hire and such other miscellaneous expenditure as may be necessary." In other words, there is no limit as to the amount of money under the present set-up that the County Agent's office can spend and there is no authority left in Chilton County either in the hands of the Commissioners Court or otherwise, except to pay for all of this expense.

The plain facts as shown at the meeting were that nobody other than the Extension Service of Auburn has any control over who the County Agent of Chilton County is or how many employees there will be in his office, or who they will be and how many office buildings they will occupy, and what expense the tax payers of Chilton County may be put to in the supplying of these numerous employees and their office expenses.

Not another County in the State has a Local Law like this. I think the time is at hand for the farmers of Chilton County and the tax payers of Chilton County to sit up and take notice and to demand their rights and put the officers of the County under the control of the County authorities and the voters of Chilton County.

The repeal of this Local Act does not mean the abolishing of any Cotton Farm program for Chilton County nor does it mean to abolish the County Agent's office. It only means to leave some supervision in Chilton County over the County Agent's office.

Just how many farmers in Chilton County could stand up under the financial strain of paying a hired employee at the end of each month sent there by some outside authority, and without any control over him whatever or over his work or what he does. That is the condition of the set-up in Chilton County at the present time.

At that same meeting the Senator and Representative submitted the question of making the County Solicitor of Chilton County elective by the voters of Chilton County, and also the question of creating an Inferior Court for Chilton County with the Judge of this Court elected by the voters of the County. They outlined that the office of County Solicitor drew $100.00 per month of the tax payers money out of the General fund of Chilton County, but the people of Chilton County had no say so whatsoever in who he would be or how long he would hold office. It was outlined that in other adjoining Counties as Autauga and Elmore ,there was created an Inferior Court with the Judge elected by the people and they had been asked to pass a similar Court Bill for this County.

The Representative and the Senator recommended that the County Agent's proposal as above outlined, and the question of the County Solicitor's office being made elective and the question of creating an Inferior Court for Chilton County be submitted to the voters of the County at the election to be held on the Constitutional Amendments on July 11, 1939. All present with the exception of a very few, went on record at that meeting favoring the submitting of these three proposals to the voters to be voted on July 11, 1939. All three proposals are of vital interest to the tax payers and voters of Chilton County and I feel that the passing of all three of them is a step forward toward a greater Local Self-Government for Chilton County.

Yours respectfully.
B. L. COBB.

Cities Warned To Hold Power

Birmingham—Commissioner Cecil F Bates, in an attack on centralization of power in state government, Friday warned the Alabama League of Municipalities in ninth annual convention at the Tutwiler Hotel that it must fight militantly to regain power of self-governmen.

"Ever since cities were created by the Legislature," said Commissioner Bates, "the trend has been toward centralization of power in the state government, which is a threat to the rights of cities to govern themselves and the administration of their own affairs as they see fit."

Coffee Charts "Hog Program"

A meeting of all the agricultural workers of Coffee County was held recently at New Brockton to discuss a "better hog program" for Coffee County.

It was agreed a purebred boar should be placed in reach of every farmer in the county. The workers decided to sponsor this project through the Coffee Livestock Association.

The plan is to call the directors, agricultural workers, and a few good farmers together in small district meetings and discuss plans for placing these purebred boars, and then have some county-wide livestock meetings.

As a result of a chain 4-H purebred pig project which was started nearly three years ago, 78 registered boars and 163 registered sows have already been placed in the county, the majority of which are with 4-H boys. Fifty-five of these boys have received a free registered gilt each.

DEATH OF MRS. L. R. BLACKMON

—o—

Mrs L. R. Blackmon passed away last Thursday night, June 22, at 7:05 o'clock, at the home of her son, Reese, in Clanton, after an illness of nine days. She had lived a very full, useful and Christian life. During her illness she declared herself ready to meet her God and spoke words of love and advice to those grouped around her. She passed quietly and peacefully into the beyond.

Mrs. Blackmon was known to all her friends as "Grandma" and was most deserving of the love and honor shown her by her many friends. As far as is known she had no enemies.

She surrendered her life to God in early girlhood and later transferred her letter to the Vebena Baptist Church. Her life was an open book, read and remembered by all who knew her.

The family wishes to extend thanks to Mrs Scroggins, Mrs. Walter Poole, Mrs. Lonza Roberson, the Reverend Davis, pastor of Clanton First Baptist Church, and wife; the Reverend Daniel, pastor of Clanton Methodist Church and the many others who were so kind during the illness of their mother.

They wish to extend thanks to those who gave flowers also. They were: Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Blackmon, Mr. ond Mrs. Reese Mullins and Dr. J.O. Colley, Mrs. Ola Jones, Mrs. Walter Poole, Mrs. Longa Roberson, Mr. Reese Colley, Miss Lurla Mims, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Sears and Mrs. H. B. Oliver. The family gave a beautiful spray from Thorsby Nurseries.

Funeral rites were held at the home of Mr. Reese Blackmon at 3:00 o'clock Friday afternoon. The Reverend G. G. Williams, pastor of the Verbena Baptist Church, officiated, assisted by the Rev. B. W. Ware, pastor of Verbena Methodist Church.

The Liberty Hill Quartet, composed of Leonard Culp, Alpheus Littlejohn, George Chambers and Marvin Lowery sang three songs.

Pallbearers were Reese Colley of Wetumpka, Byron Colley of Prattville, Reese Blackmon and Wilbur Ward of Clanton, Lucien Blackmon of Tallassee and George Colley of Verbena.

She is survived by five daughters, Mrs. J. P. Garner of Montgomery, Mrs. D. W. Ward of Clanton, Mrs. B. B. Scott, Mrs. J. B. Gardner and Mrs. Jeanie Dawson all of Verbena; five sons, J. R. of Clanton; L. C. of Tallassee; L. L. of Wilsonville; T. L. of Florida and W. A. Blackmon of Tampa, Florida.

Conservation In Alabama
and
Its Need Of A State Wide Stock Law

By DR. WALTER B. JONES
Director, Alabama Department of Conservation

The first two duties and functions of the Alabama Department of Conservation, as stated in the Toomer Act passed this year by the Legislature, are as follows:

1. To protect, conserve and increase the wildlife of the State and to administer all laws relating to wildlife and the protection, conservation and increase thereof;

2. To protect, conserve and increase the timber and forest resources of the state and to administer all laws relating to timber and forestry and the protection, conservation and increase of such resources.

It may surprise many people to learn that passage of a statewide stock law is absolutely essential if the above objectives are to be accomplished. Conservation of wildlife and forest resources may appear at first thought to have little connection with a stock law, but closer examination will reveal the interlocked position of the problem.

In the past 12 months approximately 30,000 forest fires have raged throughout Alabama and caused untold damage to young timber. The great majority of these fires were traced directly to the annual burning program of cattle owners who hoped to hasten the growth of new grass which was of little nutritional value since it followed fire. It mattered little to non land owning cattle owners that these fires killed many thousands of young trees stunted many others, and straying livestock, even in fire protected areas, are a detriment to proper timber growth for young pines are rooted up and buds nipped.

On the wildlife side, we find every year thousands, perhaps millions, of potential quail, wild turkeys and other wild birds lost through destruction of eggs by forest fires. Blackened nests, eggs seared and broken, birds fleeing from the inferno, Deer, squirrels, o'possum, raccoon and many others trapped by flames and burned to a crisp. Even the fish do not escape. Ashes of burning trees and bushes settle on the ground and the rain carries this potash down to the lakes and streams. Fish, old and young are poisoned, or, if not poisoned, silt swept down from these denuded hills covers the spawning beds and destroys natural reproduction.

From the point of view of the conservationist, suppression of forest fires is necessary if any progress is to be made in saving and restoring natural resources. Restoring is perhaps the better word, for as it stands now, there is more restoring to be done than conserving or protection. So much has been wasted and slaughtered throughout past generations that there is comparatively little left to protect or conserve. It is chiefly a problem of restoration.

The law's mandate to "protect, conserve and increase" timber resources surely cannot be carried out as long as cattle, swine and sheep are allowed to stray at will, their owners following and firing the land as they go.

Suppression of fires, therefore, depends directly upon the fencing up the scrub cattle and making it impossible for a man owning only 10 acres of land to have several hundred head of cattle grazing on other people's land.

Throughout Alabama there seems to be a growing sentiment in favor of a statewide stock law. The setback received in the Legislature, earlier this year, only added fuel to the flame. Garden clubs, conservation associations, timber owners and many others are working together in an effort to effect passage of a stock law.

The Legislature, meeting again in July, will offer a second chance to right a wrong and put an end to an uncivilized practice.

As head of the Alabama Department of Conservation, I appeal to all right thinking people to join with us in this struggle to save, what is left, of our forests and wildlife by putting fences around stray stock and reducing forest fires. The opportunity is here; let us not sleep at our posts.

NOTED EDUCATOR AND EVANGELIST TO SPEAK AT B.T.U. MEET

—o—

Last week the Quarterly B. T. U. meeting of the Chilton Association was announced to be held at Oak Grove Church, July 2, 1939, but due to another program being hel dthere on that date, the meeting will be held at Thorsby Baptist Church. Dr. C. B. Miller, pastor of the Ensley Baptist Church, will speak at this meeting at 2:30 o'clock. Dr. Miller was reared as a farm boy, when the Middle West was first being settled. He accepted the call to the ministry and studied as a medical missionary, having completed his studies in Europe. Due to his wife's ill health, he was unable to go to the foreign field.

Then looking about him, he saw that the Middle West was "A Field White Unto Harvest" and since has been an untiring servant. For many years he was pastor of the First Baptist Church of Springfield, Mo., and other outstanding churches of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Not only has he been a faithful minister in other section of the country but he was president of a large medical college in Montana. He was also superintendent of the Social Welfare work in St. Louis, Mo., where he attended over 600 patients. He has been a great believer in "Study to Show Thyself Unto God, a workman that Needeth Not to be Ashamed, Rightly Dividing the Word of Truth."

He has taught in four of the most outstanding religious institutions. He, at one time, was president of the Willam Jewel College for a number of years.

About nine years ago, he turned his eyes upon the harvest fields of Alabama and settled at his present pastorate, where he has over 2,000 members. In addition to this he has carried on the work of Dr. L. O. Dawson at Howard College, since Dr. Dawson's death. He is also the author of that good book, "With Jesus In The Garden."

Alabama is fortunate in having an able and distinguished leader like Dr. Miller and we, in Chilton County, are very fortunate in having him to speak to us next Sunday afternoon. Don't miss being there.

Governor Says Amendments Will Bring Economy And Efficiency

MONTGOMERY.—Steadily mounting public support of the state administrations five constitutional amendments, designed to effect economies and aid in the modernization of Alabama's government, was reflected in reports which poured into Governor Frank Dixon's office this week from all 67 counties. Ratification of all five proposals by landslide majorities in the July 11 election was clearly indicated.

"There never was any doubt," said Governor Dixon, "that when our people got full information about these amendments and their purposes, they would vote to ratify each proposal. The daily and weekly newspapers of our state are doing a splendid job of giving the people the facts, and I am grateful for the widespread interest in the movement to improve governmental conditions in our state."

"If these amendments pass—and I am confident they will," the governor asserted, "I'll guarantee that there will be substantial money savings to the state. Take the amendment providing for biennial sessions of the Legislature, for instance. It should more properly be known as the amendment to reduce the length of legislative sessions in Alabama. The cost of the Legislature from 1931 to 1935 under our present system was $691,000. The cost of two biennial sessions under the new plan would have been $278,000."

Another reason why it is desirable to change over from the quadrennial to the biennial system of legislative sessions, the governor pointed out, is that budgeting over a four-year period is impossible, due to the fluctuation in revenues. Biennial sessions would make for greatly increased efficiency in handling the state's affairs.

The amendment permitting defendants, except in capital cases, to plead guilty and begin sentence without awaiting grand jury action, will "bring our system in line with humanity" and also save considerable money, the governor said.

He described the amendment authorizing establishment of a modern, non-political pardon, parole and probation system as a proposal to end forever the parole racket in Alabama, and at the same time save a substantial sum annually for the taxpayers. This amendment takes the pardon and parole power out of the hands of the governor, except power to commute death sentences. In the past, pardon and parole matters have required up to 50 per cent of the time of the state's chief executives.

"There is no sense, no justice, no humanity in the present system," the governor declared. "Ratification of this amendment will be a great forward step for Alabama."

Discussing the amendment legalizing use of voting machines in counties desiring to install them, Governor Dixon explained that it is a local option measure. A few Alabama counties are ready for voting machines, but cannot place them in operation unless the amendment is ratified. Senator Dan T. McCall of Mobile appealed to the people this week for a favorable vote, pointing out that his county wants to begin using voting machines in the interest of better government.

Opinion apparently is unanimous on the so-called trust fund amendment. It merely authorizes the investment of trust funds in corporations that are guaranteed by the United States government.

Lieutenant Governor A. A. Carmichael praised all five of the amendments in a statement last week. Said he: "All of them are good and, in my judgment should be adopted by the people of Alabama. I shall not lose an opportunity to cast a vote for all five of them."

The entire series of amendments also won the hearty endorsement of the newly-elected board of managers and legislative committee of the Alabama Association of County Commissioners.

Governor Dixon was ready this week to make a series of radio speeches, in which he not only will urge ratification of all five amendments in the intreest of "better government in Alabama," but will make a report to the people on the first five months of his administration.

Aid To Farmers Through F.S.A.

—o—

Thirty-six hundred and ninety-seven families living on farms of Alabama totaling 346,845 acres and their creditors had reached agreements up to March 1 on adjustment of obligations through efforts of the farm debt adjustment section of the Farm Security Administration, according to Marvin Durbin, FSA supervisor for Chilton County who said farmers facing foreclosure or overburdened with debt could obtain information at his office at Clanton, Alabama.

Before odjustment these debts amounted to $3,530,172 and after adjustment the total was $2,720,693.

"Any worthy, debt-distressed farmer or the creditor of any farmer is entitled to this service," he said. "The county farm debt adjustment committee, in cooperation with FDA representatives of the FSA, will confer with such farmers and creditors with a view to working out mutually satisfactory settlements. Tenants threatened with loss of livestock and equipment may also request this assistance."

The FSA makes loans to needy farm families who cannot get credit from any other source and, along with the money, provides sufficient training and guidance based on sound farm and home plans looking to rehabilitation of the families and repayment of the loans. In that connection it recognizes part of its work lies in bringing the farmer's previously incurred obligations within his ability to pay, helping him to get a new start and enabling the creditor to convert his claim into cash.

"Payment of taxes and interest, and adjustment of principal indebtedness, are included in the plan of operations which FSA borrowers make and which we help to carry out," the supervisor explained. "Members of the county debt adjustment committee, all local men experienced in this work and interested in seeing that both debtor and creditor are treated fairly, are C. D. Foshee, Billingsley, Ala., Route 1; E. R. Piper, Thorsby, Alabama and J. B. Hicks, Maplesville, Alabama.

Typhoid Clinics To Be Held

—o—

A series of typhoid clinics to be held in communities not visited during the summer of 1938 by the Chilton County Health Department was announced this week by the County Health Officer, Dr. S. D. Sturkie. The following schedule is planned for July:

Gulledge School (col.)—begins July 6, ends July 27, 9:00-9:45 A.M.

Pinedale School—Begins July 7, ends July 28, 9:00-9:45 A.M.

Cane Creek School—begins July 7, ends July 28, 10:00-10:45 A.M.

Mullins School—begins July 7, ends July 28, 11:00-11:45 A.M.

Flint Hill School—begins July 7, ends July 28, 1:00-1:30 P.M.

Beulah School (col)—begins July 6, ends July 27, 10:00-10:45 A.M.

Chiloh School, (col.)—begins July 6, ends July 27, 11:00-11:45 A.M.

Campbell School (col.)—begins July 6, ends July 27, 1:00-1:30 P.M.

The places named will be visited once a week until four visits have been made. Residents of these communities were urged by the Health Officer to take advantage of this opportunity to protect themselves against typhoid fever. Immunity against the fever may be acquired by taking three injections of typhoid vaccine at weekly intervals. The immunity thus conferred is not permanent and the vaccination needs to be repeated every two to three years. It is the safest policy to take the vaccine every two years, the Health Officer declared. In addition to the typhoid inoculation, diphtheria toxoid for protection of infants and children against diphtheria will be given. The Health Department routinely advises toxoid for infants at six months of age and for children of the pre-school and school age up to ten No charge is made by the Health Department for this service.

Meanwhile, the residents of other communities were urged to visit the main health office in Clanton on Saturdays from 8:00 to 12:00 or the Verbena branch office on Fridays from 3:00 to 4:30 PM., or the Maplesville branch office on Wednesdays from 9:00 to 12:00 A.M.

Barns that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that her place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is of the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Rubie Barns, to plead, answer, or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 31st day of July, 1939, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against her.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this [illegible] day of May, 1939.

Beaver Colony Near Autauga-Chilton County Line Under SCS Agreement, Is Interesting

An unique feature of the cooperation between W. M. Headley and the Soil Conservation Service is a beaver colony. Mr. Headley's place is located on the Autauga-Chilton County line and in addition to the beaver colony has all of his farm in Chilton County under agreement with the S.C.S. Camp 7, Clanton, Alabama.

These industrious animals have constructed a large dam enclosing approximately 6 and 3-4 acres. The little huts in which the beaver reside are as ingeniously constructed as the famous dams, during which time the animals are rarely seen at work, if ever.

Mr. Headley is very proud of the beaver pond and is protecting the animals and their work to the fullest extent. Camp S.C.S. 7 is proud to have it under agreement and will assist the owner in every way possible.

Visitors to Chilton County often ask to be shown this pond and it is the subject of much favorable comment. Such places of refuge for wildlife can be established every where man will cooperate and assist nature.

Beavers were fast becoming extinct in this section a few years ago, let's hope there are more cooperators like Mr. Headley, whose pond affords protection for fish and water fowl, as well as the animals who constructed it.

The Youth in Business

By C. E. Johnston

Dean, Schools of Business International Correspondence Schools

MANY young persons enter the business world each year poorly equipped to face the keen competition which they find on every side. It is easy to give these youngsters general advice. In fact most of those seeking positions in the business world for the first time get too much advice but not enough real aid in overcoming particular difficulties. Any intelligent youth knows that he must have some specific training before he can expect to obtain a job in an office. Few executives today have the time or inclination to teach beginners the elementary facts of business. Any concern rightly anticipates that applicants for employment will come to it at least partially trained.

We will take it for granted that the applicant for a job has some knowledge of business principles before he seeks a position. What else must he possess to obtain success in the business world? Perhaps the most important thing is the right mental attitude. Many young men are ambitious and full of enthusiasm. They want to go places in a hurry. But their ambition is purely selfish and personal, and takes the form of desiring a wage increase every few months and frequent advances in rank. They are working for themselves, not for the company. Such men must realize that they cannot go far until their viewpoint is changed. They must learn that the good of the company must be their first consideration and must come to find satisfaction in contributing to its progress rather than in their own private advancement.

Rockford Farmer Makes Apples Pay

Can apples be grown on a commercial scale profitably in Alabama?

Ask K. Max McEwen, of Rockford, Coosa County, this question and his answer would probably be "yes."

Six years ago Mr. McEwen decided there was some way to make a better living on the farm than by growing cotton and corn. He decided to grow apples on a commercial scale. He set about 40 acres of his place in the Winesap and Golden Delicious varieties.

Last year was the first time the trees bore enough fruit to authorize him to market it. He harvested about 500 bushels and these were sold for $1.75 per bushel, the ordinary apple bringing $1 per bushel. These apples are of the type which are grown in Washington and New York, but Mr. McEwen has the advantage over growers in these states since the apples ripen about a month early in Alabama.

Mr. McEwen also has a large number of peach and pecan trees in his orchard. The orchard is sprayed every year and truck crops are interplanted in it. One year this successful farmer planted tomotoes from which he realized a good profit. The next year Irish potatoes were planted, and last year soy beans were planted and used for hay.

Mr. McEwen already has a market for his apples this year and is expecting $2 per bushel for them. He expects to clear about $1,000.

Present Pullman Service Won Over Rail Heads

A STRANGE twist of fate saved the fortunes of George Mortimer Pullman, founder of the sleeping car, from collapse in 1864, when he brought out his famous "Pioneer," first modern sleeper, at a cost of $20,000. Railroad men admired the car, but shook their heads at the size and construction. "Too wide for station platforms, too high for bridges," they said.

Pullman fought to alter the platforms and bridges, but his was a losing fight. When all seemed lost, tragic fate intervened. President Lincoln was assassinated April 14, 1865. The President's remains were moved in state from Washington to Springfield and, as special homage to the Emancipator, Pullman's new car was used as part of the funeral train. Bridges and platforms, accordingly, were quickly altered; and the "Pioneer" received its dedication at the solemn pageant.

Overnight the "Pioneer" became celebrated, this car of 75 years ago that was to prove the inspiration for the sleepers of today—sleepers that are carrying travelers to both the New York and San Francisco World's Fairs, as well as to every other point on the nation's map.

As an incentive to visit the Fairs, the Pullman Company is conducting a contest for the naming of new Pullman cars. Fifty free round-trip tickets to either World's Fair will be awarded for the best names submitted. Names will be judged on the basis of originality, uniqueness and suitability. Entry blanks may be secured at any of the 21,000 ticket agencies throughout the country and Canada, or by writing to the Pullman Company, Chicago.

The "Pioneer," shortly after its participation in the funeral of President Lincoln, was put into service on the Chicago & Alton railroad. When General Grant decided to use it on his visit to his old home in Galena, other roads made the necessary alterations on bridges and platforms. This was the spur that Pullman needed; he proceeded to build more cars, to be owned jointly by himself and the railroads.

After thirty years as an industrial leader and philanthropist, Pullman died at Chicago, October 19, 1897. His largest bequest at the time of his death, was of $1,200,000, which established the Pullman Free School of Manual Training, with these purposes:

"That the children of those associated with him in the town of Pullman and its enterprises might be trained in the ideals of clean living, good citizenship and industrial efficiency, which were his own inspiration, and through which alone the workman might hope to attain his true development."

Martin Predicts Big Increase In In Electric Power

Selma, Ala.—"An analysis of the growth of the power market in Alabama indicates that by 1950 the demand for power will be 60 per cent greater than for 1939, requiring no less than $100,000,000 new capital within the next 10 years and calling for the employment of 2,000 men in addition to our presnt operating personnel," Thomas W. Martin, president of Alabama Power Company told the Selma Rotary Club.

Mr. Martin was speaking on the subject, "Power Economics in Alabama," before the Selma Rotary Club and a large number of visitors at its regular meeting recently.

Mr. Martin said: "There is very little additional water power that can be developed on an economic basis and it follows that the additional power will have to be supplied from steam plants. We estimate that by 1950 our coal requirements to supply this volume of power will be not less than 1,000,000 tons per annum.

"For every dollar spent by the Power Company to increase power supply, industries and others will spend vastly more, and if in the course of the decade to come our company raises $100,000.000 in new capital, we should expect still additional investment throughout the State of at least five times that amount or $500,000,000.

"Were it possible to begin this long-deferred program in 1940, it would mean additional annual payrolls of about $2,500,000, or continuous employment by our company of almost 2,000 men in addition to its operating personnel. It would mean the purchase of materials and equipment, much of them from Alabama firms, amounting to $6,500,000 per annum, which would result in a large increase in the payrolls of the industries supplying them."

Calling attention to the fact that utilities in northern areas of the country have, in the past few years, refunded their securities in tremendous volume, taking advantage of the cheap money markets; where as in the Southeast this competitive situation which imposed a has been impossible because of the burden upon users of electricity in the South and upon all kinds of industry, Mr. Martin said:

"It is clear that our ability to meet the demands and opportunities I have pointed out depends upon the ability of the utility to raise new capital at reasonable rates, and by this I mean at an interest cost which is obtainable by other utilities in the United States. We have confidence that we can obtain money on such an interest rate, provided the laws of the State and nation give that reasonable assurance to the investor which he should have.

South's Part Small

"According to the report of Securities Exchange Commission, dated January 7, 1939, security issues of electric and gas utilities for 1935-36-37-38 amounted to $4,079,095,581, largely confined to Western, Eastern and Northern States; the total accredited to the Southeast being $214,000,000 or 5.3 per cent.

"There were no issues of electric companies, included in the $214,000,000 of financing, in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, the States immediately affected by Federal competition, except small amounts at Savannah and Lockhart, S. C.

Longer Staple Brings A Million

In a letter to Gov. Dixon recently Donald Comer, Alabama textile leader, estimated that improvement in the staple length of cotton had brought to 6,000 Alabama cotton growers in increased revenue of about $1,000,000.

Mr. Comer's letter follows:

"It is interesting that I just today have a letter from the Department of Agriculture showing that Alabama at the bottom of the cotton states in 1929, when only 2½ per cent of her crop was 15-16-inch staple and better, has lifted herself appreciably to where, in 1938, 63.6 per cent of her crop, or 676,924 bales, were of better staple. It is estimated that this brought to the 6,000 participating growers in Alabama an increased revenue of about $1,000,000.

Home Town Boy Makes Good — at Home

ALWAYS gratifying is the news that one of the home-town boys has made good in far places. But how much more gratifying it is to know that he has made good in his native state! One of the results of the work of our New Industries Division, since its establishment in 1923, has been the creation of wider opportunities for the boys and girls of Alabama---opportunities for employment and advancement in the industries which have established plants in Alabama, often as the result of years of solicitation and constant presentation of the many advantages Alabama has to offer expanding industry.

"I have said many times the Alabama Power Company has done more to develop Alabama than any corporation in the State because I have watched you from infancy; we would not have a lot of the industries we have at Opelika if it had not been for you."

—J. W. Dupree,
Route 2, Opelika, Ala.

"Within the past few years the Alabama Power Company has been instrumental in securing a number of new industries for this section. Some of these import raw materials and some export manufactured products."

—Mrs. Annie S. Howard,
1158 Church St.,
Mobile, Ala.

"Furthermore the part which the Alabama Power Company is taking in helping to develop Alabama industrially and agriculturally to furnish opportunities for our boys and girls to remain at home when they have finished their schooling will result in a better state for coming generations of Alabamians."

—Mrs. Jack P. Friday,
Plantersville, Ala.

"It helps to bring new factories to consume Alabama's raw materials and to give employment to thousands of willing workers."

—H. H. Greene, Jr.,
209 Lexington Rd.,
Montgomery, Ala.

"I can see many industries brought to Alabama through the influence of the Alabama Power Company, giving employment to thousands of people at a living wage."

—R. L. Faucett,
Prattville, Ala.

"It is a well-established fact that the Alabama Power Company has been one of the principal driving forces behind our state industrial development for many years."

LIONS MEET

ever was a short talk by Governor-elect Andrews. These two addresses were interesting to say the least. Mr. Bell pointed out the objectives of the Lions Organization, the work they are doing and in their efforts to render a service to the community in which Clubs are located. His address touched on the necessity of a State-wide Stock Law, one of the major objectives of Alabama Lions, and other interesting subjects. He congratulated Clanton on its civic pride and on the splendid display of interest in the forming of a Lions Club here He expressed belief that this organization would join with the other civic Clubs in Clanton in working for the upbuilding of this communty. He climaxed his address with the presentation of the charter to the Clanton Club's President, Leroy B. Martin. President Martin responded with a speech of acceptance that did credit to the Club he heads as well as Clanton as a whole.

The Clanton Pilot Club entertained following the banquet with a dance at the Blue Moon Inn near Verbena. This Club also furnished beautiful flowers for the banquet.

CLANTON HAS WHAT THEY WANT

Or at least the Lancaster Cafeteria has what they want, for they want friend chicken. We were shown a letter by M. R. Lancaster, manager of the Cafeteria here bearing that name, which he received from Hiawatha, Kansas, from a tourist who stated that his party enjoyed the fried chicken Mr. Lancaster served them so well that they went back the second time for more. Still craving fried chicken, this gentleman stated that his party would be through Clanton again in the near future, and designated the day and hour that he wanted Mr. Lancaster to have lunch prepared—with fried chicken. He informed that they would spend the night at the Ellis Tourist Camp and for their breakfast the next morning they wanted (you guess it this time) This gentleman must have had an idea that he would want some more fried chicken, so—well, we'll quote from his letter: " . . . Now we want you to have fried for us to take with us five fried chicken. We were shown a let-two in another box, Friday morning. We thought this would give you time to have same and we would not have to wait in the morning when we got ready to leave (Friday) . . ."

L. H. REYNOLDS WRITES ABOUT CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

Clanton, Alabama.
"Editor, Chilton County News,
"Dear Sir:

"I would like to express my personal opinion of two of the five amendments which are to be voted upon on Tuesday, July 1, 1939 — Amendment Number Three, providing for the Legislature convening every two years instead of every four years and the Amendment which makes provision for voting machines in Alabama.

"Every voter in Alabama should consider these amendments seriously and from every angle whether it will be best for our interests to approve or reject them. I am against Amendment No. Three and will so express my objection at the polls on election day. The only plausible argument I have heard for the passage of this amendment is that by meeting biennially instead of quadrenially the expenses of the Legislature will be less. The Legislature now can remain in session sixty legislative days which can be stretched by putting in two days each week to approximately 200 calendar days. Under the proposed amendment the total days in regular session for four years would be approximately 130 days, that is, for regular sessions the proponents of this amendment claim that there will be a savings to the taxpayer, and their view alone, from this angle may be correct. However, there is a much broader scope to this amendment. I have personally followed the proceedings of the Legislature for over forty years and have been a member of some of them and at each session after the books are closed the people of Alabama can say, "I have less liberties than I had at the beginning of the session", and I believe the figures will bear me out, that at the close of each session our tax burdens were much heavier than at the beginning. In other words so far as taxpayer's burdens are concerned, I am sure we would have benefitted much more had the Legislature met only once every ten years for the past half century. My point is that the Legislature could find less ways of taxing the people and would place less taxes on them by meeting each four years than by meeting twice in four years and I am honest and sincere in my opinion that it will be best for the people of Alabama to vote against this omendment.

"There is another amendment, which provides for voting machines. If this were all I would not be so strongly opposed to the amendment, as it does not make it compulsory for the counties to install voting machines, but of course, if a Local Bill was passed by the members of the Legislature, they would have to be installed and to do so would be very expensive for the smaller counties to install expensive voting machines at each voting precinct, Chilton County having twenty-six; but there is a much more serious provision in this amendment and we might term it the "negro in the wood pile." This amendment gives the Legislature full power to control general and primary elections. In other words I have heard it rumored around that there is a bill already drawn to give the Governor of Alabama the right to appoint three election managers for the county and these appointees to have the right to appoint the election officials and take this power out of the hands of the Probate Judge, the Circuit Clark and the Sheriff, whom you elect. In other words, under this Amendment it is the opinion of many who have considered it that if this amendment is passed, the entire supervision and management of holding elections could be taken away from this county and placed under the supervision of the Governor or some appointee of his. A free and untrammeled electon is the last bulwark of your liberties, consider well before you release it.

"I do not think, therefore, that there is enough sufficient good in this amendment to offset the danger that lurks therein. I shall vote against this amendment providing for voting machines on July 11, 1939.

"The above are my personal views and I, as well as the other citizens of our county, would appreciate the view of any person on these or other amendments as our rights are all tied together and what is good for one is good for all.

"Yours very truly,
"L. H. REYNOLDS."

We Observe

By BONNIE HAND

They Honor Him—

One of the most impressive ceremonies in the history of Chilton County was carried out at Lay Dam last Saturday morning. It has never been our privilege heretofore to witness a more fitting tribute paid to any man, as that bestowed on Capt. William P. Lay, founder, organizer and first president of the Alabama Power Company. This Company is indeed fortunate to be able to enjoy the companionship of Mr Lay, who is past eighty-five years of age. Our opinion is that any honor bestowed on any man in recognition of services rendered to mankind, is more complete and fitting while that person is alive, and privileged to receive the honors heaped upon him. It is a fact that cannot be denied that Chilton County owes a great deal to Cap. Lay, for Chilton County has benefitted much from the foresight of this distinguished person. It cannot be denied that the Alabama Power Company has meant more to Clanton and Chilton County than any other utility. "A private industry for the public good."

This Hurts, Too—

The Union-Banner carried an account f an incident that occurred at their ffice recently, when a good friend sked the job printing department to ework a printing job that had been ungled by an out-of-town printer. That as irksome, we are sure. Something lse that doesn't make us feel too ood is to pay a bill on the first of he month ,submitted to us on a bill ead not printed in Clanton. Oh, well, uess we had the privilege of buying he items out of town.

How Much Longer—

It has been exactly seven months nd seven days since the Chilton Coun- y High School building was destroyed y fire. We are prone to wonder how uch longer the Clanton Baptist Church ill be called upon to furnish quarters r the school's classes. This newspaper ommended in a front page editorial the issue following the fire, the lendid public spirited stand taken by e Clanton Baptist Church in offer- g their annex so that classes might ntinue the remainder of the term. t that time we all thought it would only a matter of days until work ould begin on a new building, but ags have been hit in this matter and w we find that days have lapsed into eks; weeks into months, and before g a year will have passed. How much nger are we going to impose upon e g[illegible] nature of the membership of e Clanton Baptist Church? We do t know where the trouble lies, but is time that something of a material ture was being done about this all- portant matter. No doubt that the oblem of raising funds for this build- is a perplexing one, and that all orts to solve this problem have been cere. There is one thing that we do ow, and that is Clanton and Chilton unty have allowed seven months to se and all that we have to show this seven months is an architect's wing of the proposed new Chilton unty High School. And we feel sure t we express the sentiment of many en we say that whenever a building constructed, it should be one that can all feel proud of, and is in with the march of progress of ilton County.

INTEREST SEEN IN PROPOSED LOCAL BILLS

NEWS SWAMPED WITH LETTERS REGARDING MATTER OF VOTE ON THREE ISSUES

Leaping to life this week is an issue that is of much importance to the voters of Chilton County, and the News has received a number of letters from citizens of the County in which they discuss the matter from their viewpoint. Included in this group of letters is one from Senator Karl Harrison and one from Representative Percy M. Pitts. The News is carrying all of these letters on another page of this issue, and is urging that its readers read all of them carefully, due to the fact that the matter is of much importance to the entire citizenship.

This issue is centered around the proposed submitting to the voters of this county on July 11, the time when the Constitutional Amendments will be voted upon, three local bills vitally affecting three branches of the County Government. It is proposed to submit these bills to the voters for them to determine whether or not they wish them to be enacted by the Legislature at its next session.

One of these bills is in the form of a referendum relative to the office of the County Farm Agent. At present the Court of County Commissioners are required by a local bill passed in 1936, to make appropriation of $4300 to pay the salaries of a County Agent, Assistant County Agent, Home Demonstration Agent and assistants. This law, which was enacted by the 1936 Legislature, is also being printed in this issue of the News along with the other letters on the matter.

The other two proposed bills affect the County Court system, and are as follows:

One proposes to create an Inferior Court in this County that has as its purpose to relieve the congested condition of the Circuit Court. This bill

CITY CONTINUES WORK OF EXTENDING SANITARY SEWERS

Mayor C. Fenn Jones announced this week that the City is busy at the task of extending the sanitary sewers to every part of the City. The Mayor estimates that this job will consume near a year and a half.

Fifteen-inch pipes are being laid as main lines running east and west in the northern and southern part of the City, and will serve the latest additions to the City limits. The City plans to erect a sewage disposal plant when this work of improving and extending the city lines is completed.

CROWDS ATTEND FOURTH OF JULY GATHERINGS

CLANTON AND THORSBY DRAW LARGEST CROWDS; INTERESTING PROGRAMS

Chilton County celebrated the Fourth of July in a patriotic manner this year. There were several gatherings over the County where programs of entertainment were rendered to large gatherings.

Perhaps the largest gatherings were at Thorsby and Clanton, where interesting and entertaining programs had been arranged for the day.

At Clanton a large crowd gathered in the morning part of the day at the Chilton County High School grounds where the Clanton-Maplesville Basebal Club had planned a program of entertainment, climaxed in the evening by the appearance of Happy Hal Byrnes and his group of entertainers at the Courthouse. During the day two baseball games were played between the local Club and the Birmingham Paper Company. One of the highlights of the day was an address by C. E. Stapp at 2:30 in the afternoon. Mr. Stapp's talk was of a patriotic nature and was enjoyed by a large gathering. Climbing the greasy pole, catching the greasy pig, serving of barbecue and other entertainment were provided during the day.

At Thorsby one of the largest gatherings in several years enjoyed a day of celebrating in a big way. This celebration was sponsored by Thorsby's wide-awake Community Club, and the program of the day featured a "March of Time Parade,' 'and baseball games. Reports coming from this gathering was that it was one of the most orderly and entertaining ever held at that place.

There were also other gatherings over the County, sponsored by organizations, and as far as could be ascertained by the News Chilton County spent a healthy and patriotic Fourth of July.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY MARKS UNVEILING OF TABLET TO LAY

Employees And Friends Of Alabama Power Company Take Part In Honoring Organizer and First President At Lay Dam Last Saturday

Lay Dam, first hydro-electric plant of the Alabama Power Company, was the scene last Saturday morning of an occasion that will long be remembered. A bronze tablet in recognition of the contribution of William Patrick Lay, to the progress and development of Alabama as founder and organzer of the Alabama Power Company, one of Alabama's and certainly Chilton County's most beneficial utility, was unveiled.

Captain Lay was present on this occasion, and something like two hundred officials of the Company, and friends of Captain Lay were present. President Martin was toastmaster. A platform with loud speaker was erected on the Dam directly in front of the power plant, to which the bronze tablet was affixed. Mr. Martin paid fitting tribute to Capt. Lay; told of the early history of the Alabama Power Company and of its purpose today. On the platform was one of the earliest hydro-electric plants, which dated back over fifty years. This small outfit consisted of a water wheel and generator, and compared to the mighty plants of today in such a way that the mighty strides of this industry could clearly be seen. It was the bridge between these two plants that was traveled by William Patrick Lay back in the days when he visioned, and worked out to reality the industry that today is one of Alabama's greatest servants.

In 1929 the name of Lay Dam was substituted for Lock 12, by act of the Board of Directors of the Company. An all day celebration to which the public was invited and which was attended by thousands, marked the dedication. At that time the company planned to erect a tablet at the plant in honor of Capt. Lay, but ten years elapsed before this was carried out. Lay Dam was completed in 1914, and has since been followed by several other plants on Alabama's rivers.

Also present at the unveiling last Saturday was Oliver Hood, Mr. Lay's legal adviser and lifelong friends, who, with Mr. Lay's son, also present, were his aids in founding this gerat Company. Mr. Hood spoke of the early history of the company, and its rapid growth. His interesting remarks were followed by talks by several prominent officeholders of the County and citizens, namely: Judge J. Lee Smith, Mayor C. Fenn Jones of Clanton, Representative Percy M. Pitts, Editor T. E. Wyatt of the Union-Banner; Publisher Mark L. Tucker of the Chilton County News. Each speaker praised the Alabama Power Company for its service to Alabama and of its contribution to the growth and welfare of Chilton County. Each praised the untiring efforts and accomplishments of Captain Lay.

Next came the unveiling of the tablet by little Miss Suan Powers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Powers. Mr. Powers is superintendent of the plant. Response was by Captain Lay, who expressed his gratitude for the honor bestowed upon him.

Following is the inscription on the bronze tablet unveiled:

"To give away our surplus of wheat, pigs, cotton to people who otherwise would have none would be competition with no one except death."—Arthur Dunn.

RESTRICTING TVA

"Nothing that the House has done so far this season ought to bring more reassurance to business than the bill it has passed to control the Tennessee Valley Authority," said the New York Times in recent editorial. "In several important directions the bill limits the Authority's present powers and discretion. It restricts its future activities to sixteen Alabama counties, Northern Mississippi and the area in which it is now operating. It requires that its accounts and disbursements be subject to the same procedure in relation to the General Accounting Office as other governmental agencies. It requires the Authority to set up a sinking fund for amortization of all expenditures, past, present and future. It removes the Government's guarantee of any bonds issued by the Authority under the act."

"These changes, if the Senate can be got to agree to them, will go far toward restoring public confidence in the future of the electric utility industry. They will give assurance that Government competition is to be geographically restricted. They will do much to make certain that TVA charges rates sufficient to pay for its investment. They will not abolish Government ownership and operation of power generating plants, or destroy an interesting and a valuable experiment; but they will more nearly compel this experiment to stand comparison with private ownership and operation on its merits."

We would add to this very clear presentation of facts that the concurrence of the Senate in the House Bill would bring a sense of security to thousands of Alabamians who have invested in private utility stocks and who see their life savings imperiled unless some limit is placed upon T.V.A. both as to the amount of money it can grab from the treasury and the territory it can invade which is now satisfactorily served by splendid private utilities. We wonder why the members of congress from Alabama do not look to the good of their constituents to a greater extent and to the wishes of Senator Norris, not even a Democrat, to a lesser extent in determining how to vote upon this matter.

The May bill differs from the Senate bill in only a few respects:

1. It fixes the amount of the bond authorization at $65,000,000 which Congressman Sparkman and Rankin, both strong supporters of TVA, have admitted to be more adequate to complete the purchase of utility properties desired by TVA. The Senate bill fixed the bond authorization at $100,000,000; but in view of the admissions by the TVA advocates that $65,000,000 is more than adequate the May bill should, in this respect, be satisfactory to TVA proponents.

2. It prohibits any increase in the percentage of revenue paid by TVA to the States of Alabama and Tennessee. Certainly in this respect it does the TVA no harm.

3. It requires that the bonds be issued only on the faith and credit of TVA and not upon the faith and credit of the United States. This provision should not be objectionable to the TVA. Obviously the bonds will be purchased b ythe Treasury of the United States or by one of the government's financing agencies.

4. It defines the area in which TVA shall operate, and this is the provision to which the advocates of TVA strenuously object.

The situation created by the action of the Senate in declining, on motion of Senator Norris, to agree to the amendments to this bill which had for its purpose the ratification of the sale by utilities of their properties to Tennessee Valley Authority is one of intense interest to the people of Alabama, and in fact to the people of the entire South. Much confusion has resulted from statements with respect to limiting the area to be served by TVA that can be cleared up once the facts are known. No one would wish to destroy the Tennessee Valley Authority nor to hamper it. Everyone would like to see it reach a maximum of efficiency and to see it placed in position to render service to its utmost. Likewise, no one would wish to see our private utilities destroyed. Everyone would wish to see them reach their maximum of efficiency and to continue to perform their public obligations. Bearing in mind this desideratum, let us examine the facts.

For long years the theory that competition between utilities is un-economic and wasteful has been recognized as being sound. That theory was supported by testimony by representatives of the TVA and by the Chairman of the Chattanooga Public Power Board. Both sides to the long and bitter controversy having subscribed to that theory, let us examine the question whether Tennessee Valley Authority will, if the House bill is adopted, have a proper area of serivce. Credence should be given to what the TVA itself has said with respect to that subject. In his testimony before the TVA Investigating Committee (p. 12608) on December 7, 1938, Mr. Krug, Chief Power Engineer of the Tennessee Valley Authority, said:

"I would just like to add to this point that the acquisition of the Commonwealth & Southern properties I have mentioned and the acquisition of the Memphis property would complete our marketing plans for the entire 10-dam system."

Later, in hearings before the Senate Subcom on Appropriations on February 15, 1939 (p. 65), Mr. Krug said:

"With the basis of agreement reached for acquisition of existing facilities of the Tennessee Electric Power Co., and the Memphis Power & Light Co. by the TVA and local public agencies, competition between distributors of the Authority's surplus power and private utilities has been practically eliminated. With the acquisition of certain small electric systems in northern Mississippi and northern Alabama, the adjustment between the Authority and private utilities will be completed in an area sufficient to absorb substantially all of the surplus power from the Authority's present and proposed dams."

Close upon the heels of that statement we find a dispatch emanating from the train in which President Roosevelt was going to Key West on February 18, 1939, which stated:

"When told there were 'fears' on the part of some in the utility field, the President remarked that was just one example of how generalities are destroyed when viewed in the light of specific facts.

"'He said for a year and a half about 95 percent of the utility people had known and accepted as fact that the Government was not going in for any further power development . . .

"As for Commonwealth & Southern, he said it was only concerned about its operations in the Tennessee area, and that was all settled now, evidently referring to sale of its Tennessee properties to TVA."

When Mr. Krug was examined before the May Committee with respect to the authorization of bonds to provide for the purchase of the utility properties in Tennessee, north Alabama and north Mississippi, he made statements of similar purport.

To sum up these statements: the area which the Tennessee Valley Authority will acquire under the contract and in its present negotiations will be sufficient to absorb all of the surplus power from the Authority's present and proposed dams. It has, or will acquire, in these negotiations all of the territory that it can serve, and it is clear that in point of fact, the May amendment will not restrict it. If the May amendment will not in fact restrict TVA, if TVA acquires all the territory which its plants can serve, are not the advocates of TVA getting themselves into the position of the dog in the manger?

Having examined the situation of the Tennessee Valley Authority, let us now turn to that of the utilities. Year after year Congress has appropriated millions of dollars for the purposes of TVA. Year after year the Public Works Administration has made gifts and loans to municipalities in the area for the construction of systems to provide outlets for TVA power. In this situation the market prices of the utility securities have suffered. The utilities must secure their funds through the sale of their securities and their stocks to the public. The two greatest factors that influence the level of rates are interest and taxes. These two items consume more than half the gross revenue dollar of utilities.

As to the item of taxes, there is little the utility can do. Values are determined by taxing authorities and the classes and rates of taxation are fixed by legislative bodies.

As to the item of fixed charges or rates of interest paid on their securities, there is something that the utilities can do, but only in event Government policies are such as will permit them to do it. The greatest factor influencing the matter of interest rates is that of safety of investment. So long as there is no provision in the law which will preserve markets presently served and to be served by the utilities from raids by Government power agencies, the investor will have, and can have, no assurance as to the safety of his investment. Representatives of the utility industry have long pointed out the savings to the utilities and to the public which would accrue from refinancing in the present low-cost money market. Such saving is not inconsiderable. A large part could, and should, be passed along to the customers of the private utilities.

Unless the Government intends to occupy the whole utility field, unless it intends to serve the entire United States, and that very promptly, it should be willing to define that territory which it will serve and to assure private investors that it will not go beyond the territory so marked out for service by it. Its present attitude is a warning to the investing public that further market raids may be conducted. There is no uncertainty about it. The Norrisess and and Rankins and the Sparkmans have run up the warning signal. That warning retards the construction of utility facilities not only in the territory immediately adjacent to the Valley, but in areas far removed from the Tennessee Valley area.

For practically ten years no private utility in the South has been able to undertake major extensions of its plants and lines, due to inability to obtain funds from the investing public. As stated by the representative of the utilities who appeared before the May committee, what the utilities themselves think makes no differece; it is what the investor thinks that makes the difference. So long as the threat exists, investors will not hazard the investment of his funds in Southern utilities. Surely there can be no sane objection to the enactment of legislation which will give the investor such assurances as will permit him to invest his idle money in the securites of the private utilities. The question of duplication of facilities, ruinous competition, and the advisability of a clear definition of area of service was well presented by Congressman Sparkman during the examination of a representative of a miners' union who was urging that the territory of TVA be defined. Note the following colloquy (Hearings, May 24, 1939):

"Mr. Arends (a member of the subcommittee). Will the gentleman yield there? Is it not the intention of the TVA, though, to extend is activities on beyond the counties you have enumerated?

"Mr. Sparkman. Only in those cities in which they already have contracts. I think that has been discussed here by Mr. Krug. As a matter of fact, these negotiations do have the effect of bringing into the service of the TVA enough territory to consume the output, and therefore will constitute a restriction of territory.

"Mr. Sparkman . . . . And, as a matter of fact, do you not think it is better for business in general to know in what territory a power company will be left to operate exclusively, and in what territory the TVA will operate exclusively? In other words, instead of having the competition,—now, you know something about some of the ruinous competition in some of the communities down there, do you not?

"Mr. Woods. Yes, sir.

"Mr. Sparkman. Do you not think it would be much better for one company to operate in one place and another company in another place, and not have duplicating systems?"

OF MORE THAN USUAL IMPORTANCE

By making the slogan "What Alabama Makes, makes Alabama" the theme of the State Fair to be held in Birmingham Oct. 2-7, sponsors of the annual event clothe it in more than usual importance.

Agricultural and industrial advancement were originally the purposes for which fairs were held, and the determination of those who are promoting the event in Birmingham to get away from the modern tendency to stress thrills and amusement may ultimately prove to be a strong blow in behalf of state-building.—Selma Times-Journal.

HARMONY AND COOPERATION

A Republican representative in the Alabama legislature boosting a Democratic senator is something new under the sun. We never expected to see it. But we have seen it and we are going to tell about it.

"That fellow Karl Harrison who is the senator from the counties of Shelby, Chilton and Autauga is a wonderful campaigner and a fine man," said Republican Representative Percy Pitts of Chilton County.

"How comes a Republican like you denominates a Democratic senator a fine fellow?" the columnist asked.

"Well, he is a fine fellow and I am waiting for him now and we are going to ride back together," said Mr. Pitts. "I have observed him and he is one of the best campaigners I ever saw and he is still young. His father succeeded my father in office in Shelby County.

Percy Pitts, the Republican from Chilton is too good a man to be a Republican. He is a better Democrat than many Democrats who come to the Alabama Legislature. But he believes in Republicanism and nobody can change him but he makes Chilton County a fine representative and he can get as many things done as any Democrat in the House. He enjoys the confidence of the speaker, the floor leaders who are Democrats, the press and the Governor and everybody else.—Atticus Mullin in Montgomery Advertiser.

MARK REMARKS

Captain William Patrick Lay—A bronze tablet "in recognition of the contribution of William Patrick Lay to the progress and development of Alabama" was unveiled with appropriate ceremonies Saturday at Lay Dam (formerly Lock Twelve) on the Coosa River.

Years ago when the average Alabamian was thinking of the Coosa River only as a place to fish and hunt, William Patrick Lay, then a steamboat captain, was dreaming of a day when great turbines would be responding to the mighty force of the restrained shoal waters of the Coosa. In his vision he saw thousands of homes, factories and workshops brilliantly lighted; tens of thousands of delicate machines, at the touch of a button, responding to this power which was to lighten the burdens of mankind and to better serve his daily needs.

While honoring this great man for the achievements he has attained, we must no be unmindful of the vision, the untiring ef forts and accomplishments of his associ ates, who have placed within reach of almos every Alabama home so many of the worth while things which make for the mor abundant life.

It has been said that "the mill will neve grind with the water that is past"—but th Lays, the Martins, the Mitchell's the Jor dans, and their army of loyal helpers, ar continually making millions of wheels re volve, to serve mankind, with the wate that is passing, and the water that has pass ed.

To the vision of William Patrick Lay first president of the Alabama Powe Company, his associates, successors and as sistants, must be given the credit for th building of Alabama's greatest and mos beneficial public utility.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

GYPS

I STOOD for an hour watching a pitch man coining money. He was selling a useless gadget worth a dime at the ten cent store.

By clothing it with mystery and high-power sales talk he sold this gadget like hot cakes—at a dollar. And the crowd pressed around for more.

Charles Roth

I thought it must be wonderful to have a business like that—if only it would last, if only the customers would come back for more. But I knew they wouldn't.

Two days later I passed the doorway where the pitch man had been operating but he had decamped. Where was he? In some other city, probably miles away, going through the same tricks.

These pitch men, almost without exception, die broke. Inspired salesmen, really with a talent for persuading people that amounts to genius, they nevertheless fill pauper's graves, and spend their old ages in cheap rooming-houses.

What's the trouble with them?

It isn't hard to find: They do not give value. They depend upon talk to replace quality, tricks to do away with honesty. They lose as every dishonest man must.

You have never seen an advertisement of one of these gyps. You never will. There are two reasons why.

One is that no reputable newspaper will accept their advertising, because a newspaper takes its obligation to its readers so seriously that it investigates advertisers and rejects those that do not give honest value.

The second reason is that advertising is an investment, and not a gamble. And these pitch men are gamblers.

The man who advertises says in effect to you: "I am operating a business in your service. I will offer goods you want. My prices will be reasonable. I have become a definite part of this community. My money is invested here. Here I intend to remain, a part of your community life. I sell good goods, and in my advertising I tell the truth about them."

Because you have been "gypped" by buying wild cat brands and by patronizing itinerant peddlers and door-to-door solicitors without a responsible place in the community, you now buy advertised goods from merchants who advertise.

This is the course which is followed by the shrewdest buyers. It is the course they have discovered which pays them the best.

It will also pay you best.

J. C. EDWARDS WRITES

It seems that the farmers have planted the monstrosity totalitarian dictator cotton seed this year and are well pleased with it. The only exception is it lets too much grass grow around it and it has no protection from the boll weevils, though the weevil may think it just a hay patch and likely continue their journey. Some people say the less you make the more money you will have. The less money we make the nearer starvation we get. All this monstrosity totalitarian dictators that is going among the nations is likely to be a wrong step to bring peace and prosperity. Grow cotton, grow for we need overalls and boots and we are busy canning fruits. Many people would buy ice if they had the money and drink tea twice a day.

Grow cotton, keep growing for we Remember, cotton, we have got to can tomatoes and plow and have potatoes and there is late corn patches that need plowing and the Fourth of July is near by and many great lectures will be heard, but not much will be said about the monstrosity and the totalitarian dictatorial business that is going on among the Nations that will likely cause a separation of sheep and goats. We are living in a day of grassy crops and who shall be able to work it out. In one verse of Bible the word "calamity" is found three times.

Farm Population Largest On Record

The Farm population of the United States on January 1, 1939, was close to the largest on record, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics estimated today. The total was 32,059,000 persons. This compares with 31,819,000 on January 1, 1938, and with the all-time high of 32,077,000 on January 1, 1910. From 1910 to 1927 there was a decline of almost 2,000,000 persons in the farm population. Since 1927 there has been an increase of about 2,000,000.

Estimates by the Bureau show that the increase in farm population during 1938 was 240,000 persons. This is the largest increase reported since 1932. The total increase since the beginning of 1933 has been less than 400,000 persons.

Farmers Asked For AAA Changes

Alabama farmers with recommendations as to changes in the 1940 Agricultural Conservation program should advise immediately their county and community committees of the needed changes, announces A. W. Jones, Alabama administrative officer

"There will be a national conference in Washington, July 10, 11, and 12, to plan next year's program and it will be most helpful to this national committee if it has recommendations and suggestions from county and community committeemen, farmers, and others interested in the success of the agricultural conservation program and its best adaption to farmer "needs," he says in a letter to county agents and county administrative assistants.

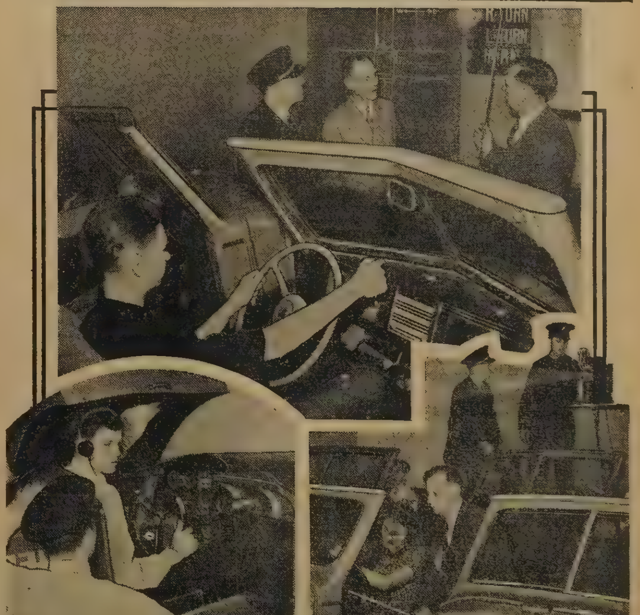
High School Training Cars Like "Dummy" Plane



How to drive the modern motor car will become a regular part of the public High School curriculum for the first time this Fall, when a special class in Motor Vehicle Operation will be opened for students over 14 years of age at the high school in Highland Park, Mich.

For this unusual course, local school and police officials have designed an automotive counterpart of the Link Training Plane, (lower left), that simulates every activity of an airplane yet remains safely on the ground.

Individual, dummy automobiles for the students to "drive" through traffic situations flashed on a movie screen (lower right), were built to the educators' special design in the Detroit factories of Plymouth Motor Corp. Instead of engine and wheels, the units are wired to an electric "tell-tale" board at the front of the room.

This is shown in the picture above, as Instructor V. J. Hofman demonstrates the apparatus for D. S. Eddins, Plymouth president, and Police Chief Dan Patch of Highland Park, who witnessed first trial session of the class. School officials plan to make the driving class an individual, elective course, with credit given to all high school students who pass.

For this work, the school had the Plymouth factory construct six driving compartments of the latest type—complete with self-rising front seats for proper eye-level, new-style gearshifts mounted under the steering wheel, "safety-signal" speedometers to warn of dangerous driving speeds, accelerator and all foot controls.

VOTERS EXPRESS CONFLICTING VIEWS ON QUESTION OF PROPOSED LOCAL LEGISLATION

LETTER OF IMPORTANCE TO VOTERS OF COUNTY

Clanton, Alabama,
July 3, 1939.

"To The Citizens of Chilton County:

"Someone may hand you a ballot at the election on July 11, and ask you to express yourself by voting for or against a local bill to repeal a law approved March 17, 1936, which was passed to establish our Chilton County Farm Extension Unit and make provisions for the expenses of this unit in cooperation with our Federal and State Governments.

"On this date we have seen no official notice of this election and we are unable to find out who is financing the printing of these ballots and other incidentals to holding such an election, if held.

"We attach hereto a copy of the law referred to above.

"We should like to call your attention to the following facts and give them consideration before you cast your ballot if you have an opportunity to vote on this issue.

"1. That we need our Extension Service Unit to assist us in carrying out our Farm Program in Chilton County.

"2. The law we now have gives our elected Commissioners Court adequate power to represent the people of the County (See Section 2 of the law attached)

"3. This law provides for an Assistant 4-H Club work to work with farm boys from 10 to 21 years of age. We believe this to be a very important work. We are informed that approximately 98 per cent of the farm boys in Alabama have this opportunity and we believe our Chilton County boys are also entitled to this advantage. They did not have this opportunity until this law became effective.

"4. The funds used to pay the expenses of our Farm Extension Unit as provided by this law are collected by the State of Alabama, sent to Chilton County by the State and ordered by law to be paid out for the maintenance of our Health, Welfare and Extension Units.

"5. We are authoritatively informed that our Farm Extension work under this law costs our County less than the same work in our adjoining Counties.

"6. We believe it to be for the best interests of our County to keep this law and keep our Farm Program in the hands of our farm people in Chilton County.

"We would therefore urge you to vote against any effort to repeal this law."

GERALD HUBBARD WRITES TO VOTERS OF COUNTY

"To the Voters of Chilton County:

"I would like to submit the following statement in reference to the County Agent for the consideration of those who will vote on July 11.

"I have been told that there will be a ballot at the polls to register public sentiment in reference to the Local Bill that makes appropriations for County Agency work in our County.

"No official announcement has been made in reference to this ballot but you will remember that there was such a ballot presented to the voters at the general election November 8, 1938, and that there was no official announcement made. This leads me to believe that one may appear at the polls July 11.

"I would like also to call your attention to the fact that no public announcement was ever made of the results of the voting on this matter November 8. I have been reliably informed that there were 1250 votes cast on this issue. Six hundred and thirty-one (631) votes were for retaining this Act and five hundred and thirty-one (531) votes were cast to repeal the Act. It seems to me that the Act should be left alone.

"It seems to me that some person or group of persons are interested in [illegible] a vote against this Act and are not interested in registering public sentiment in reference to it.

"I believe that in fairness to all concerned the parties who want a vote should have called a referendum properly advertised and not try to slip something over on the people. We are entitled to know the facts on both sides and all the people should have an opportunity to vote intelligently on this matter. Usually the vote is light when Constitutional Amendments are voted on, but I believe if all the people knew that there would be a vote on whether or not we would retain our County Agent, Home Demonstration Agent, and 4-H Club Leader there would be more of them come to the polls and vote.

I believe in being governed by a majority of the people, but I want every body to have the facts about any matter before they are asked to vote.

"GERALD HUBBARD."

W. J. JONES WRITES

Jemison, Alabama,
July 1, 1939.

"To the Voters of Chilton County:

"I noticed that there will be an election July 11, at which the voters of Chilton County are to be given an opportunity to vote on some local legislation, which has never been done many times before. As I understand it this is merely to get the wishes of the people under a referendum.

"I am highly in favor of putting the County Agent's office back under the control of the Commissioners Court of our County. I have always stood for the people having a say as to how their money would be spent and for the electing of all our officers. If $4,300.00 of the tax payers' money of this County is to be spent for a County Agent, I believe in the tax payers of the County by their elected County Commissioners having some say so in who our County Agent will be to receive that much money. With the local law as it is now the farmers and tax payers' money of the County is in effect being placed at the Extension Service of Auburn's disposal, as they are the only ones who have any say so as to who our County Agent will be.

"I want you voters to forget the false propaganda and reports being circulated that the abolishing of the local law will do away with the County Agent's office, and the 4-H Club work in the County. It will merely put all this under the control of your elected officials, The Commissioners' Court, that can be touched by the citizens of the County without having to go through Auburn.

"I notice that we are to be given a privilege to vote on whether or not the County office, the County Solictor, will be elected or appointed. I am in favor of every officer of the County drawing the tax payers money of the County to be elected by the voters of the county. The County Solicitor I am informed draws $100.00 per month of the tax payers money of Chilton County and I think he ought to be accountable to the tax payers of the County for his services and I strongly indorse this office being made elective. If we are going to stand by and let the Circuit Solicitor continue to appoint our County Solicitor I feel like we should require the Circuit Solicitor to pay him.

"I strongly urge every voter to go to the polls and express your wishes one time on a non-poltical matter.

"W. J. JONES."

B. L. COBB WRITES

July 3, 1939.

"Chilton County News,
"Clanton, Alabama.
"Mr. Editor:

"I want a little space to thank all the good people for the nice things said to me about my letter in last week's paper. I believe ninety per cent of the people are in favor of the Local matters discussed in that letter, from what has been said to me.

"This being the last issue of the paper before the election, I want to insist that every voter take a few minutes and go vote July 11, on the Amendments to the Constitution and especially on the three Local Matters:

"First: The Repeal of the County Agent Bill.

"Second: The Election of the County Solicitor.

"Third: The Creating of an Inferior Court.

"On the last matter, I have been a Justice of the Peace ten years in Beat Two, Chilton County, and have time and time again seen the great need for reducing the cost of court procedures in our county.

"Last, I want to warn you about much false propaganda that is being circulated over the County about these matters. BEWARE of it but go to the polls and vote your honest convictions on next Tuesday.

"Yours truly,
"B. L. COBB."

SENATOR KARL HARRISON STATES VIEWS ON MATTER

"Editor, Chilton County News,
"Clanton, Alabama.
"Dear Sir:

"Some months ago Mr. Percy Pitts, Representative from Chilton County, and I attended a meeting held at the Court House in Clanton, at which meeting there was discussed certain local legislation for Chilton County. There was some dscussion of the advisablity of repealng your local Act which provides a fixed amount to be paid by your County Commissioners to your County Agent, Home Demonstration Agent, and certain of their assistants.

"I suggested that this question be submitted to the people of Chilton County at the time they vote on certain Constitutional Amendments, which suggestion was agreed upon by a majority of the persons present, as well as by Mr. Pitts. Mr. Pitts then mentioned the question of creating an infeiror court for your county and the question of making the office of your Deputy Solicitor an elective office, and sugested that these two questions be voted upon by the people at the same time they vote on the County Agent Bill. I agreed to this, and so did a majority of those present at the meeting.

"I now undersand that there is a mvement on foot in Chilton County to submit to the people only one of the propositions discussed at the meeting above referred to. While I am taking no part in sponsoring or fighting any of this legslation, I do want to know the will of your people and feel that in fairness to the people of Chilton County, and to your representative and to myself, that all three propositions should be submitted to the people on July 11th. And I take this occasion to notify the people that I will not be governed by an election which does not submit all three of the propositions.

"Yours respectfully,
"KARL C. HARRISON."

Copy to Hon. Percy M. Pitts, Clanton, Alabama.

PERCY M. PITTS STATES VIEWS ON THIS MATTER

"Editor, Chilton County News,
"Clanton, Alabama.
"Dear Sir:

"I am in receipt of a copy of letter addressed to you for publication from Senator K. C. Harrison, which I presume will be published in this issue of your paper. I, as your representative in the legislature, commend the attitude taken by our Senator in reference to these local bills, and will be governed accordingly.

"I desire to take this opportunity to notify the people of Chilton County that I will not be governed by an election which does not submit all three of the local propositions to the vote of the people, as decided upon in a mass meeting held at the court house. For this reason, at my expense, I am having one ballot prepared with all three local measures, including the county agent's bill, and upon these ballots I will rely upon your vote on July 11th, as to the repeal or passage of these bills. Such a referendum was practically unanimously asked for at the court house several weeks ago by a mass meeting which was attended by five or six hundred people of our county, and presided over by Judge L. H. Reynolds and Mr. B. L. Cobb. After considerable discussion a resolution was read, endorsing the repeal of the local act which provides a fixed amount to be paid by the Commissioners Court of Chilton County to the county agent, home demonstration agent and certain other assistants. At this meeting, after reading and passing a resolution by a standing vote, the presiding officer called upon our Senator Harrison and myself to ascertain our attitude pertaining to this bill, we having been invited to attend this meeting several days prior thereto. As to the attitude taken by Senator Harrison, it is set forth in his letter in this issue of your paper. After Mr. Harrison made his statement I was then called upon by the chairman, and on this occasion thoroughly agreed as usual that I was willing to abide by a vote of the people, and be governed accordingly pertaining to repealing this bill, or any other local measure

"At this time and occasion, while on the floor I suggested to the mass meeting there had been considerable discussion regarding the passage of two other local bills, viz: one to create an Inferior Court to give desired relief to the crowded and congested condition of our Circuit Court docket, and which will save the taxpayers of Chilton County several times the expense attached to same, and at the same time give those interested a speedy trial. The third local bill mentioned was a bill to be passed allowing the voters the privilege and right to elect by popular vote our county deputy solicitor in lieu of his being appointed. These two propositions were placed before the mass meeting, and the writer asked the question: "All those present who would like for both the Inferior Court bill and the bill making the county solicitor's office elective instead of appointive to be submitted to the vote of the people at the same time, stand." At least ninety per cent of the crowd arose, as they had on the previous occasion when the question of the repeal of the county agent's bill was presented.

"As to the Inferior court bill, there will be only created one office by this act, which will be the presiding judge of said court, who, of necessity should be an attorney. It has been reported that the proposed salary would be opproximately four thousand dollars; however, this is untrue, and the salary will be fixed in the bill at twenty-four hundred dollars per year. The present sheriff and clerk will serve this court without additional expense to the county. All of the attorneys of the local bar met in my law office several weeks prior to this mass meeting, and as I recall unanimously agreed to the necessity of such a court being established in this county prior to the mass meeting.

"There is an Inferior Court both in Elmore and Autauga counties, which court was created under similar circumstances, and I am advised has proved very successful.

"I further beg to advise that if this bill is desired by your voters, the voters of Chilton County will be given the opportunity to elect by popular vote the trial judge, and the bill will not provide for the appointment to this office by the governor or any other appointive power.

"As you will recall, in past years our county superintendent received his office by appointment. During the Miller administration I passed a local bill, which gave you the opportunity to elect your county superintendent by popular vote. If the majority of the voters in this county desire to be given the same privilege in the election of your county solicitor, and vote accordngly, a bill will be passed giving you this chance

"As long as I am serving you in the Legislature, I am willing to abide by the wishes of the majority as expressed by their vote. As a true representative of the people I am only personally interested in carrying out the wishes of the majority, and especially in reference to local legislation. In my humble judgment the great need of our country today is more local self government, and less centralization of power in our state and national capitol.

"Respectfully yours,
"PERCY M. PITTS."

L. H. REYNOLDS WRITES

"Editor, Chilton County News,
"Clanton, Alabama.
"Dear Sir:

"A mass meeting has been called to meet at the Court House next Saturday, July 8, 1939, at 2:00 o'clock P.M. At this mass meeting there will be a discussion of the proposed five amendments to the Constitution as well as a Referendum upon three local matters pertaining to our county, the question of placing the county agent's office under the power of the Commissioners Court, an Inferior Court bill for Chilton County and another bill, the election of the county solicitor by popular vote.

"I have been requested to speak at this meeting and I hope there will be others also and I feel like that we should all be better informed on all of these measures before we vote on July 11.

"I have already expressed myself as against the proposed amendment permitting voting machines. I see no objection to the law if only the larger cities and wealthier counties desire these machines, but there is no escape from the proposition that whether or not a county is forced to have a voting machine is left entirely to the will of the Legislature and this means in local matters to the representative we elect and this will simply bring forth for the counties a great added expense.

"I have also expressed myself as against the Constitution Amendment as to the convening of the Legislature in general session once each two years instead of each four years as the Constitution now provides, because I believe that this will likewise add expense to us and without reflecting upon any representative now or who has previously held this office, I am frank to say that much of our trouble comes from the Legislators. In other words instead of being a benefit to the people oftentimes they are a mill stone around our necks. A previous Legislature records show that they had seventeen door keepers and there are only four doors, two to the House and two to the Senate and we know of the innumerable and wholly unnecessary amount of clerks and other expenses attached to it and I believe for the good of our State and the stability of business, and peace of taxpayers that the Legislature should not meet more often than once every four years.

"As to the three local matters, there has been some misunderstanding as to the action taken by a mass meeting which authorized the submission of these issues to the people in a Referendum. I was Chairman of this mass meeting and it has been reasonably estimated that there were 400 people at this meeting and when a vote was taken as to the question of placing the County Agent's office under the Commissioners Court, all in the House endorsed the placing of this office under the Commissioners Court and seven, I believe it was, voted against this. The mass meeting did not go on record as favoring either the Inferior Court bill or the election of the county Solicitor by popular vote, but all that the mass meeting did was to vote to submit these to the people of the county.

"It has been rumored that I have endorsed the Inferior Court bill and the Solicitor's bill. I have never endorsed these measures for one reason I have never seen any bill that was drawn up on these measures and I do not know what the provisions of the bill will be and before I endorse any bill I would like to know what its terms are, the expense it will be to the taxpayers, if any. I presume some of the attorneys in Clanton have been assigned the duty of drafting the Inferior Court Bill and I think this should be done before this mass meeting Saturday in order that the people might know the jurisdiction, costs and any other expenses attached to this bill. Likewise, the Solicitor's bill, I think, should be put in some concrete form so that the people might be informed on these two questions.

"As I have said before, we should leave prejudice and party affiliation out of this election as these measures in whole or in part are either good for our county or bad for it and I think all of them should be considered deliberately with a full understanding of the arguments made for and against them and I am going to suggest that not only those that might favor either one or more of these bills be present, but all those that might oppose either one or more of these bill be present also and whatever time I have I will be glad to divide it with any that takes an opposite view from that which I will take.

"I have always stood for open debate and feel like the people should always know where its officials or probable candidates stand on public matters and I think they should all come out and be present and express themselves openly and frankly upon these important issues.

"Yours very truly,

FROM R. J. JACKSON

"To the Voters of Chilton County:

"I just want to say to the farmers of the County that one time they ought to take off from work long enough to go to the polls and vote. I want you to vote for the repeal of the Bill on the County Agent's office. When you vote "yes" you vote to put the County Agent and all of his horde of employees drawing our tax payers money back under the control of the Commissioners' Court

"I have heard reports from several of the County Agent's employees and especially from Mr. Gerald Hubbard, that we were not having a fair election on this, that the people had not been notified about it. I want to say in reply that I attended a farmers' meeting at the Court House March 18, at which some 1,000 farmers were present. This meeting was advertised for two weeks in both County papers notifying all interested in the County Agent's set-up as it was to be present. I feel that the County Agent knew about it for he had all of his office crew, all of his field men and two or three men from Auburn there. When all of the 1,000 farmers voted at that meeting to put the County Agent's office back under the control of the Commissioners' Court Mr. Fant and his horde of employees and the Auburn men were the only ones who didn't stand. I say they have had plenty of notice and after next Tuesday when the votes are counted I say again they will have had ample notice that the sentiment of the farmers of this County shows that they are ready to put the County Agent back in the hands of the people of Chilton County.

"They have reports out that a ballot was taken on this same thing on November 8, 1938, and that a majority voted against repeal of the County Agent

[illegible] I have inquired of the official canvassers, the law required canvass returns of that election and they tell me that not a single return was made at that election. I know that I didn't see one at the poll when I voted, therefore, don't be mislead by that false statement. Also don't be mislead that the repeal of this Act will do away with the County Agent, the Home Demonstration Agent or the 4-H Club work. If that was the purpose of it I would be against it, but the only purpose of it is to do away with their unlimited authority and to give it back to the county officials and the voters of our county.

"This is not a political fight and all of the voters and tax payers should get out and vote next Tuesday for there will be ballots and they will be counted.

"Yours very truly,
"R. J. JACKSON."

AND FROM MR. J. Z. MIMS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

'On next Tuesday our Senator and Representative is submitting to the voters of this County three local bills to be passed upon by the voters of this County before they introduce the bills in the Legislature and making them into laws. Two of the bills I would like to discuss. I insist that everyone vote and vote your convictions.

"One of the bills which they propose [illegible] will create an Inferior Court [illegible] County. I was Clerk of the Circuit Court of this County for twelve [illegible] part of which time we had a County Court as well as a Circuit [illegible] that being true, I feel that I [illegible] the experience, and my [illegible] of the situation will justify [illegible] supporting and endorsing an Inferior Court for this County. In 1923 [illegible] the County Court of this County [illegible] abolished, that left only the Circuit Court to try all cases of a County [illegible] a population of 25,000 people. Since that time the Circuit Court has never been able to keep the docket of the court up to date. Since that time it [illegible] taken from six months to a year [illegible] case tried. It would be a hard matter for the Circuit Judge to keep up to date with the cases filed in this court if he devoted his entire time in this county. At the present time there are about 250 cases on docket waiting to be tried, a situation that would not prevail if we had another court to [illegible] all misdemeanor cases, small civil and equity cases. Having an Inferior Court will enable the citizens of this county to have a judge present in the county at all times, and having a short term of Court every thirty days will enable the people to get quicker justice in the courts and the cost of court will be greatly reduced, enabling the tax payers of the county to get more [illegible] the taxes that they pay It will enable the Court to dispose of a case within [illegible] to sixty days instead of from six months to a year.

"The purpose of this bill is not to create a group of new county officials. [illegible] this court, there will be only [illegible] created, that of the Judge, [illegible] must be an attorney at law. The [illegible] Clerk, Sheriff and Solicitor will [illegible] officers of this Inferior Court, with [illegible] in pay for these officials [illegible] that an Inferior Court will [illegible] than pay its own way in the saving of Court costs, and the saving of [illegible] cost.

"I venture to say that there cannot [illegible] found, in this state, another county [illegible] a population of 25,000 people that [illegible] not have an Inferior Court to [illegible] the Circuit Court in carrying out [illegible] duties. There are three counties in [illegible] Circuit and both of the other [illegible] have an Inferior Court; Autauga County having nothing like the [illegible] that this County has. I do [illegible], nor can any one else say, that [illegible] Circuit Judges that we have had in [illegible] County for the last fifteen years [illegible] not done their utmost to keep up [illegible] all the cases filed, and do everything within their power to render [illegible] and efficient justice. They have [illegible] cases to try than any one man [illegible] try, thereby are a year behind in the trial of the cases that are to come before him. It is my firm conviction that this County is in greater need of an Inferior Court at the present time than any other thing that might be named. The voters of this County will not only be doing themselves a great deed by voting for an Inferior Court, but will enable our Court officials to render a better service to the citizens and tax payers of this County.

"There is also a bill to be submitted to the voters to make the County Solicitor elective instead of appointed by the Circuit Solicitor. The County Solicitor is an official of this county and draws his pay from the Treasurer of Chilton County. It is my firm conviction and it is my recommendation that the voters of this county vote to have the County Solicitor elected by the people of this Coutnty.

"J. Z. MIMS."

POLITICIAN'S DREAM

The Political Machine lay sleeping. It had its machine well oiled. Its managers and clerks at all the voting boxes in the County had been selected. All of them had been finally instructed and directed. And as it slept it dreamed this dream.

"On election day July 11th, it stood waiting and watching to see what the dear voters were going to do with the three Local Matters. The voters were one time streaming to the polls, voting their own wishes, without pay, and without the machine's assistances They continued to file in hour by hour.

As it dreamed it saw its directed and instructed henchmen at the polls as they approached each voter as he came. These specially instructed and directed failed, failed, and failed. Each voter passed them by, saying no this is one time for me to vote my judgment. The voters would say "no," that is a false report; and again, 'no," that is another false report. As he is pidgenholed the third time and instructed the voters said: 'I am voting my wishes today. My Representative and my Senator have given me one opportunity to vote on a local matter untrampled. I am making good this one opportunity."

Yes, and yes, to the Machine Fixer, as he leaves him standing to catch the next voter, you are out of luck one time. I have about lost all my rights listening to you on past election days. Today I am voting to hold and regain some of my rights.

I am voting first to make the County Solicitor of the County elective. If he is worth one hundred dollars per month at the tax payers' trough he is worth being voted on to receive it. If he was accountable to the tax payers in the past, the absentee ballot frauds, and the good name of our County would possibly not have been. If elected he might not hold office for life. Too, service and courtesy would be the watchword.

Yes, I am voting for an Inferior Court for the County. A Court with the Judge elected from the County, and accountable to the people. A Court that will meet say, monthly, and dispose of all small cases, and without the expense of juries. A Court that will save our time, and county's money.

Yes, I am voting "no" on the County Agent's Office. I wonder why the Commissioners want control of his office. Is it because they haven't enough to do already? Or have they done a sufficient job of the County's business to justify taking this on? Or is there enough votes to be handled this way to want direct control over them in the elections to come? I rather think that is the reason. So the machine has enough control already.

When the machine awoke next morning it sighed, and went into a deep slumber saying, "I have lost my control. My cup no longer runneth over. The people are going to elect their County Solicitor, they are going to have an Inferior Court. The County Agent's office is still out of our reach and control. Oh, me "

FROM GRESHAM SMITH

"Mr. Editor:

"A most important election is to be held in the County next Thesday, July 11th. At that time we vote on the proposed Amendments to the State Constitution.

"We also vote at that time on some local matters of interest to the farmers and tax payers. One is the County Agent's office. This office is closer to the farmer and means more to the farmers than any other two offices in the County However, there must be something very wrong in its operations. For when the farmers were called to discuss this office at the Court House a few weeks back, some eight hundred to one thousand farmers attended. This must have disturbed the Extension Service at Auburn, and the County Agent's employees, for Auburn had a Mr. Jones, and a Mr. Sizemore there, and the County Agent had some twelve or fifteen employees present. However none of them did explain why our County Agent had not visited on the farms of but four farmers there present in the last year, and these four were employees out of his office.

"The purpose of that meeting was to get some relief for us farmers, and to get repealed the Local Act putting our Agent under Auburn's complete control.

"I presided as Secretary. When the question was put to those present, 'How many favored repeal of that act?' Every one present with the exception of the twelve or fifteen employees of the Agen't office and the two men from Auburn, voted 'yes.' Our Senator and Representative were present and stated that it would not cost the taxpayers one penny to have a County-wide vote on this July 11th, to get the opinion of the whole County.

"At this same meeting the Representative stated he had been asked to pass a local bill making the County Solicitor's office of our County elective, and that the lawyers wanted an Inferior Court for our County. After these two proposals were discussed and explained, a vote was taken on 'Those in favor of them,' and most all voted 'Yes.' Then the Senator and Representative asked that all three of these local matters be voted on July 11th, and all voted in favor of this.

"Of course, according to our Agent he draws $110 per month from Chilton County, and this is only 40 per cent of his pay, so he must draw some $371 plus all traveling expense. The County records show that this office has cost our County some $6,000 in the past year.

"You should go to the polls and vote next Tuesday on these important matters, and especially 'Yes' on the Agent's matter.

"Yours truly,
"GRESHAM SMITH."

P. M. CLECKLER WRITES

"To the Voters of Chilton County:

"I see in the papers where the people of Chilton County are going to have an opportunity to regain part of their rights and privileges that have been taken away from them by local legislation. I believe that the people in Chilton County would receive a great deal better service by our County Agent being placed under the control of our officers who are elected by the direct vote of the people.

"As I see it now just Auburn has control of the County Agent of Chilton County, all that is left is for the tax payers to pay the bills. I am at the conclusion that the tax payers have been the goats long enough. A vote 'Yes' on this measure is a vote for the best interest of the farmers, I know, of this County.

"Two other local matters are to be voted on at that same time, one is the electing of the County Solicitor of our County and the other is the creating of an Inferior Court for our County. If the Sheriff of our County is to be elected, the Tax Collector to be elected and our Superintendent of Education and all of the other officers of the County are to be elected who are paid by the tax payers of the County, then why not elect the County Solicitor of this County. When he is elected by the people of Chilton County he will be accountable to them and I feel confident we will get better service.

"I recommend that every voter go to the polls and vote 'Yes' on all three local matters.

"Respectfully,
"P. M. CLECKLER."

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at the Extra Session 1939, ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said Amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said election be held on the Second Tuesday after the expiration of three months from and after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which said amendment was proposed; and

Dixon, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 11th day of July 1939, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama, in the manner and form provided by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, as follows:

That no person shall for any indictable offense be proceeded against criminally by information, except in cases arising in the militia and volunteer forces when in actual service, or when assembled under arms as a military organization, or, by leave of the court, for misfeasance, misdemeanor, extortion and oppression in office, otherwise than is provided in the Constitution; provided, that in cases of misdemeanor, the Legislature may by law dispense with a grand jury and authorize such prosecutions and proceedings before justices of the peace or such other inferior courts as may be by law established. Provided further that in all felony cases, except those punishable by capital punishment, the Legislature may by law dispense with a grand jury and authorize such prosecutions and proceedings in such manner as may be provided by law if the defendant, after having had the advice of counsel of his choice or in the event he is unable to employ counsel, the advice of counsel which must be appointed by the court, makes known in open court to a judge of a court having jurisdiction of the offense that he desires to plead guilty, provided, however, the defendant cannot plead guilty within fifteen days after his arrest."

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1: That an Act entitled: "To require the Court of County Commissioners or like governing body of Chilton County, Alabama to establish and make payment of an Agricultural Fund for the purpose of paying salaries and travel of a County Agricultural Agent, County Home Demonstration Agent, an Assistant County Agricultural Agent in 4-H Club Work and the salary of a Clerical Assistant to provide for the appointment and duties of a County Agricultural Agent, a County Home Demonstration Agent, an Assistant County Agricultural Agent in 4-H Club Work and a Clerical Assistant to provide necessary expenses to provide out of what funds and in what order of preference said Agricultural Fund shall be paid paid, to provide when this act shall take effect," which Act was passed by the Legislature of Alabama, at the extra session of 1936, and which was approved March 17, 1936, be and the same is hereby repealed.

Section 2: BE IT FURTHER ENACTED that this repealing Act shall go into effect upon the approval by the Governor.

—o—

The above proposed bill for the people to vote on July 11, 1939, repeals the law as you see, which makes it compulsory for the Commissioners Court to appropriate $4,300.00 for the County Agent's Office.

The law to be repealed takes from the Commissioners Court any authority to control the County Agent's Office.

Up to 1936 when this law was passed, the Commissioners had control of the County Agent's Office and every county in Alabama has this power now except Chilton County.

Do you want the people of the county to control the County affairs, or do you want them controlled from Auburn?

Number of Horses Is Decreasing

If war breaks out in Europe, America will not be able to supply the enormous number of horses and mules which she did in the last World War, according to Dr. I. S. McAdory, State Veterinatrian.

"Our horse population has suffered these farm a marked decline in the last decade and is growing smaller year by year," says Dr. McAdory. "Last year there were 328,000 fewe horses than the year before, and 61,000 fewer colts were foaled last year than the year before. Despite this fact, the value of these farm animals is exceeded only by that of dairy cattle. This means that if European armies come to America for their horses as they did during the last war, good horses will be harder to obtain and prices will rise more rapidly.

"Because horses are today more scarce and more valuable than they have been for a numbe rof years, they During hot summer months extra preshould be given the best care possible. cautions should be taken to avoid heat stroke; horses should have plenty of cool drisking water, given frequent rest periods on very hot days, given rations which are not too heating, and provided access to good shade.

"Most farmers are on their guard ..ainst the current wave of sleeping ..kness, but any horses which have not been immunized should be protected immediately. When one realizes that the horse population is decreasing steadily, asd that it takes nearly two years to produce a new colt, the importance of safeguarding those horses which we do have is increasingly clear."

BIG VOTE SEEN FOR AMENDMENTS

Dixon Thanks People For Support Of His Program

MONTGOMERY.—Convinced by reports from every county that Alabama voters are set to roll up a landslide majority for all five of the administration's confidence-restoring constitutional amendments in the special election July 11, Governor Frank Dixon this week expressed "heartfelt thanks to the people of our state for the cooperation extended to me on every hand since my inauguration."

Speaking over a state-wide radio hookup, the governor said "this fine cooperation has made possible the many organic changes brought about in modernizing and rendering more efficient our government." He praised the Legislature for having patriotically enacted the "better government" program "without the use of patronage and its power for evil."

Since January 16, Governor Dixon asserted, many evil practices of the past have been stamped out and widespread economies have been effected. But he emphasized that the job is not finished, because the administration cannot make effective a part of the program to improve governmental conditions without specific authority from the people.

"The program goes well," he continued, "but there are certain things essential to Alabama's welfare which require your help. I am asking you to give me that help on July 11 by ratifying the five proposed amendments to our Constitution."

The governor explained each amendment and its purpose, and reiterated his promise that ratification of the proposals will mean "substantial additional economies."

The amendments, all designed to aid in the modernization of the state government, would:

1. Permit pleas of guilty in felony cases without requiring costly delays in awaiting grand jury action.
2. Establish a non-political pardon-parole-probation system, forever ending the notorious parole racket.
3. Provide for biennial insead of quadrennial legislative sessions, reducing the length of sessions, promoting efficiency and saving a huge sum.
4. Authorize the use of voting machines in counties desiring them.
5. Permit investment of trust funds in U. S. Government-guaranteed securities.

With no organized opposition having developed, and with advocates of better government active in every county, the clear outlook this week was for an emphatic vote of ratification.

Here's Way To Control Chiggers

Before going into brush or grassy areas or starting out on a picnic in a spot likely to harbor chiggers, it's well to dust the body with flowers of sulphur, an inexpensive powder sold by druggists. Men working in forests often wear leather leggins or high-top shoes over their trousers to protect their legs from chiggers, and put a little keosene on their overalls or work clothes.

Kerosene, in fact, will kill chiggers if applied lightly to the skin after exposure, for example, on the ankles, wrists, and under the knees. This treatment should be followed immediately by a hot bath, in which the body is well scrubbed with a coarse wash rag or brush to dislodge the chiggers as much as possible. At the same time the skin should be lathered freely with a medicated soap, which should dry on the body for about fifteen minutes before it is washed off.

A chigger is the first or larvel stage of a large red velvet mite which is entirely harmless when mature, according to J. M. Robinson, entomologist, Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The chiggers hatch soon after warm weather begins, from eggs laid in the ground the previous fall. They are prevalent from about May first to August.

The idea that chiggers actually burrow into the skin is incorrect says Mr. Robinson. They merely attach themselves to the skin and suck the blood. The persistent itching that follows is due to a poisonous material which the insect injects in the wound Ammonia water, strong salt water, soda water, and cooling ointments will alleviate the pain of chigger bites somewhat. Iodine and mercurochrome are valuable as antiseptic applications on infected bites
